Rebel Troops Enter Bilbao; Defenders of City in Flight

Thousands of Refugees Crowd Streets of Basque Capital

REIGN OF TERROR

City Without Food or Water; Power Supplies Fail

BY EDWARD J. NEIL

With the Insurgents at Begona, at the Edge of Bilbao—(AP)—The insurgent troops marched into Bilbao from this suburb today and took formal possession of the Basque capital, working their way through streets that were thronged with thousands of outpouring refugees.

No shots were heard.

The march-in came shortly after noon. But the troops really had been investing Bilbao for nine days. They finished that today, when the last Asturian dynamiters fled over the hills to Santander, under fire.

This dispatch is filed via Vitoria at 2:40 p. m. (7:40 a. m. central standard time). Several hours earlier many of Bilbao's 300,000 men, women and children hid in the railway tunnels and cellars of the stricken city waiting for relief from one of the most terrible scenes of horror and privation since the height of the World war.

Horrible Conditions

Without a water supply for four days, foodless for two days, and without electricity since Thursday, residents of the terror-stricken city told of executions, looting and marauding by the last of the Asturian miners.

They said thousands of wounded in the four major hospitals and in homes converted into first aid stations weer deserted by doctors and nurses.

A weeping nurse named Carcela Nunar, who staggered up the path to the church here said the government chieftains had commandeered automobiles and ambulances for escape, unmindful of the needs of soldiers felled in the week-long insurgent drive through Bilbao's cement and steel defense belt.

I can see a part of all this horror from the Begona church where the city's center begins.

Loyalists Surrender

Actually I am so close that two government soldiers came up to the church with arms upraised, one surrendering a long .38 pistol and the other an automatic to Captain Aguilera, the press officer accompanying us.

Toward the right side of the city, smoke is rising from the University of Commerce, dynamited just before we reached the church.

The normal Bilbao population of almost 200,000 was increased by another 100,000 refugees who are crowding underground. The only water available, the women said, was the drippings from the damp roofs along the railway tunnels running under the city.

Even the black bread is as hard as granite and as unnourishing as Germany's wartime potato bread, they declared.

"Nada! Nada!" (Nothing! Nothing!) the women chattered hysterically.

"In the streets there are many bodies of soldiers who died of lack of care; they are dying like flies in the hospitals," said the first aid man, his face gaunt and black with a week's beard.

Refugees crowding the road to Santander now are being turned back because there is neither food nor lodgings for them.

25,000 Flee City

Despite the heavy insurgent fire, 25,000 refugees were said to have fled the city Friday.

Before patrols moved towards the center of the besieged city, insurgent commanders reported it had been completely encircled. They said the two roads westward toward Santander, the last avenues of escape, were closed.

VERSATILE

In view of the production of Hamlet in New York by two well-known actors during the last season, it is interesting to note that the part of Shakespeare's famous character was once played by a popular songwriter, John Howard Payne, author of "Home, Sweet Home." He was a hit in the part, too. Surprising versatility! And we may say the same about Post-Crescent Want Ads! An example:

Received about 15 calls and rented flat first night the ad was inserted.

Three Soviet Aviators Fly Across Pole in Attempt to Map Moscow-U. S. Air Route

Washington —(AP)— The army signal corps reported this afternoon that northwestern radio network has received no definite word from the Russian transpolar plane since 2:20 a. m. (C. S. T.) today.

Washington —(AP)— The army radio station at Seattle reported to the war department at 12 noon (11 a. m. C. S. T.) today that it had contacted the Russian transpolar plane and was standing by to receive any message it might send.

The last message from the plane received by the army radio network in Alaska and the Pacific northwest was at 3:20 a. m., when the plane was more than 400 miles south of the North pole.

San Francisco—(AP)—Three daring Russian airmen soared over the top of the world today and headed southward on a 6,000 mile non-stop flight pioneering a new trans-polar air route from Moscow to San Francisco bay.

They flew over uncharted wastes as radio reports indicated they crossed the halfway mark and completed the most difficult part of their flight, not only the longest but one of the most hazardous ever attempted by man.

The Russian consulate at San Francisco said they passed over the North pole, or close to it, (consulate officials were not sure) at 11:10 p. m. C. S. T., yesterday.

At 2:20 a. m., C. S. T., the fliers reported they were about 320 miles this side of the pole and "everything all right."

This put them at about the halfway mark and nearing the outer edge of the magnetic jungle where the compass, key navigation instrument, pointed at almost everything but the North pole.

Due To Land Sunday

If they continued to hold their single motor at the same speed, which averaged slightly less than 85 miles an hour for the first stages of the flight, they would bring their monoplane down on the Oakland airport, across San Francisco bay, at about 1 p. m. Sunday (3 p. m. C. S. T.) after nearly three days in the air.

As they flew steadily southward under the northland sun which never sets in the summertime, the dangers of being forced down from ice forming on the wings steadily lessened.

They reported last night, as they entered the sub-zero Arctic atmosphere, ice was beginning to form on the long slender wings of the monoplane.

Then came hours of silence, characteristic of the flight not announced by soviet officials in Moscow until 24 hours after it started at 7:05 p. m. C. C. T. Thursday. The silence resulted from a combination of rigid Russian censorship and the difficulties of radio communication in the far north.

Difficult Flight

Ahead of the "three heroes of the Soviet Union" lay "extremely difficult weather conditions," and beneath them a vast area that no white man has ever explored by land or sea (which ever it is) or by air. At the soviet polar camp, mists reduced visibility to a mile. The

Sir James Barrie, Playwright and Novelist, Is Dead

Funeral Services to be Conducted in Native Scottish Village

London—(AP)—Sir James M Barrie, 77, creator of the immortal Peter Pan, died today.

The British playwright and novelist, who gave to the world the piquant story of the little boy who wouldn't grow up, was taken to a London nursing home on June 11, suffering bronchial pneumonia. He had been ill a long time.

Death was announced at 1:57 p. m. (6:57 a. m. C. S. T.).

Early this morning, Peter Davies, who as a little boy inspired Barrie to write the story of Peter Pan and his "Never-Never Land," reached the dying author's bedside.

At that time the doctors were announcing that Sir James' life was "slowing ebbing away."

Shortly before 8 a. m., Sir James became unconscious. Davies stayed until the end.

Funeral services will be held in Barrie's native Scottish village, Kirriemuir, the town he gave lasting fame as the setting for "A Window in Thrums."

Burial, it was believed, will be in the Kirriemuir cemetery beside his father and mother.

George Bernard Shaw received word of his friend's death with characteristic Shawian philosophy.

"Barrie had a good long life," he said. "He said everything he wanted to say and now he's dead. I suppose I shall be dead shortly."

Four Seriously Hurt in Automobile Collision

Genesee, Wis.—(AP)— Frank Shannon, Kenosha attorney, and three Ft. Atkinson men were seriously injured last night in an automobile collision at the intersection of Highways 18 and 83.

Shannon suffered an injury to his left side which caused his left lung to collapse. He also suffered a head injury. At the Oconomowoc hospital to which he was taken it was reported he probably will recover unless infection develops.

Don Albee, 33, of Ft. Atkinson, suffered a brain concussion. At the Waukesha municipal hospital, he was reported in a critical condition today.

Samuel Peterson, 39, driver of the car in which Albee was riding, suffered several fractured ribs and a head injury. A companion, Gilbert Stannard, 29, was cut about the head and left leg.

Mrs. Shannon and her daughter, Mary, suffered minor cuts and bruises.

Test Case Planned on Validity of Rush Law

Madison — (AP) — Attorney F. W. Gennrich of Wausau, counsel for the Wisconsin Public Service corporation, indicated at a public service commission hearing yesterday that a proposed 11-mile electric line extension in Lincoln county may be used as a test case to challenge the constitutionality of the recently enacted Rush law.

He introduced testimony of two witnesses to "make a record" for court appeal on a commission order denying the corporation permission to build a line in the town of Schley, Lincoln county, because of objection filed by a REA cooperative.

Attorney Lee K. Besnor of Madison, cooperative attorney, withdrew objection to the proposed extension of 2¼ miles in the town not within cooperative territory.

The Rush law provides that electric cooperatives may reserve territory for themselves and prevent any public utility from starting construction in such territory for at least six months.

Order Abandonment of Peninsula Park Camp

Sturgeon Bay, Wis.—(AP)—Lieutenant William Hoch, commanding officer of the CCC camp peninsula at Peninsula State park, said today he had received word the camp must be abandoned by June 30. Lieutenant Hoch said the order affects 168 enrollees.

Aliens Hit in Plan to Plug Tax Loopholes

U. S. May Boost Levies on Cash Earned Here But Sent Abroad

SEVERAL PROPOSALS

'Pro-Rata Tax' Suggested on Foreign Incorporators in U. S.

Washington—(AP)—Treasury officials, digging out new names and evidence for the congressional tax dodging inquiry, suggested today a major loophole might be plugged by increasing the tax on income earned in America but shipped abroad.

They suggested an increase in the present 10 per cent "withholding tax" on income received from this country by non-resident individuals and foreign corporations.

If the "withholding tax" were lifted to 25 per cent, some authorities said, taxpayers abroad might be given the option of paying this levy or the ordinary American income tax.

This alternative, they declared, probably would lead many to pay the regular income tax rates, placing them on the same basis as citizens who pay standard income taxes.

As another method of reaching persons who transfer assets to foreign corporations, officials said they could urge congress to place a "pro-rata tax" on incorporators who live in this country.

"Pro-Rata" Plan

If a foreign corporation had 10 stockholders with 10 shares of stock each, they explained, each would have to pay a tax on one-tenth of the corporation's income annually.

Representative Vinson (D-Ky.), a member of the committee, said the present 25 per cent penalty tax on any transfer of assets designed to reduce tax liability might be increased.

Present tax rates on domestic holding companies might be raised to deter their use for tax avoidance, revenue authorities said. The rates now range from 8 to 48 per cent on undistributed net income, and officials said a range from 20 to 60 per cent might be preferable.

The first burst of publicity on individual taxpayers yesterday placed before the joint senate-house investigating committee the names of a half dozen persons.

Elmer L. Irey, veteran chief of the treasury's tax investigation unit, said those named had reduced or eliminated federal tax payments through the formation of foreign holding companies, to which they transferred assets.

The committee, adjourning hearings until Tuesday morning, ordered the treasury to supply additional names as individual cases are developed from tax records.

Adjournment Up To Lower House

Governor Favors Special Session to Limit Proposed Legislation

Madison—(AP)—Possibility of a final adjournment of the regular session of the legislature July 2 and the calling of a special session immediately thereafter hinged today on action to be taken by the assembly next week.

Governor LaFollette is known to favor this method of disposing of some 500 miscellaneous bills which now block the path of adjournment.

By fixing a sine die date to close the session all bills left hanginig automatically would die and the governor would be free to limit the special session to subjects involved in his program—relief, social welfare reform, governmental reorganization, judiciary retirement and similar bills.

The assembly refused this week to take the senate's resolution for an adjournment July 2 from the committee on rules, but is expected to vote on that motion next week.

If a special session is invoked it probably will follow within a week after the regular and with the volume of legislation to be considered, it would last until Aug. 15 or later.

Federation Union Is Winner in Election

Milwaukee—(AP)—Employes of the Lakeside Bridge and Steel company yesterday chose the A. F. of L. Iron Workers' local No. 471 as their sole bargaining agent in a secret election conducted jointly by the state and federal labor boards.

The vote was 113 for the union and 55 against. Chris Bonerz, business agent for the union, said as a result of the vote negotiations to settle a strike at the plant were to continue today.

Members of the Structural Steel Workers' union, an independent group organized at the plant, have protested the failure of the labor boards to place the name of their union on the ballot.

Bangkok, Siam, Is Next Stop for Woman Flier

She landed her monoplane at 6.35 a. m. Greenwich time (1:35 a m., E. S. T.) after a trip of 2 hours, 53 minutes.

Her next destination was Bangkok, Siam, nearly 400 miles southeast of Rangoon.

She and her navigator, Captain Fred Noonan, made two unsuccessful starts from Akyab in bad weather before they finally completed the hop.

Even on the successful trip they fought a terrific battle with the elements.

Miss Earhart said they flew through blinding rain over the Burmese hills. She described the flight as the worst experience of their journey thus far.

Driver of Missing Car Is Facing Two Charges

LaCrosse —(AP)— Half an hour after receiving a radio report of a stolen car last night, County Traffic Officers Russell Egan and Ivan Wright had recovered the car and lodged the driver in the county jail on charges of drunken driving and operating a car without the owner's consent. This morning Gage Baldwin, 42, Sparta, pleaded not guilty to the charges and a hearing was set for Wednesday.

Mrs. Lester Denies She Shot Mate: Jury Expected to Get Case Monday

Manitowoc—(AP)—Mrs. Lester denied today under cross-examination that she shot her husband, Earl, for whose murder she is being tried in Circuit Judge Henry A. Detling's court.

With the conclusion of the examination of Mrs Lester, both the state and the defense ended presentation of their cases. Summations will be made Monday and the case given to the jury the same day.

The defendadnt denied the fatal shooting today when District Attorney John Cashman asked her, "what position was Earl Lester in when you shot him?"

"I didn't shoot him," she said.

"Well, what position was he in when shot?"

He was in the front seat and he had hold of my right hand," the woman replied. "I braced myself and pushed at his head. I felt him jerk forward and he let go of my hand."

"Your finger was on the trigger of the gun when it was shot wasn't it?" Cashman asked.

"I don't remember my finger ever being on the trigger. I didn't shoot him," Mrs Lester said.

Judge Detling warned the jury to withhold all conclusions and to watch its conduct carefully during the interim until Monday.

The 33-year-old defendant fainted yesterday when she started to tell how her husband was shot as they rode in an automobile from Green Bay to Manitowoc.

Mrs. Lester told of discordant relations with her husband for the last 13 years. She related how on the night of Feb. 13 she and a Manitowoc man sought Mr. Lester in several hotels in Two Rivers, Wis., and how with the assistance of the sheriff of Brown county she finally discovered him with Kasha Newberger, tavern hostess, in the farm tavern near Green Bay, Wis.

Martial Law Proclaimed at Johnstown After 40,000 Miners Plan March on City

ARMED RULE IN PENNSYLVANIA CITY

Governor Earle (right) of Pennsylvania today declared martial law in Johnstown, after Eugene Grace (left), president of the Bethlehem Steel corporation refused to comply with his request to close the plant at Johnstown. There was a report that 40,000 miners would march on the city Sunday to encourage C. I. O. steel strikers.

Home-Made Bullets Are Being Used by Wausau Policemen

Wausau —(AP)—Wausau policemen have gotten away from buying "store" bullets for their guns.

For the last six years the pocket artillery of the Wausau patrolmen has sped forth none but home-made bullets which Officers Clarence Johnson and Jack Coleman, experts pellet producers, have furnished. Introduced as an economy measure, the home-made bullets, used in both target practice and the service, have in recent years been fashioned from old lead pipe from discarded plumbing system in the city.

The department claims a considerable economy through the practice. Home-made bullets cost 60 cents a hundred whereas those that are bought are $33 for a similar number. Accuracy of the officers in pistol shooting is said to be improved through use of the self-made ammunition. Old shells are reused as many as 25 times.

Blum Is Refused Dictator Powers To Rule Finances

Senate Refuses to Give Premier Requested Authority in Crisis

Paris —(AP)— The senate refused today by a vote of 188 to 72 to give socialist Premier Leon Blum's government a virtual dictatorship over French finances.

The bill, already approved by the chamber, was put to a vote by radical socialist senators, moderate supporters of Blum's coalition, in an effort to force a showdown.

The premier did not make the passage a vote of confidence, however. Thus he need not resign.

His aids said the chamber would be asked to readopt the bill tonight and return it for another test in the senate tomorrow.

Some sources expressed belief that the life of the people's front government might hang on the outcome of Blum's insistence that independent-minded senators accede to his demands.

After it had turned down Blum's decree power measure, the senate adopted its own bill, which would restrict the premier's powers to take monetary measures. The vote was 238 to 52. It went to the chamber, where Blum asked that it be rejected and his own measure readopted.

Defends Gifts to State University

Wilkie Sees No Reason for Rejection if No Strings Are Attached

Madison —(AP)— Harold M. Wilkie of Madison, president of the University of Wisconsin board of regents, defended the university's acceptance of gifts from private sources in an address before the second annual alumni insutute last night.

His statement followed action of the board yesterday in approving renewal of a grant from the Rockefeller Foundation for Research study in genetics. Acceptance of the grant was opposed by Regent Daniel Grady of Portage, who contended the university was promoting a "tincup" method of obtaining funds.

Wilkie spoke later to 100 alumni who have returned for the annual commencement exercises.

"Is there any reason why the university cannot accept gifts from private sources," he asked, "if no conditions are attached to restrict the use of the funds or control the research for which they are granted?

"There has been a rule on the books that the university should not go out begging for gifts from private sources.

"The university is not under the necessity of resorting to solicitation of funds in any way and it has not done so in any case."

He urged the alumni to work for the good of the school by helping to give the people of Wisconsin "correct information" about it.

Start Court Action to Force Yahr Withdrawal

Milwaukee — (AP) — The Retail Clerks' International association, Local 925, an A. F. of L. union representing employes of the Yahr-Lange Drug company, today started court action seeking removal of the firm's president, Fred E. Yahr, from active management or participation in the affairs of the company.

Joseph A. Padway, union attorney, filed the suit in circuit court. The complaint charges that Yahr has breached an agreement reached with the employes on April 14 by terms of which he was to retire from the active management of the business permanently. The complaint also asks judgment for the amount of wages lost by employes when the company, according to the union, resorted on June 7 to a "lockout" of employes.

Plaintiffs in the suit are 70 individuals members of the union, including George Huseby, who was named general manager of the firm following Yahr's withdrawal in April.

Officer Kills Woman, Then Takes Own Life

Chicago—(AP)—Wilse L. Atterbury told police today his bride of a week had been threatened previously by Policeman Thomas Peters, 34, who shot her dead in a tavern last night and then fatally wounded himself.

Atterbury, a hotel stationary engineer, found asleep in his room hours after the double shooting, said he and the former Margaret Westcott were married here last Saturday.

On Monday, he said, his bride received a threatening letter and moved to a room by herself because she was afraid to live with me for fear of what Peters might do to both of us."

Mrs. Atterbury evidently met Peters to discuss the situation. Witnesses said Peters drew his pistol, shot her in the head, then turned the gun on himself.

Former Mayor of Beloit Succumbs in Bay State

Beloit — (AP) — E. G. Smith, 62, professor emeritus of chemistry in Beloit college, former Rock county assemblyman and four times mayor of Beloit, died today in Holyoke, Mass. He was taken ill while on a trip east with his daughter, Mrs. A. C. Holmes, Evansville, to attend a reunion of the class of 1877 at Amherst.

Judge Approves Sale Of Chilton Building

Chilton, Wis.—(AP)— Circuit Judge Fred Beglinger has approved sale of the Chilton National bank building and part of the fixtures to the State Bank of Chilton. The price was $17,600. The Chilton National closed March 3, 1933. About 90 per cent of its assets have been liquidated.

Week's Weather

Chicago—(AP)—For the region of the Great Lakes: much unsettled, showery weather, with temperatures near normal for the most part.

For the upper Mississippi and lower Missouri valleys and the northern and central great plains—One or two periods of local showers; temperatures, mostly near or somewhat above normal.

U. A. W. Strives to Prove it Controls Its Membership

Replies to Statement by President of General Motors

Detroit—(AP)—The executive board of the United Automobile Workers of America was determined today to prove it has the control over its members which the General Motors corporation said it has lacked.

William S. Knudsen, G. M. president, issued a statement asserting that "the inability of the union to control its members" has caused more than 200 unauthorized shutdowns in 48 of the corporation's plants since it signed an agreement with the U. A. W. A. March 12.

Only a few hours earlier Homer Martin, International president of the U. A. W. A., announced after a special meeting of the executive board that members and local unions responsible for "wildcat" strikes would face fines, suspension and expulsion.

Before making the announcement the union head asserted "General Motors and other corporations cannot escape their responsibility" for many unauthorized strikes for which the U. A. W. A. has been criticized.

"It is preposterous," Knudsen returned, "to suppose that the corporation should be a party to the unnecessary layoff of a single man when his work is in demand. The corporation entered into the agreement in good faith and has observed all of its provisions."

The corporation executive referred to the settlement between the union and General Motors ending the prolonged strike in its plants. This provided that there would be no stoppages of work until all attempts to negotiate grievances had been exhausted.

ASKS INQUIRY

Washington—(AP)—The Committee for Industrial Organization asked the treasury today to investigate what it claimed was failure of the Republic Steel corporation and the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company to register their firearms in accordance with the national firearms act.

Lee Pressman, C. I. O. general counsel, acting on behalf of the Steel Workers' organizing committee, asked Secretary Morgenthau for an immediate investigation.

Before the senate post office committee, James Musgrove, Republic Steel employe, testified at the same time that pickets at Niles, Ohio, shot at him, stripped him to his underwear, smeared him with grease and beat him.

Pressman advised Morgenthau strikers at plants of the two companies had reported several instances of being threatened by persons on company property with "machine guns, high powered rifles and other guns."

Hughes Sees Threat to American Democracy

Amherst, Mass.—(AP)—Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes today declared the "ruthlessness of a temporary majority, if unchecked, will eventually lead to the entire overthrow of democratic institutions."

He spake before 1,500 Amherst alumni members at the annual commencement exercises.

The chief justice said it would not become him to speak of current interests and that he would not attempt to answer questions on current problems. He said he would "leave that to the experts."

"We cannot hope to escape activities or organized minorities, which may triumph from time to time," he said. "Sometimes they have more fervor than wisdom."

He asserted that democracy carried the banner of freedom, and that there was no conflict between progress and liberty.

National Youth Congress Changes Meeting Place

Milwaukee — (AP) — Joseph Cadden, New York, executive secretary of the National Youth Congress, said today the congress would be held here July 2 to 5 at the Schroeder hotel and the Wisconsin Roof ballroom — not at the Eagles' clubhouse.

Cadden also said William F. Quirk, lawyer, had been retained by officers of the congress to start a lawsuit against Urban F. Durner, manager of the Eagles' club, because he refused the congress permission to use the clubhouse for the convention.

Durner denied the congress use of the building because about 200 of the 2,000 persons who will attend will be Negroes. The club has a rule prohibiting Negroes from using the club.

DIES OF INJURIES

Lewis, Wis. —(AP)— Vernon Hunter, 17, died late yesterday in the hospital at Frederic, Wis., of injuries received when a truck from which he jumped crushed him against the wall of a refrigerator here.

Gov. Earle Acts After Grace Refuses to Close Plant

FEARS 'MASSACRE'

Says Cambria Works Will be Closed to Avoid Bloodshed

Harrisburg, Pa. —(AP)— Governor Earle declared martial law in Johnstown today, at the close of the second week of the strike in the plant of the Bethlehem Steel company.

The governor said he had received a telegram from Eugene Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel corporation, refusing to accede to the governor's request that the plant in Johnstown be shut down in order to avoid bloodshed.

Governor Earle said his order meant immediate closing of the Cambria works as soon as Colonel Augustine S. Paneway, his personal representative, completes a survey.

Workers in the huge plant will be evacuated, Earle said. "If they remained there," he added, "it might mean a terrible massacre and I am not going to take a chance."

There was no immediate comment from Bethlehem officials.

Officials Clash

Mayor Shields fired a quick protest at the state's chief executive.

"Martial law in my city at this time is highly unwarranted and if you are sincere in your desire to preserve the peace in this community, do not arrogantly close our mills and paralyze the business life of our city," he wired Governor Earle.

"The easiest way to do the job is to keep the threatened march on my city from materializing tomorrow. It is a lot easier . . . to crush mob rule than to interfere with orderly conduct of our social and business life," he stated.

Mayor Shields also advised President Grace to continue operations at the Cambria works despite the governor's closing order.

At the same time, the fiery mayor flatly refused to obey Governor Earle's order to place Johnstown city police under state control during the emergency.

His refusal brought the declaration from Gov. Earle that Shields was a "bluffer" and a "convicted criminal."

"Whatever he says makes not the slightest impression on me," said the governor.

"Shields was convicted of a liquor charge and bribery. The president pardoned him because he was elected a mayor."

"If he had acted in a fair and sensible manner, this trouble never would have arisen," the governor added.

Governor Earle's action coincided with a report that 40,000 miners would march on Johnstown Sunday to encourage the steel strikers in the 24-day-old clash between John L. Lewis' C. I. O. and four independent steel companies—Republic, Bethlehem, Inland Steel and Youngstown Sheet and Tube company—over refusal of the latter to sign labor contracts.

"With the plant open," the governor said, "the assemblage of miners and strike sympathizers would constitute a powder magazine which would menace the community."

He said "I regret that President Grace has failed to accede to my request to relieve this dangerous situation and therefore I am declaring martial law in Johnstown."

Names Representative

He added he was appointing Colonel Augustine S. Janeway to be in charge as his personal representative. He is asking Major Lynn G. Adams of the state police, and Captain E. J. Henry of the highway patrol, to report to Colonel Janeway.

The governor said that national guardsmen would not be sent to Johnstown until they were needed. In the meantime the state police

Regents Sustain Dismissal of U. W. English Instructor

Madison —(AP)— The action of the University of Wisconsin English department for dismissal of Instructor William Card was sustained by the board of regents today on recommendation of President Clarence A. Dykstra.

At the same time the board unanimously adopted a resolution by Regent Clough Gates, Superior, for an investigation of complaints of friction between the junior and senior teaching staffs in all departments, especially the English department.

Two members of the teachers' union, Profs. W. G. Rice, Jr., and Walter Aagard, appeared before the board to oppose President Dykstra's conclusions on the dismissal of Card.

While Rice agreed that Card's union activities had nothing to do with the case and that a majority of a department has the right to suggest a discharge, he maintained the question of academic freedom was involved. Dykstra said it was not.

Expect Advances Will be Made in Social Security

District Administration Director Explains New Law at Convention

Greater advancements in the field of social security will be made this year because the government is confident of the public's support, Les Meyers, Green Bay, administration director of the act in this area, told members of the Wisconsin Association of Cemetery Superintendents and Officials at the closing meeting of their 2-day convention Friday afternoon at Hotel Northern.

"The Social Security act affects millions of people including the office workers in San Francisco, the canning workers in Alaska, the paper mill employes in Green Bay and the cotton mill hands in Massachusetts. These millions of people are affected by unemployment compensation, old age benefits, public assistance and aid to the needy," the speaker said.

The only part of the act under the direct control of the federal government is that providing old age benefits, Mr. Meyers said, because the state governments are cooperating by setting up laws governing unemployment compensation, assistance to the needy aged and blind and to dependent children.

Unemployment Insurance

Forty-five states, the district of Columbia, Hawaii and Alaska now have unemployment insurance laws and are administering them in cooperation with the federal government, the speaker stated. The old age benefit plan is in effect in all states and is administered entirely by the federal government.

The loss of the United States geographical frontier and the addition of the factory and machine are changes which have brought about the social security law, Mr. Meyers explained. People, instead of being pioneers and doing work for themselves, now sell their services or the articles which they make to others and use the money to buy other things, he stated.

"The introduction of machinery into American life is the second change which has made it necessary to provide protection against the hazards of living in a country full of factories. The hazards are not merely the danger of physical injury but include unemployment often caused by the invention of a new machine," he explained.

Search for Jobs

And so in order to protect wage earners in commerce and industry while they must search for new jobs or when they are old and do not desire to be dependent upon others, the social security law was passed.

"The first big job, that of establishing old age benefit accounts for workers is almost finished, and more than 27 million accounts have been set up. About 18,678,000 persons who are covered by a plan which will pay certain workers a sum to tide them over during periods of unemployment," he said.

Public assistance under the social security act means alleviating human misery and misfortune, the speaker explained, and this is carried out by assisting the aged, the blind and dependent children.

This phase of the plan was necessary to care for those persons who now are old and in need of assistance, Mr. Meyers said. Under this plan, the states and the federal government, working together, are caring for additional persons in a much better manner than either could do alone. At the end of 1935, about 406,000 of the aged were being helped under state plans and today, only a little more than a year later, federal aid makes it possible for the states to help more than a million aged persons, he explained.

"Wisconsin, under its social security cooperation, is receiving the following benefits: old age assistance to 36,000 persons and receiving $382,238.43 of federal funds for April; aid to 2,000 blind persons and receiving $60,452.60 of federal funds for the period from April 1 to June 30; aid to 21,000 dependent children and $270,320.08 in federal funds for the April 1 to June 30 period," Mr. Meyers stated.

After his talk, Mr. Meyers answered questions asked by the association members.

Edward Goodrick of the Los Angeles Bible Institute will speak on "Adam, Serpent, Why" at the morning service Sunday at New Appleton tabernacle, and on "The Millionth's Choice" in the evening. "Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?" is the subject of the lesson-sermon for Sunday at First Church of Christ, Scientist.

Plan to Attend Scout Jamboree

3 Clintonville Youths Will Join Valley Council Group at Appleton

Clintonville—Ivan Nordstrand, assistant scoutmaster of Troop 24, Harold and Howard Olk, members of Troop 23 of Clintonville, are planning to attend the national Boy Scout jamboree at Washington, D. C. The three local scouts will join a group from the Valley Council entraining at Appleton on June 28. The train will go to Chicago and then to Pittsburgh for an overnight stop. The following day the scouts will leave for Washington and will camp on the banks of the Potomac river with boys from the entire United States. While in the capital, the scouts will meet President Roosevelt and will visit a number of government buildings.

James Thomson, a member of Troop 23 of this city, will attend the International Boy Scout Jamboree to be held near Amsterdam, Holland, in July. James is spending the summer in Europe with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thomson.

About forty women attended the annual guest day party at Riverside Golf club Thursday afternoon. Golf and bridge were played and prizes were won by Mrs. A. G Behr for the lowest number of putts in the golf tourney; Mrs. Ed Buss for high score in bridge, and a special prize went to Mrs. E. C. Stubenvoll. The afternoon closed with the serving of lunch by Mesdames R. E. Knister, Earl Siebert, Joseph Stein, Arthur Campbell, W. T. Luedke, G. A. Seidel and Earl Dennison.

A Fidac program will entertain the American Legion auxiliary at its June meeting to be held Monday evening at the Knights of Columbus hall. Mrs. Harold Olk is the committee chairman.

The Junior auxiliary will hold its monthly meeting at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Past matrons and past patrons of the Order of Eastern Star will be special guests of the local chapter at its closing meeting of the season, Tuesday evening June 22. An obligation ceremony will be conducted during the evening.

Arthur Shannon of Blacksburg, Va., is a guest this week at the home of his cousin, J. R. Shannon and family in this city. The former is an instructor in chemical engineering at the Virginia state university.

WPA Recreation Summer Program Opens in County

Leaders Supervise Play in Various Parks and On Playgrounds

The WPA summer recreation program is in full swing throughout entire Outagamie county, according to Hubert J. Piette, supervisor, with people of all ages participating in organized recreation. Baseball, softball, horseshoe and tennis are the preferred forms of recreation at the present time.

Sewing clubs and other arts and crafts groups have been organized at parks and playgrounds, while social recreation groups are active with hikes, marshmallow and wiener roasts. Other groups keep busy with puppetry and 1-act plays.

Following are the leaders at parks and playgrounds who supervise recreation in the county: Appleton, Ray Ritzlaff, Erb park; Lawrence Mackin, Pierce park; Miss Beverly Maxwell, Pierce park; Walter Wolf, Fourth ward playground; Miss Ruth Anderson, NYA program at Erb park.

Leaders

Little Chute, Joseph Hammen and Miss Verone Mielke, ball park; Kaukauna, Miss Eva Hoffman and Milford Spaulding, La Follette park; Rinert Wenzel, supervisor of dramatics and music in county; Shiocton, Charles De Long, ball park; Hortonville, Gilbert Rodgers, playground and craft shop; and Bear Creek, Edward Hurley, playground.

After July 1 a new leader will be put on at Little Chute and Joseph Hammen will be transferred to Seymour. Two additional men will be put to work in Appleton parks.

Over 60 entries have been secured for the WPA tennis tournament. Those eligible are boys between 12 and 18 years of age. Boys' softball teams are being organized with youths up to 12 years of age and up to 16 years of age. Attendance at Pierce park is approximately 500 daily and at Erb park, 400 daily.

A married men's softball league will be organized of men from the various wards if those interested will contact Supervisor Piette. Three wards already have signified interest in such a league.

Bernard Mauel Is Hurt in Accident

Taken to Clintonville Hospital After Accident At Embarrass

Marion — Bernard Mauel, son of Mrs. Anna Mauel, was seriously injured Friday morning in an auto accident when he failed to turn a corner on Highway 22, in the village of Embarrass, and drove onto the railroad track, and ran into a freight car. Mr. Mauel was taken to the Clintonville hospital. He is believed to have suffered internal injuries.

Members of St. John's Lutheran church will hold their annual picnic on Sunday, in the Sam Rockat woods. There will be English church services in the morning. A plate dinner will be served to the public. There will be music and different kinds of entertainment during the day.

A son was born Thursday to Mr. and Mrs. Herman Westphal at their home.

Kenneth Bowers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bowers, had his appendix removed at St. Elizabeth hospital Appleton, Thursday.

A son was born Wednesday to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Braun at their home.

The variety store which until now occupied the Hangartner building will move to their new location, the building, formerly the Dewaud hardware store, over the weekend.

Funeral services for John Mauel, Sr. who died Monday, were conducted from St. Marys Catholic church Thursday morning. The requiem mass was sung by the Rev. Father J. J. Quella. Burial in St. Mary's cemetery. Pall bearers were grandsons of Mr. and Mrs. Mauel.

On Sunday a class of 10 will be confirmed at the South Dupont Evangelical Lutheran church by the Rev. W. H. Lange. Those to be confirmed are: Phylis Buschke, Herbert Knaach, Naomi Danke, Arlene Lucht, Ruth Much, Ruth Roland, Ethelyn Kussman, Hazel Heiman, Lucille Reisenberg and Alvin Much.

May Stock Waters In Chilton Area With Game Fish

Conservation Plans Investigation to Determine Possibility

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — Famous old fishing grounds on the Manitowoc river at Chilton, remembered by Calumet county old timers as the home of "the big ones" decades ago, may once more produce game fish, Assemblyman Henry Hupfauf of Calumet county reported Friday after a conference with conservation department officials on the restocking of the Chilton waters.

Hupfauf said that he had been assured by game fish experts of the department that the possibilities of the Chilton waters for restocking operations would be investigated, and that a man from Oshkosh headquarters would be dispatched to Chilton immediately to make a survey. It is possible that planting may be begun in the river this summer, Hupfauf said.

The Darboy assemblyman explained that the droughts of recent years have resulted in low water which has killed off many of the fish. Now residents of the area are suggesting that the state furnish pickerel, bass and possibly other varieties for planting in the river. Just what species will be planted will depend on the results of the survey, he said.

Conservation organizations, which have already proceeded independently with the planting of fish in other sections of the county, support this newest effort to restore fishing grounds in the area, Hupfauf said.

Adopt Bill Directing Extension of Highway

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — The Wisconsin senate Friday passed and sent to the assembly a bill which would direct the state highway commission to extend and relocate Highway 32 in Shawano and Oconto counties. The bill, supported by the county boards of both counties, was received in the assembly Friday and was placed on the calendar for action next week.

The proposed relocation would be from the limits of the village of Pulaski north to Green Valley, north to an intersection with Highway 22 in Oconto county.

"This bill is important due to the fact that Oconto county has undertaken an extensive road improvement program as the result of a referendum on a bond issue for highways of $120,000," said the author, Senator Michael F. Kresky of Green Bay.

600 Agents Will Attend Insurance Homecoming Meets

Home Mutual Company Plans Session in Appleton Next Friday

About 600 insurance agents and their wives are expected to attend three homecoming conventions sponsored by the Home Mutual Insurance company at Appleton, Eau Claire and Madison next week to welcome Gordon A. Bubolz, company president. Mr. Bubolz has been on a leave of absence for the last year when he served as associate economist in the insurance department of the farm credit administration at Washington.

Next week he will resume his position as president of the Home Mutual Insurance company and secretary of the Home Mutual Casualty company. The Appleton homecoming convention will be held for northeastern district agents Friday, June 25.

Franklin C. Jesse, vice president of the company, is general chairman of the arrangements committee for the meeting at Appleton and he is being assisted by Mrs. Walter Brummund, assistant secretary, and Miss Alta Pahl.

The southern district convention will be held at Madison Tuesday, June 22, and the western and central district session at Eau Claire Wednesday, June 23.

Home Mutuals which was incorporated in 1900 now operates in 71 counties in Wisconsin. Julius Bubolz company founder, still serves as secretary. This year marks the company's thirty-eighth year of operation in tornado and hail insurance and the third year in auto casualty insurance. The company has about 25,000 policyholders and approximately $100,000,000 of insurance in force. Its assets total more than $300,000 with a surplus to policyholders of about $100,000.

Carnival Topic at Chamber Meeting

Outboard Motor Races Again to be Scheduled at Fremont

Fremont —The board of directors of the chamber of commerce held a meeting Thursday evening at the village hall to make further plans for the tenth annual water carnival to be held at Fremont July 31 and Aug 1.

The National Outboard Motor association, sanctioned by the Wissin Boating association, has made arrangements with the local chamber of commerce for outboard motor races, under direct charge of one of the national association officers.

Several new stunts are being planned in addition to the usual program. Plans also were formulated at the meeting to make improvements to the Fremont park. The park was purchased last year by the chamber of commerce from the Women Improvement club. Another meeting will be held next week.

An all-day outing by cars to the Wisconsin Dells was taken by members of the Wolf River Wonder Workers Four-H-club, their parents and other guests, Friday.

Micheal Decker, Hinsdale, Ill., new owner of the Wolf River hotel, has made many improvements in the building. Charles Lassie, brother-in-law of Mr. Decker, is operating the hotel this season.

Visitors are Urged to Observe Hospital Rules

An appeal for the cooperation of hospital visitors in the observance of regular visiting hours and maintenance of quiet in corridors of the building was made today by Sisters in charge of St. Elizabeth hospital. Observance of the rules, they pointed out, is necessary for the health and comfort of the patients. Regular visiting hours are from 2 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon and from 7 o'clock until 8:30 in the evening.

Enforcement of Headlight Dimming Law Is Demanded In Assembly Resolution

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—Assemblyman Mark S. Catlin of Appleton, representative of the first Outagamie county district, demanded in a resolution presented in the assembly Friday that sheriffs, city police and all other law enforcement officers enforce the state laws providing the dimming of lights on motor vehicles "as a means of lessening accidents on the public highways in Wisconsin". The resolution was passed without debate and sent to the senate.

Catlin said that in his frequent trips from Appleton to Madison for legislative sessions during the last five months he has observed that few motorists comply with the state law requiring dim lights is passing other vehicles "and it is time that the public be made conscious of the existence of and the necessity for these safety laws and the necessity of strict compliance if highway accidents are to be reduced".

Accidents Increase

"Accidents on the public highways in this state are increasing to an alarming extent, and more than 85 per cent of our highway accidents occur after dark and a great number of them are due directly to the failure of the owners and operators to properly equip such vehicles with lights or to operate the lights as provided by law", Catlin declared.

Catlin called attention to a chapter in the state statutes which requires that operators of all motor vehicles on the highways when approaching and about to pass other vehicles dim the lights so that the rays will not blind the approaching driver.

Catlin proposed that the contents of his resolution be conveyed to the state highway commission, the state inspection bureau, county highway committees, sheriffs of counties and police departments of all Wisconsin cities and that these officials "be requested and directed forthwith, by whatever methods they may deem proper and effective, to enforce rigidly the provisions of the Wisconsin statutes relating to lights and the dimming or depression of lights on motor vehicles as a means of lessening accidents on the public highways in Wisconsin".

County Waiting For Decision on Future WPA Funds

Unless Congress Acts, Board Will Meet and Adjourn July 12

Whether the Outagamie county board will meet July 12 for the transaction of business, or merely convene long enough to adjourn until August, will depend on what the federal government does about WPA funds after July 1.

The principal reason for Scheduling a meeting in July involve continuation of the farm-to-market road project and the proposed construction of a new hangar at the Outagamie county airport. If additional WPA funds are available after July 1, the board probably will order construction of the hangar and further deliveries of crused stone under the road project.

Appleton's request for a 50,000 paving appropriation was laid over at the last session of the board come to a vote in the July or August meeting of the supervisors.

Unless definite information on available WPA funds is available July 12, however, the board probably will merely meet and adjourn until sometime in the following month.

Little Chute Resident Leaves $16,000 Estate

The will of Mrs. Annie Kilsdonk, Little Chute, disposing of an estate estimated at $16,000 and including $11,000 in personal property and $5,000 in real estate, has been admitted for probate in the court of Judge F. V. Heinemann. Under general provisions of the will, the estate will be divided among three sons, Frank, Henry and Wilbert Kilsdonk, a daughter, Anna Kilsdonk, and children of a deceased son, Martin.

SCHEDULE HEARINGS

Hearings on applications for old age assistance have been scheduled by the county pension committee for June 30 at the courthouse. Supervisor William Conradt, Bovina, is head of the committee.

Quiz by Congress May Show Unfair Tax Law Features

Lawrence Cites System to Be Imposed on District of Columbia

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington —Perhaps intending only to sensationalize tax avoidances and evasions, the inquiry just begun by a congressional committee might yet serve a constructive purpose by seeking to discover just why the citizen is developing toward his government a strange feeling of hostility.

Lawrence

In theory, all citizens must obey the law, but it does happen that, when a law is unfair, inequitable and vicious, the people begin to nullify it. The most conspicuous example of this, of course, was the attitude of many citizeins during the late prohibition era.

There is, of course, no possible justification for the person who evades the law. There may be plenty of justification for the person who avoids the tax laws, as a matter of fact, there may some day be logic on the side of the citizens of the District of Columbia, for instance, if they even go as far as to refuse to obey the tax laws imposed upon them.

Our forefathers dumped a lot of tea in Massachusetts bay and refused to pay a stamp tax because they said "taxation without representation is tyranny." Today the congress of the United States is about to impose a vicious tax system on the people of the city of Washington and this, too, without granting the people of the national capital the right to vote for members of congress through whom their views could be expressed directly on the floors of both houses of congress. If ever there was a justiifcation for tax avoidance, it is to be found right here at the seat of government.

May Feel Aggrieved

But there are citizens outside the national capital who also may feel aggrieved as they learn more and more about the unfairness of the taxation policies of the national administration. Any administration which bluntly refuses even to listen to the pleas of hardship growing out of inequitable and unfair tax laws and merely shrugs its shoulders, so to speak, and says, "oh well we need the revenue," is due for a disillusionment and awakening some day.

Take the case of the undistributed surplus taxes, one of the most unfair and destructive tax levies ever introduced. Small businesses are rapidly being broken down by it while strong monopolies reap the benefit. Protest after protest has come to Washington, but influential members of the congressional finance committees say indifferently, "but the government needs the revenue."

Paraphrased this means: "We, the national administration, exercise the right to do as we please to the citizen, even to the extent of ruining his business, and, while the law may work a hardship, we need the money for boondoggling just the same."

Under such circumstances, the citizen says to himself: "The government is unfair—I'll beat the game if I can."

Sheer Hypocrisy

Members of congress and of the executive branch of the government who lately have been criticizing the citizenry for alleged lack of morality and defects in patriotism because of tax avoidance know in their hearts that this is the sheerest hypocrisy and that there isn't a single man inside the government who doesn't take all the deductions the law allows or doesn't contrive to get the better of the tax collector by legal means.

The tax inequities as well as iniquities are numerous. They are well known to all who have studied the tax rulings of the government under this and past administrations. The theory has been that the taxpayer is always wrong and that the government is always right. The king-can-do-no-wrong idea has nowhere been more slavishly worshipped in the treasury department in applying the income tax laws. Equity is an unknown virtue and assess - the - taxpayer because-we-need-the-revenue is now the rule rather than the exception.

Must Pay Insurance

Another serious practice is the way the precedents have been built up and the refusal of congress or the bureau of internal revenue to reverse themselves when a mistake has been clearly demonstrated. Take, for instance, the question of business deductions. Interest on a loan at the bank is deductible as a business expense. But if the bank demands that a key executive or inventor or someone who is an asset to the business should have his life insured to protect the loan so that the bank might be reimbursed if a valuable personal asset is suddenly lost by accident, the business must take out such a policy and bear the expense. Yet the treasury doesn't allow this as a deduction for income tax purposes. It happens to be a part of the cost of carrying the loan, but for years the treasury has refused to recognize the simple equity behind such a claim for deduction.

Countless examples of this kind of loose thinking may be cited. Congress, for instance, is chiefly responsible for an unwillingness to treat a human being, with limited earning power, as different from a business or manufacturing concern, which may take depreciation on its plant and equipment as a business expense.

Thus Margaret Mitchell who wrote "Gone With the Wind" had a lucky break when she amassed a nice sum out of royalties, but if she acquired $400,000, she would have to give half of it to the government in taxes. She doesn't turn out best sellers every year like a factory does automobiles. Yet the government regards her income as something to be penalized, while the manufacturer takes depreciation as an expense on his plant or equipment. The mental equipment of the human being with earning power, to be sure, may diminish or may be curtailed by illness or death, but the earned income is taxed virtually the same as the unearned income which comes out of clipping coupons of inherited wealth.

Pay on Earnings

Mr. Roosevelt, for instance, inherited a substantial income. He didn't have to work for it as did other men in America, but the self-made men who rose out of the slums by dint of hard work must give the government virtually the same amount of taxes on their earnings as do the coupon clippers. There is, of course, a small credit on the present tax returns for earned as distinguished from unearned incomes, but it is infinitesmal.

Then take the situation with respect to charity deductions. A man might contribute money to a church in Hindustan or to some local welfare agency of limited scope and yet get a legal deduction, but if he contributes the same amount of money to a vital thing like the National Civil Service Reform league, which attempts to fight the "spoils" system and similar cancers in the heart of democracy, no such deductions are allowed.

The executive branch of the government arbitrarily decides what is and what is not an educational cause and makes it own rules as to what is or is not deductible in a charitable or educational classification.

Congress at Fault

But the records are filled with examples of injustice and arbitrariness. Most of the mistakes are due to the failure of congress to write fair tax laws. The income tax personnel itself is honest and well intentioned but limited by tax statutes. There is hardly a thing which will be uncovered in the series of tax avoidances to be discloshed in the present inquiry which hasn't been known to congressional committees for the last 10 years. Cogress has known all along the loopholes, but it has ignored something far more fundamental—the principle of equity and fairness which, if abused, merely leads to tax avoidance on a large scale and ultimately to nullification.

Human beings resent unfair laws —they always have and they always will—and they may not some day regard it as a falling from virtue to defy an unconscionable administration, especially one that spends its money and its powers on one group to the detriment of the other and actually denies the tax paying group a voice in the government. The old slogan that "taxation without representation is typanny" was never better illustrated than in the deaf ears being turned to the small business men who are asked to pay burdensome and inequitable taxes today as the monopolistically inclined, with amassed surpluses, stand by awaiting the inevitable bankruptcies or receivership of their weaker competitors.

Investments of Pension Fund Amount to $24,500

Reinvestment of $1,000 in matured bonds during the last year ending May 1 left $24,500 in investments for the firemen's pension fund, according to the annual report made by City Treasurer Joseph Kox. Receipts for the year totaled $9,175.69 and disbursements $9,296.55, leaving a balance of $3,-213.14 as compared to $3,334.05 a year ago.

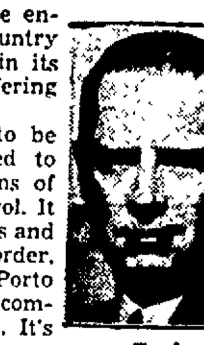

Receipts for the year were: 1 per cent of wages $524.25, interest on deposits $1.91, interest on securities held $1,065.95, bonds matured $1,000, 2 per cent of insurance premium from state $2,613.53 and tax levy $3,970. Disbursements were: pension orders paid $8,241.69, deposit insurance $42.93, investments $1,000 and premium and accrued interest on investments $11.93.

Unions Have No Right To Drive Men--Pegler

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

Washington—Quite a few of our heavy-duty philosophers have been saying lately that the steel trouble is not a mere dispute, but a war, and in that case the army and navy should be notified at once, because war is supposed to be their business and not an affair for the cops, the Elks and the parent-teachers association.

War should be a national affair, not a private enterprise, and it is against the safety of the country to permit an independent war to proceed within its borders, scuffing up the countryside and interfering with the innocent activities of the citizens.

Pegler

However, the term war in this case seems to be merely a convenient figure of speech selected to justify outrage, accidental damage and violations of incidental to a fight which has gone out of control. It is, rather oddly, the pet alibi of those labor-fakers and pub-crawling liberals who are all for law and order, and who can bleed for the civil rights of the Porto Ricans, but in the event of excessive conduct committed under orders by a union, say, "Too bad. It's war!"

It is my rather juvenile belief that a violation of law or a denial of civil liberties is as bad on one side as on another, and there I see no choice between coercion by Henry Ford and coercion by some one from Union Square. And while it is easy to agree that labor has taken a terrible beating from the Harlan deputies and other spectacular animals of the Nazi stripe, it is impossible to endorse rough stuff against nominally free American workmen, even though it be done ostensibly for their own good.

Agreed that no employer has a right to punish a man for joining a union, it follows that nobody else has a right to tell him that, by God, he must, and that if he doesn't join and pay tribute out of his earnings, he won't be allowed to work at all. If the employer has no right—and the law says he has no right—to snoop and spy on the man's private affairs and harrass him and his wife, and maybe pat him on the head with a sawed-off pool cue, then neither has anyone else that right, and he deserves the same protection from both sources of danger.

Unfortunate, however, it is coming to be said by parties who claim to sorrow for the toiler that if the employer resorts to abuse that is an outrage, as it is by unanimous consent, but that if a man is blacklisted, starved and pushed around in the name of progress and labor organization, his civil liberties are unimportant against the desires of so many. The desires of the many may be more accurately described in some cases as the personal ambitions of a few but, in any event, the sole, individual workman's civil liberty has not yet been written out of the constitution, and is not to be legislated out of existence by anyone's claim that a state of lawlessness constitutes war.

Government Should Investigate Unions

I may be a little ahead of my time in proposing that the government, when it gets through protecting the individual from the abuse and exactions, espionage and coercive pressure of the boss, then should turn its attention to similar safeguards against the unions. That time must come, however, because otherwise the labor organization will become a free-lance dictatorship operated within the government and under its protection, but without the responsibility of government. The enormous treasury which labor organization will amass will become a great political force whose effect might wipe out the liberty of those from whom it was exacted through a private taxing authority.

But my topic is the utter cynicism of men who protest their respect for human rights and for the law as it affects their opponents in thought and action, but waive all this when consistency would be inconvenient. This is of the Soviets and Hitler and the Duce, whose morals and honesty are indistinguishable, and whose method and temperament are so much alike that they would save lives and trouble by getting together. But we have been viewing the affairs of the crazy countries so long and reading so much of their brutal thought that a slight infection has set in in our own country. And it is worst in, of all people, an element who profess to be liberal or progressive, and, anyway, human, but count a toiler as no toiler, but some very low sort of vermin and beyond protection of the laws merely because he will not do as they think best for him.

Pioneers Will be Honored at Picnic

County Society Members To Attend Hortonville Homecoming Event

Outagamie county pioneers will be honored Sunday afternoon during the homecoming and pioneers picnic sponsored by the Hortonville Commercial club at Hortonville fair grounds. About 100 members of the Outagamie County Pioneer and Historical society are expected to attend.

The homecoming picnic will get underway at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Sunday's program will open with morning services in all village churches and an industrial parade at 11 o'clock in the morning. A basket picnic lunch will be held at the grounds and a band concert will start at 1 o'clock.

Special awards will be given pioneers at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon and entertainers will present a program on the platform. A speaker will address the crowd at about 3:45. Band concerts and dancing will feature the evening's entertainment.

Make Repairs at Scout Camp at Gardner Dam

Walter G. Dixon, Valley Council Boy Scout executive, and junior scoutleaders are expected to return today from Gardner dam where they have made minor repairs at the scout camp. William Heckrodt, Menasha, Robert Schroeder, Neenah, Carlyle Runge, Seymour, and Anton Gerardon, Appleton, accompanied Mr. Dixon to the camp Wednesday morning.

The summer camping season at Gardner dam will open July 18 and continue until the latter part of August. The camp was originally scheduled to open July 11 but the opening was deferred because Mr. Dixon and other scoutleaders will not return from the national jamboree at Washington until July 13.

OFFICIAL PROCEEDINGS OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION

June 14, 1937

A special meeting of the board was called to discuss whether the mason work in the new high school building between the foundation and the first layer of brick is acceptable.

Mr. Gmeiner called the meeting to order, a waiver having been signed.

Members present: Messrs. Gmeiner, Royer, Behnke, Hegner, Wood, and Benton of the Board were present.

Messrs. Smith and Brandt, architects, Mr. Little, superintendent of building, and two of the contractor's superintendents were also present.

Mr. Gmeiner laid the matter before those present, stating that much criticism had arisen concerning the matter of laying tile on the foundation before the first layer of brick was laid.

After a lengthy discussion on the part of all present it was suggested that the following procedure might eliminate the trouble anticipated to the board members, but definite action was deferred until the regular meeting to be held the following evening.

1. Clean the joint thoroughly.

2. The surface shall be properly prepared to assure perfect adhesion by coating with Portland cement and water.

3. The joints shall be tuck-pointed with Portland cement mortar with enough hydrated lime to render same waterproof.

4. The surface of the joint shall be water-proofed up to a point a quarter of an inch above the bottom joint and onto the lower course of brick.

A discussion of the concrete tests was taken up and the Board requested that the concrete be made more uniform.

An informal discussion of the corner-stone took place, but action was deferred until the regular meeting.

Meeting adjourned.

June 15, 1937.

The regular weekly meeting of the Board was called to order by Mr. Gmeiner.

All members were present.

The following letter was presented to the Board:

Smith & Brandt,
Zuelke Building,
Appleton, Wis.
Re: Senior High School,
Appleton, Wis.

Gentlemen:

In reply to your letter of June 10th, we will allow a total credit of $36.00 for the omission of four floor drains in the air tunnel under the Academic section of the new Senior school.

This would leave two drains installed at the points you mention in your letter.

Yours very truly,
P. J. GALLAGHER & SONS.
By R. E. Gallagher.

Mr. Royer moved that the offer of Gallagher & Sons be accepted and the architects authorized to tell them to proceed with the work. Seconded by Mr. Behnke and carried.

The Maintenance committee presented its report, which was accepted on motion of Mrs. Shannon, seconded by Mr. Benton.

Mr. Herman Behl, janitor at the high school was transferred to the Jefferson school to take the place of Mr. Prasher, who resigned because of ill health, and Mr. George Biechler was appointed in his place at the high school.

It was decided to repair the furnace at the Richmond school.

Mrs. Shannon moved that Mr. Giovannini and some First grade teacher be employed at $5.00 per day this summer to work on the First grade reading material for use in the fall. Seconded by Mr. Wood and carried.

Mr. Wood moved that we use the Million Mile mat or its equivalent in the lobbies of the new Senior High school. Seconded by Mr. Royer and carried.

It was reported that the conduits for the telephones have been installed at the new high school.

The board then proceeded to discuss the matter of the mortar joint at the new Senior High school. After a very lengthy discussion of all aspects of the case Mr. Wood moved that we accept the mortar joint as laid under the first or bottom course of brick, provided that the contractor for general construction work will furnish a maintenance bond in the sum of one thousand dollars to guard against any defects occurring in the said mortar joint.

Mr. Gmeiner, aye; Mr. Royer, voted aye after registering a protest against such type of work; Mr. Behnke, aye; Mrs. Shannon aye; Mr. Benton aye; Dr. Hegner, no.

Meeting adjourned.

CARRIE E. MORGAN,
Secretary.

List Prizes for Old Car Parade At Jace Picnic

Event Will be Held Monday Afternoon, July 5, at Erb Park

Those old cars which are being saved as antiques by many persons probably will bring their owners a cash award if entered in the Appleton Junior Chamber of Commerce old car parade Monday afternoon, July 5, at Erb park. The parade is a feature of the closing day program of the Jace 3-day picnic which will be held Saturday, Sunday and Monday, July 3, 4 and 5.

The only rule set up by the parade committee is that drivers must dress in custumes which harmonize with the age of car. Thus a peron entering a 1910 model care must wear clothing which drivers used around the year 1910.

Entries, which must be in by Monday afternoon, June 26, can be made with John Witt, Walter Bergman or Wilmer Gruett. The parade will be formed in the afternoon at Erb park and will pass before a judges stand. First prize will be $15 with the second prize being $10 and third prize $5.

Have Entered Cars

Several Appleton residents already have entered their old cars in the parade.

A feature of the parade Saturday afternoon July 3, which will officially open the 3-day picnic, will be the bicycle parade section sponsored by the Schlafer Hardware company. More than 350 boys and girls are expected to decorate their bikes and enter them in the parade.

As the bicycle cavalcade passes the reviewing stand on College avenue, judges will select the 12 best girls' and the 12 best boys' bicycles entered. This group then will parade Sunday afternoon at Erb park in competition for the final standings.

As arranged now, prizes will be awarded for the best decorated bicycle and rider, the best stunt rider and for the funniest costumes. If enough older type bikes are entered, prizes also will be awarded.

Entry Blanks

Entry blanks for the parade may be obtained at the Schlafer Hardware company store on College avenue. All entries must be made before 9 o'clock Saturday morning, July 3. All boys and girls registering will receive prizes.

The first prize in the boys' division will be a built in speedometer and this will go to the boy having the best decorated bicycle and wearing the best costume. A fore wheel brake will be awarded to the girl having the best decorated bicycle and wearing the best costume.

The second prize which will go to the second best decorated bike and rider in the boy's class is a set of headlights. A similar second prize will be awarded in the girls' division.

In the stunt division, a speedometer will be awarded and installed on the winner's bicycle. An electric horn system will be awarded the boy or girl wearing the funniest costume.

DEATHS

MRS. ALEX ROBEDEAU

Mrs. Alex Robedeau, 216 W. Atlantic street, died at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon after a 2-day illness. Born in Milwaukee, Mrs. Robedeau came to Neenah as a child and had lived for the last 36 years in Appleton where she has been associated with the Pettibone-Peabody company for the last eight years.

Adjourn Hearing on Encroachment Charge

A public service commission hearing on a complaint that the Patten Paper company has encroached upon the bed of the Fox river at the company's mill here was adjourned indefinitely Friday afternoon, shortly after taking of testimony had started

The complaint alleged that the company encroached on the river bottom by filling and by allowing mill refuse to accumulate, but company representatives denied the charge. F. F. Wettengel, the first witness, was on the stand, when adjournment was taken. Paul V. Cary, trustee for the Patten Paper company, gave his assurance that nothing had been or would be deposited in the river at the mill during his incumbency as trustee.

Duffy and Reilly Among Conferees With Roosevelt

Both to be Present at Meetings at Jefferson Island Club

Washington — (AP) — Senator F. Ryan Duffy of Wisconsin, one of the committee of five senators who invited the president to the Jefferson Island club in Chesapeake bay next weekend, says it will be purely a social outing—a chance for Mr. Roosevelt to get better acquainted with some congressmen he has never met or doesn't know very well.

Republicans and Wisconsin Progressives, however, wondered if the affair might be another political maneuver by the administration. Representative Michael Reilly, Fond du Lac, Wis., Democrat, has received an invitation, and Duffy will be among the few senators to be on hand as a welcoming committee for the president when he arrives at the island.

Some fast traveling is in prospect for Senator Duffy. He has a number of engagements in Wisconsin the week after next, which will necessitate his leaving Jefferson Island next Saturday, after welcoming the president the preceding day to catch a plane for Milwaukee.

Many Engagements

He has a tentative engagement to attend the Wisconsin State Young Democrats' convention at Portage, Wis., June 26. The next day he will be at the annual summer festival and picnic of the Federation of German Societies at Milwaukee's Washington park, and on July 1 he will attend the Irish Good Fellowship meeting at Green Bay, Wis. On July 3, he will be at the seventeenth triennial national turnfest of the Swiss-American Gymnastic association at Monroe, Wis. The next day he speaks at the sixth annual convention of the national Italian-American Civic league in Milwaukee.

Representative Gardner Withrow of LaCrosse, Wis., went before the house rules committee this week to plead for a chance to pass his bill providing for improving the Black river at LaCrosse.

The rivers and harbors committee already had approved the measure but Withrow needs a special rule from the rules committee to put the bill ahead of other pending legislation.

Hopes for Vote

Withrow was favorably received by the rules committee and voiced confidence he would get the bill before the house for a vote at an early date. It calls for dredging the Black river one and four-tenths miles north of LaCrosse to deepen the channel to 9 feet. This would permit construction of terminal facilities expected to be needed with completion of the 9-foot channel project in the upper Mississippi river.

Senator Robert LaFollette, Jr., Wisconsin, came to the defense of mayors of cities who in some instances have been accused of padding relief rolls to obtain projects. LaFollette's statement was made during senate debate this week on the $1,500,000,000 relief bill when an amendment was under consideration to compel localities able to do so to shoulder 40 per cent of the cost of the project.

"It was not the mayors and it was not the governors who suggested that the federal administration should withdraw from the field of direct relief," LaFollette pointed out. "The step was taken on the recommendation of the president and at that time it was stated the federal government would assume responsibility for the employables.

Mayors Not to Blame

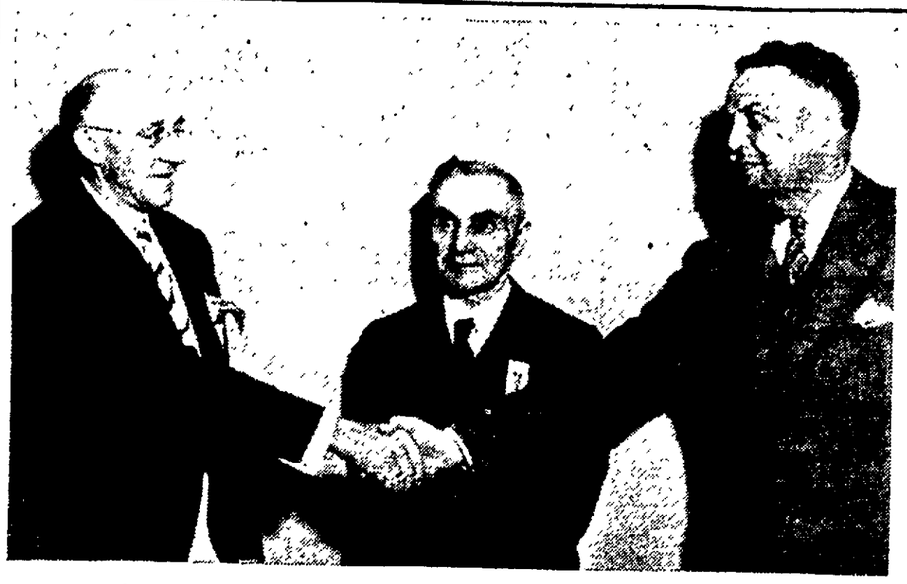

"The federal government has not carried out its promise. So I do not think we are in a position, legally or morally, to attack the mayors of the country for creating this difficulty. Nor do I think we are in any position to charge them with maladministration or waste or graft."

LaFollette claimed the works program had restored employment, has declined "relatively more than total unemployment," in declaring the $1,500,000,000 was not adequate. Of the many reasons for the large number of unemployed, LaFollette said:

"Now persons seeking employment each year number 560,000 in excess of deaths since 1929. 4,000,000 young men and women seeking employment have come of employment age. Another reason for this apparent discrepancy between the rise in production and the continuance of a high level of relief load is the fact that according to the best estimates available, the productivity of labor employed in manufacturing has increased 25 per cent in the last six years. Obviously unless total output increases accordingly unemployment will result from these technological changes."

LaFollette said the proposed amendment would work "untold hardship upon those who have suffered most during the depression," and declared even with the $1,500,000,000 appropriation, reductions in WPA rolls will be effective next month.

Wisconsin, he said, is slated for a cut of 6,254 by reducing the 45,647 on the rolls as of May 8 to 39,393 effective July 15.

CEMETERY SUPERINTENDENTS ELECT OFFICERS

Government Should be Referee in Labor Disputes, LaFollette Thinks

Cambridge, Mass.—(AP)—Governor Philip F. LaFollette of Wisconsin told Harvard Business School Alumni last night it was his opinion government should act as a referee in labor fights.

"A government should make it its business to intervene against whichever side hits below the belt," he said, "and should be against the bully and the bullhead whether they happen to be employers or employes."

LaFollette, described America's material resources a century ago as "so vast they could be developed easily and satisfactorily by individuals working independently."

Today, he said, with the nation richer than ever the interdependence of commercial and industrial enterprises demands coordinated efforts to utilize those riches.

"Our pressing problem," he said, "is to maintain coordination and continuity and at the same time preserve American initiative and individualism."

Commending the principle of collective bargaining, LaFollette cited Wisconsin's workmen's compensation, unemployment insurance and labor relations laws as examples of collective effort which have preserved individual effort.

While he declared he favored collective bargaining, he said "labor has no more right than management to coerce and intimidate workers or employes."

LaFollette characterized the Republican party as "sterile or any program to preserve and foster the homely virtues of the simple life in an age of mass production," and said he sighted "a new political alignment definitely on the way."

Democratic leadership he criticized as ignoring "methods which are essential to preserve the distinguished qualities of American individualism."

Rain Predicted Tonight, Sunday

Little Change in Temperature Likely Over The Weekend

Mostly cloudy tonight and Sunday, showers with local thunderstorms probable and little change in temperature is the forecast of the United States Weather bureau for Appleton and vicinity over the weekend

There was a brief sprinkle of rain shortly before noon today but a short time later skies had partly cleared. The temperature was up to 83 degrees at noon on the roof of the Post-Crescent building. Maximum and minimum temperatures of 81 and 61 degrees were reported in the last 24 hours preceding 9 o'clock this morning at the power plant of the Wisconsin Michigan Power company.

Highest and lowest temperatures yesterday were reported by the Associated Press at El Paso 102, Concordia 98, Yellowstone 44 and Winnemucca 46.

WISCONSIN WEATHER

GENERAL WEATHER

Showers have occurred during the last 24 hours over the northeastern states and over sections of the upper Mississippi and Missouri valleys and western Wisconsin, but fair weather is general this morning over the southern states and over the central and southern plains states and Rocky mountains.

It is now slightly warmer over most of the upper Lakes, but elsewhere temperature changes have not been important

Mostly cloudy weather with probable showers and thunderstorms is expected in this section during the next 24 hours, with mild temperature

Demand Pardon For Imprisoned Vote Recounters

Efforts to Force Legislative Action Start Feud At Lansing

Lansing, Mich. —(AP)—An attempt to place the legislature on record as demanding that Governor Murphy pardon state Senator A. J. Wilkowski and other imprisoned election recounters convicted of fraud stirred up a feud today between administration forces in the house of representatives and a rebel bloc that demanded the pardons.

Administrative forces managed to keep the resolution in committee, where it died. The rebel group, led by Representative John F. Hamilton, Democrat, Detroit, held one of the governor's pet bills in a committee where it also was killed. The measure would create a new finance department to keep state department expenditures within budgets.

A stormy caucus of house Democrats brought the trouble to a head. Persons who attended the meeting said friends of Wilkowski at one time demanded that the governor be "summoned" before them to explain his reasons for not having pardoned the recounters already.

As a compromise a three-man committee, composed of Representatives Fred Gartner, Harry Glass, Jr., and Clark J. Adams, was dispatched by the caucus to confer with the governor. Murphy was quoted as having told them the Wilkowski case would be considered on its merits at the proper time, and that house threats would not swerve him.

Representative Philip J. Rahoi, Iron Mountain, succeeded in reviving his labor relations bill and the house passed it, sending it to the senate. The measure, intended by Rahoi as a substitute for Governor Murphy's labor relations bill, provides simply for sole recognition of labor unions having a majority membership and outlawing company unions. It lacks the administration features for curbing strikes that threaten public safety or welfare, and for assisting in prompt settlement.

LaCrosse Officials Visit Disposal Plant

L. J. Kaiser, La Crosse city comptroller, Carl Wahlstrom, La Crosse sewage plant superintendent, and H. T. Rudgal, resident engineer of the firm constructing the plant, spent the last two days in Appleton inspecting the local plant and securing operation data. The La Crosse sewage plant will begin operations within the next few weeks. The officials also visited plants at Kaukauna, Neenah, Menasha, Oshkosh, Little Chute and Green Bay.

It Is Said--

That more than a small part of the thousands of dollars paid to Outagamie county farmers in federal soil conservation payments this month found its way back to the courthouse in the form of real estate tax payments. Some of the farmers obtained their checks on the second floor of the courthouse, endorsed them, and took them immediately to the first floor office of the county treasurer.

That Clarence Baetz, superintendent of the city sewage disposal plant, is having success with his experimental garden at the plant. Radishes planted in a lot covered with sludge from the plant are about three times as large as those planted in a nearby plot of ordinary soil.

Personals

Mrs. William H. Maves, 110 E. Randall street, who submitted to an operation Thursday morning at St. Elizabeth Hospital, is reported to be improving slowly. Mrs. J. R. Wuerger, DePere, is spending several days at the Maves home.

Solons Puzzled Over LaFollette Tax Proposals

Expected It Would be Necessary to Find New Sources of Revenue

Madison — (AP) — The announcement by the LaFollette administration that there would be no new budget taxes the next two years, except the emergency levies on incomes and dividends paid during the current biennium, left many members of the legislature wondering what it was all about.

After the finance committee and the floor leaders had estimated normal tax receipts at $46,000,000, or nearly $20,000,000 less than was needed to balance the approved budget, the administration delivered a master stroke with a simple bill that took very little time to draft.

It was lifted bodily out of the emergency tax statute enacted in 1935 and practically all that had to be done was to change a few dates to make the 60 per cent surtax on incomes and the 2½ per cent privilege dividend tax expire on July 1, 1939, instead of 1937.

Figures Confusion

In round figures these levies were estimated to raise less than half the sum which was supposed to be needed to balance the approved budget of $66,500,000.

The difference, Governor LaFollette was able to announce, through his financial secretary, Thomas M. Duncan, will be in the treasury to meet the appropriations; there will be no new big tax bill such as that for which many senators and assemblymen were waiting.

No committee hearings will be required unless one house or the other insists, because the provisions of the emergency levies to be reenacted are well known.

The tax measure, in fact, was not a separate bill, but a substitute rider on the Nelson-Rush high school aid proposal introduced months ago.

Bewildered legislators were convinced they had been dealing in wrong figures.

If the tax renewal is enacted as quickly as administration spokesmen anticipate it will cut several weeks off the time the legislature expected to spend on the revenue problem.

Won't Adjourn July 2

This swift development, however, gave no encouragement to the idea that the assembly might concur in the senate resolution for a sine die adjournment July 2, unless the governor definitely decides to call a special session.

The executive office recently sent up three important bills which have not been considered and two more are still to come — relief and governmental reorganization.

The governor's plan for a supreme court and judicial retirement bill, twice killed by the assembly, came back to the senate in a form that will permit jurists to contribute toward their retirement pay.

The administration bill to rewrite the social welfare laws and to create three new state departments to administer them has not yet been heard in committee, and farm members are pressing for a new mortgage moratorium law along lines proposed by the executive office.

WDA Dispute

The administration's Wisconsin Development Authority bill for a state power program finally passed the senate this week in a session that has no precedent in recent years.

Democratic and Republican senators twice walked out of the chamber to avoid voting on the bill, protesting that the Progressives were enforcing gag rule. The second time they walked out subpenas were issued for them, but did not have to be served.

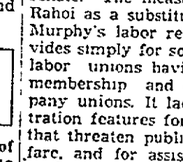

The assembly now will have to retrace its steps on the WDA bill—since the senate chose to pass its own measure. An identical house bill reposes in a senate committee.

OUR HOME TOWN

Thumb-Nail Sketch of a Father

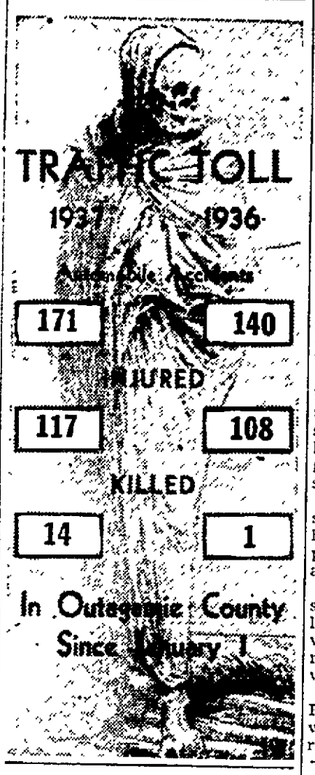

by Schommer's

He has criticized you bitterly for not trying but never for not triumphing. He has known all your bad points and he has reminded you of them as dangerous enemies to be conquered, but he has also called your attention to your good points. He has been at your side when you were on your back and he has been at your back when there was no one on your side. He has tried to get the best for you—not of you. He has loved you as much when you were hit as when you were a hit. He has been more interested in what you needed than in what you had.

And his bitterest disappointments have come when you have failed to measure up to the full capabilities which both you and he have known you possessed

Monday, June 28, Schommer's Funeral home will comment on Fourth of July.

Appeal to Regents Fails to Win Diploma for Gunderson's Daughter

Madison —(AP)— Mrs. Helen Albee, daughter and secretary of Lieutenant Governor Henry A. Gunderson of Portage, lost on an appeal to the University of Wisconsin board of regents yesterday from a ruling of Dean George C. Sellery denying her a diploma.

The dean, declaring "this is the first time I've known a student to appeal to the broad to break the rules," refused to graduate Mrs. Albee Monday because her grades in economics, her major subject, were not high enough.

President Clarence A. Dykstra, who succeeded Dean Sellery as administrative head of the university, recommended that the faculty rules be upheld.

"If you break down the rules, you break down the standards of the university all along the line," he said. "This matter never would have arisen if she had been able to get a grade of B in a course this semester."

Attorney Lucius Squires of Madison, representing Mrs. Albee, said he did not want the board to allow political considerations to enter the appeal.

"It is impossible to leave Gunderson out of the picture," Dean Sellery replied. "He communicated with me and, when he learned I had ruled unfavorably, he told me he would appeal."

The board, with the exception of Regent Daniel Grady of Portage, voted unanimously to uphold the rules.

Carnival Will Show Near City

Ruben and Cherry Show Sponsored by Twin City Legion Posts

Sponsored by the American Legion posts of Neenah and Menasha, the Rubin and Cherry Exposition carnival will show at the S. Memorial drive show grounds from Monday, June 21, through Sunday, June 27.

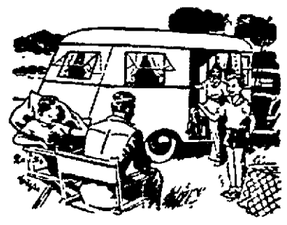

The exposition contains 24 feature shows and 17 new and novel riding devices, and comes here from Milwaukee where it is playing a 10-day stand. Among the fine attractions carried this year are, La Bomba Rhumba, Spanish revue, featuring Senorita Rosita, a Castilian dancing beauty; Casino De Paree, 20 people musical comedy, with Miss Elsie Calvert, mistress of ceremonies; Mighty Midget Circus, featuring Little Dolly Kramer direct from the big Dallas Centenial; Club Plantation, under the direction of S. H. Dudley with 25 colored entertainers. Cleo Hoffman and her Artists and Models, featuring Miss America; Believe It or Not Freak Congress; Chong Leen, the great Oriental Magician, in Mysteries of China; Joe Dobish and his Lion Motordrome, called the Wall of Death; Jungle Monsters from Africa; R. and C. Monkey Circus; Life Begins; Honeymoon Castle; Jester's Fun Palace; Crime Prevention Exhibit; Squintorium; and Diamond Kitty, 714 pounds.

Among the rides are the Octopus; Auto Speedway; Twin Loop-O-Planes, the Waltzer; the Dangler, Grand Whip, Caterpillar, Twin Ferris wheels, Lindy Loop; Rideeo; Auto Skooter, Hey-Dey, Merry go Round, Pony Track and several miniature rides for the real small children.

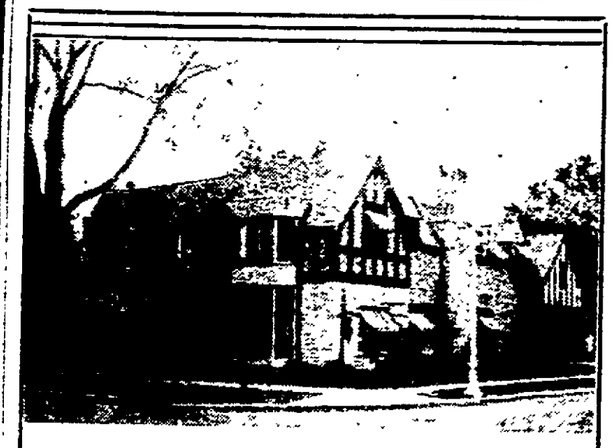

The special train of 40 double length steel railroad cars will arrive here early Monday June 21, and be erected in time for opening that night.

Council Will Act on License Applications

Action on city license applications will be taken by the common council at an adjourned meeting at 7:30 Monday evening. No other business is likely to come before the aldermen as Mayor Goodland will attend a meeting of the executive committee of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities at Madison Monday afternoon and may not return to attend the council session.

Organize Boys' Junior, Senior Baseball Loops

List Teams and Schedules for Two Leagues at Kaukauna

Kaukauna — Formation of boys' junior and senior baseball leagues for the summer recreational program was announced yesterday by Clifford Kemp, director.

Boys up to 13 years of age will play in the junior division. Teams and captains are as follows: Cubs, Don Reichel; Tigers, Roy Peters; Pirates, Tom Brenzel; Sox, Con Hatchell.

All games will be played at 9:30 in the morning on Diamond 2 at the library field. Next week's schedule for the junior league will find the Cubs facing the Tigers in the first game Monday, Pirates versus Sox on Tuesday, Cubs versus Pirates Wednesday, Sox versus Tigers Thursday, and Cubs versus Sox Friday.

Boys in the senior league are from 13 to 16 years of age. Captains have been elected to four teams, each of which will have a sponsor and the names announced next week. The captains are George Reichel, Phelan Femal, Harold Walsh, and Robert Danner.

Using the names of the captains to designate the teams, next week's schedule is as follows: Monday, Reichel versus Femal; Tuesday, Walsh versus Danner; Wednesday, Reichel versus Walsh; Thursday, Femal versus Danner; Friday, Reichel versus Danner.

These games will be played at 9:30 in the mornings on Diamond 1 behind the library.

Tennis instruction for junior girls will start next Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock on the library courts, Kemp said yesterday.

The outdoor boys' basketball league will be formed next week with the election of captains and the selection of teams. The standards, backboards, and hoops are ready.

Carl Lemmers Plans to Quit Business July 1

Kimberly—Carl Lemmers, proprietor of Karl's club bowling alleys for the last nine years will retire from business July 1, Joseph Coppens, who now operates a tavern on Kimberly avenue, will take over the business next month.

Mr. Lemmers was active in sports and bowling for twenty five years. He is president of the Fox Rover Valley major Bowling league and is secretary and treasurer of the Booster bowling league in Kimberly.

He has managed a number of baseball clubs and is one of the charter members of the Kimberly team of the old Fox River baseball league which held its organization meeting in Wrightstown depot in 1909. Some of his team mates in the early baseball days were Richard Cavil, Butch Thein, John Lemmers, and Hub Williams. Due to injuries received Mr. Lemmers quit baseball six years ago. He still plans to be active in bowling.

Social Items

Kaukauna—Sixteen children surprised Geraldine Rasmussen, 716 Boyd avenue, on her seventh birthday Thursday. The party was held in the afternoon. Those who attended were:

Mary Carol Ives, Johnny Ives, Gene Killian, Paulie Killian, Richard Vils, Maria Vils, Ardet Reichel, Marion Reichel, Nancy Schermitzler, Betty Kraft, Elaine Schafer, Eugene Schafer, Bobby Schwalt, Doris May Kilgas and Shirley Cobbles.

230 Swimmers Counted At Fourth Lock Pool

Kaukauna—About 230 children and young people, the biggest crowd of the year, swam yesterday at the fourth lock.

The swimming season was started seriously this week, according to the life guards stationed there. Thursday's cool weather kept the crowd down to about 150, but on Wednesday there were over 200.

Hold Last Rites for Charles Beebe, 71

Kaukauna—Funeral services for Charles Beebe, 71, who died yesterday at his home at 723 Oviatt street, will be held Monday afternoon at 1:30 at the residence and at 2 o'clock at the Brokaw Memorial Methodist church with the Rev. G. C. Samderson in charge. Burial will be in the Lutheran cemetery.

UNION MEETS

Kaukauna — The Longshoremen union, composed of government employes along the Fox river valley, met Friday evening at the Odd Fellows hall, Kaukauna. Wage adjustments and communications sent Senator Duffy and Congressman Schneider recently were discussed.

SPEEDER FINED

Kaukauna—Robert Burns, Green Bay, was fined $5 and costs of $4.75 by Judge Barney Mitchka in justice court yesterday for speeding. Burns was arrested Sunday on Draper and Taylor streets. According to police reports, he was driving 50 miles an hour.

The Kaukauna office of the Appleton Post-Crescent is located in the Jules Mertes barbershop on Wisconsin avenue. Don Anderson is the correspondent in charge and the telephone number is 107. Subscribers may call this number until 6:30 in the evening if their papers were not delivered.

Rennickes Defeat Kappells In 1st Twilight Loop Game

Kaukauna—Rennicke's Cleaners defeated Kappell's Taverns 8-4 in the first softball game of the Twilight league played last evening on the library field. Batteries for the winners were William Alger and Geigle and for the losers, Leo Kappell, Balgie, and Hishon.

The following men played for Rennickes: Walsh, Saunders, Peterson, Towsley, Kemp, Alger, Watson, Specht, Geigle and W. Alger. Kappell's lineup was composed of Leo Kappell, Martins, Balgie, V. Kappell, Hishon, Jansen, Mayer, L. Kappell, Kiffe and Rohan.

Postponed Thursday night, the game between Thilmany Mill, captained by J. Verbaten, and South Side Merchants, led by S. Powers, will be played at 6 o'clock Monday night on the library field.

This will be the only change in next week's round of play as announced in the schedule earlier this week. Games next week besides the postponed tilt are as follows: Pantry Lunch versus Kempke's Tavern, Tuesday; Kappell's Tavern versus Pantry Lunch, Wednesday; Rennicke's Cleaners versus Thilmany Mill, Thursday; Kempke's Tavern versus South Side Merchants, Friday.

Bids Sought on New Motorcycle

Council to Hold Meeting Next Tuesday Night

Kaukauna — Bids for the new motorcycle which the city will purchase for use by Harold Engerson, traffic officer, must be submitted to Walter Lucht, secretary of the fire and police commission, by 3 o'clock Monday afternoon. The commission will open the bids and make its recommendation to the city council.

A regular meeting of the council will be held at 8 o'clock Tuesday night in the municipal building. The granting of 27 Class B liquor licenses will be the first order of new business at that meeting.

A report on the proposed municipal outdoor swimming pool will be made by Oscar Alger, chairman of the board of public works. When it became known at the last regular meeting that two of the most popular outdoor swimming places, the Kaukauna quarry and Reichel's pond, could not be used this summer, the board was instructed to investigate sites and probable costs for an outdoor pool.

Last week the board inspected pools at New London and Kimberly.

Chilton Pair Leaves on 2-Month Trip Abroad

Chilton—Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Voss left Saturday for New York, and on Wednesday they will sail for Europe on a two months conducted tour to eight countries of Europe. They will be gone two months.

Miss Marie Harlow underwent a major operation at St. Agnes hospital in Fond du Lac on Wednesday.

Dr. and Mrs. John Minahan and daughters Kathryn and Patsy left this week on a motor trip to the east. They will visit their son John, a cadet at West Point, and also plan to visit Dr. Minahan's sister, Mrs. Eugene Chaney, at Baltimore, Md.

Colonel John Hanley and sons, Jack and Billy, and Miss Belle Broderick, are spending two weeks at Camp Douglas.

Anton Hunck of Hamburg, Germany, arrived here this week for a visit with his brother, the Rev. H. E. Hunck. Mr. Hunck, who is a retired employe of the Standard Oil Co., also visited here three years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Larsen, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Larsen and Miss Althea Larsen were at Waukesha this week to attend the commencement exercises of Carroll college. Emmett Larson being one of the graduates. He received his bachelor of arts degree.

At the regular meeting of the city council Tuesday evening, the council voted to engage as assistants to Leonard McCrorie in summer playground activity, the Misses Alicia Hume and Jane Peik. One of the young women will have charge of the work at the high school with the younger children, and the other will assist Mr. McCrorie at the fair grounds. The activity will start Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Veit were at Brillion Wednesday to attend the wedding of the former's nephew, Arnold Heimann, and Miss Erna Behnke.

Shiocton Rebekahs Induct 4 Candidates

Shiocton — Members of the Rebekah Lodge held their regular meeting at the Odd Fellows hall Thursday evening. Four candidates were initiated into the order: Mrs. Fred Falk and Mrs. Haze Diemel, Leeman, and Miss Margaret Vogel and Miss Gertrude Laird, Shiocton. After the initiation a lunch was served by the members. The committee for the evening included Mrs. Mattie Booth, Mrs. Minnie Pooler and Mrs. Irene Palmer.

A strawberry festival will be given at the Congregational church parlors Wednesday afternoon by the Willing Workers. Serving will begin at 5 o'clock.

Mrs. Emma Morse left this week for Madison where she entered the Wisconsin General hospital. Her brother, Will Locke, also is a patient at the hospital. She was accompanied to Madison by her daughter, Mrs. Mearl McCully, and Mr. and Mrs. Royce Locke and daughter Nancy. On the return trip they visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sawyer at Cambria, former residents of Shiocton.

Mrs. By Palmer, Mrs. Howard Palmer, Mrs. Phil Palmer, Mrs. D. J. McCully and Mrs. Ray Cordy attended the Leeman Ladies Aid society Wednesday afternoon at the Leeman home. The hostesses included Mrs. Flora Leeman and Mrs. Malcolm Leeman.

Mrs. Jackson of Stevens Point is a guest at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Freemon Town.

Opportunities for Evangelism Not at End, Bishop States

Christianity Not Yet Major Influence Even in Christian Lands

Forest Junction—Approximately 500 worshippers constituted the audience Friday evening, when Bishop Frederick D. Leete, De Land, Fla., delivered the sermon at the Methodist camp meeting which is being held over the weekend at the Brillion assembly grounds two and one-half miles east of Forest Junction. Speaking on evangelism, Bishop Leete averred that there is still much opportunity for spreading the Christian religion, as Christianity is not yet the major influence even in so-called Christian lands.

Bishop Leete, for 25 years has been a member of a commission on unification, which is seeking to unite branches of the Methodist church; and, in coming to Wisconsin this week, visited a session of the Florida conference at which a proposal made by the commission was ratified by an overwhelming majority. He ventured the belief, however, that the proposal might not be received so favorably by all conferences.

Outlines Camp History

In speaking on "A History of the Brillion Camp" Friday afternoon, the Rev. Frank Hartl, LaCrosse, former pastor on what is now the Appleton district, reviewed 40 years of attendance at the Brillion campmeeting. As these annual events began informally with no records kept, the exact date of the first camp meeting is unknown. Older members agree, however, that it was more than 50 years ago.

Combining a camp meeting with an Epworth league institute, the annual religious assembly at the camp this year opened last Wednesday evening. The camp meeting reaches its conclusion on Sunday, when two appearances of Bishop Leete are scheduled. At 9:15 Sunday morning, the day's program opens with a Sunday school session with Brillion officials in charge. Bishop Leete preaches at 10:30 in the forenoon and at 7:30 in the afternoon, and Dr. Gilbert Cox of Appleton at 7:30 in the evening. H. J. Weigle, Chicago, conducts a children's meeting at 1:15 in the afternoon, and a song service preceding the evening sermon.

Epworth Institute

"Developing Christian Character" is the theme of the twelfth annual Epworth league institute which will open on Monday afternoon. Delegates will register with Miss Myrtle Gross, Brillion, at 4 o'clock and acquaintanceships will be made between the delegations during the interval until 8:15, when the Epworth league of First Methodist church, Green Bay, presents a play. The Rev. F. E. Frankson of Wausau, dean of the institute, preaches a series of sermons on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday evenings, dealing, respectively, with "Religion and Science," "Are They Friends or Enemies?" "God and the Geologist," "God and the Naturalist," and "God and the Astronomer."

The campfire service, an annual event on the outskirts of the camp, takes place next Saturday evening at 8:30, conducted by the Rev. W. C. Kurtz, Manitowoc, one of the institute instructors. Class periods occur during the forenoon hours of the daily schedule at the camp. An hour of choir rehearsal and two hours of recreation are on the program each afternoon. The Rev. Ralph Hawkins of Wittenberg is the director of recreation.

Many Social Affairs are Being Held at Bear Lake

Manawa — Bear lake, one of the most popular resorts in Waupaca county, has again taken on much activity since the opening of the summer season. Family reunions are among the first events to be held here. The Pope reunion was held on Wednesday of this week, and the Gehrke family gathering will take place at the lake on Sunday, June 20.

Dances of one sort or another are held almost nightly. A wedding dance for Dorothy Gail Pochlman and Carl Stiebs was an event last Sunday evening; a softball team from the Wisconsin Veterans Home is sponsoring a hop on Saturday, June 19; a wedding dance for Mildred Allen and George Groher will be held Tuesday evening; and the Hobart Sportsman's club has scheduled a dance for Wednesday evening.

Few campers have as yet put in an appearance at the lake, although they will be much more numerous from now until after Labor day. Among the first out-of-state people were Mr. and Mrs. Ted Pitmann of State Center, Iowa, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Burco and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dozark of Lamont, Iowa, who were guests this past week of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Levezow at Pine Haven, the new Conroy cottage.

The Girl Scouts are occupying Kill Kare Kabin this week. Those in the party are Mrs. Oscar Wohlrabe, Miss Marabel Wallace, Miss Janet Lehnigk, Mildred and Delores Sabrowsky, Nancy and Shirley Lamkins, Yvonee Levezow, Jacqueline Lindow, Sylvia and Nelva Wohlrabe, Mildred and Hildegarde Wege, Peggy Ory, Donna Kostrzak, Wilma Stevens, and Elizabeth Lindsay.

New cottages at the Lake have been built since last season by the Zemple sisters, Otto Suehs, Louis Zemple, and Ralph Conroy.

The Ladies Aid society of the Community Baptist church of Hortonville met with Mrs. L. D. Hershberger at Kumagin cottage, Wednesday afternoon.

Plan Health Clinic

A special maternal and child health center for Manawa, sponsored by the Woman's club and the state board of health, will be held Friday, June 25, at the grade school building, it has been announced by Mrs. William Schultz, Jr., local chairman for the event.

Dr. Elizabeth A. Taylor, staff physician of the state board's bureau of maternal and child health, will conduct the center, assisted by Miss Estelle Jung, county nurse, and members of the sponsoring group.

Health examinations for well infants and pre-school children who are accompanied by their mothers, and personal talks on prenatal care for expectant mothers will be offered by Dr. Taylor. Registration hours at the center will be 8:30 to 11:30 a. m., and 1 to 3:30 p. m.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Zemple attended a recent meeting of the Waupaca County Rural Letter Carriers association at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Dean in Scandinavia. Mr. Zemple and Louis Steft, Marion, were named delegates to the state convention at Prairie du Chien, July 26, 27, and 28. Officers of the Waupaca county group include Harold Spindler, Fremont, president; Fred Jensen, Waupaca, vice president; Louis Zemple, Manawa, secretary-treasurer.

Miss Theresa Goetz, chief dietitian at the National Home hospital in Milwaukee and daughter of F. H. Goetz of Manawa, is now enjoying a three weeks trip to Alaska. Miss Goetz left Milwaukee, Thursday, and flew from Chicago to Seattle, Wash., Friday. She sailed from Seattle for Alaska on Saturday and expects to return to Milwaukee shortly after the first of July.

Baseball fans from this vicinity will make the occasion of the Wolves' trip to Neopit next Sunday an opportunity for any number of picnic. This game each season offers the same diversion for dozens of followers of the team, who look forward to the day with much zest. Big baskets of food are packed, stored in cars, and the drivers pilot their machines and passengers to Keshena Falls, seven miles north of Shawano, where a sort of community picnic is held. After dinner the remaining fifteen miles to Neopit is traversed so that baseball hungry fans may witness the game.

Funeral Services Held For Bernice De Groot

Little Chute—Funeral services for Bernice De Groot, 9, who died early Wednesday morning from burns received after she had attempted to empty the contents of a waste paper basket into a bonfire Tuesday morning, were conducted Friday morning at St. John church by the Rev. John J. Sprangers. Burial took place in the parish cemetery and the Rev. James Geyer had charge of the service at the grave. The bearers were Misses Nelda Wildenberg, Doris Van Lankvelt, Harriet De Backer and LaVerne Look and the honorary bearers were Isabelle Vanden Heuvel, Ruth Driessen, Rose Van Bakle and Rose Coenen. The members of the third grade of St. John parochial school, of which the decedent was a member, attended the funeral in a body. The survivors are the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry De Groot, two sisters, Doris and Margaret Mary and four brothers, Joseph, Francis, Vincent and Roger.

Girl Scouts on Trip To Wisconsin Dells

Mr and Mrs. Walter Koehler and Mr and Mrs. Martin Pfaff of Weyauwega are delegates to the Aid Association of Lutherans at Appleton on Saturday.

Mrs Perry Baxter was hostess to her contract club at the home of her sisters in Waupaca. Prizes at cards went to Mrs. George Moody and Mrs. W. J. Nienhaus.

Arnold Kopiien was taken to the Wisconsin General hospital on Wednesday for treatment.

A S Peterson and family attended a picnic and business session of the Waupaca County Agricultural Teachers' association at the Chain o' Lakes Wednesday.

The Rev. Max Hensel went to Fond du Lac Thursday to visit Otto Rupno, who is in St Agnes hospital, suffering from a fractured vertebra which he received in an auto accident on Decoration day.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Peterson and family left Friday morning for Superior where they will attend a silver wedding anniversary at the home of the former's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Peterson on Saturday, and a homecoming on Sunday.

At the 10:30 morning worship in the Presbyterian church Sunday morning the sermon theme will be "The Christian Gospel: According to Kagawa."

Mrs. Otillie Krueger and granddaughter, Betty Lou, left Thursday for Keego Harbor, Mich., to spend the summer with the former's son and the latter's father, Arthur Krueger.

St. Ann's society will hold a food sale at the Silver Grill on Saturday, June 26.

Miss Euna Fenelon, who spent the winter in Cleveland, Ohio, returned to Weyauwega Thursday to spend the summer at her home here.

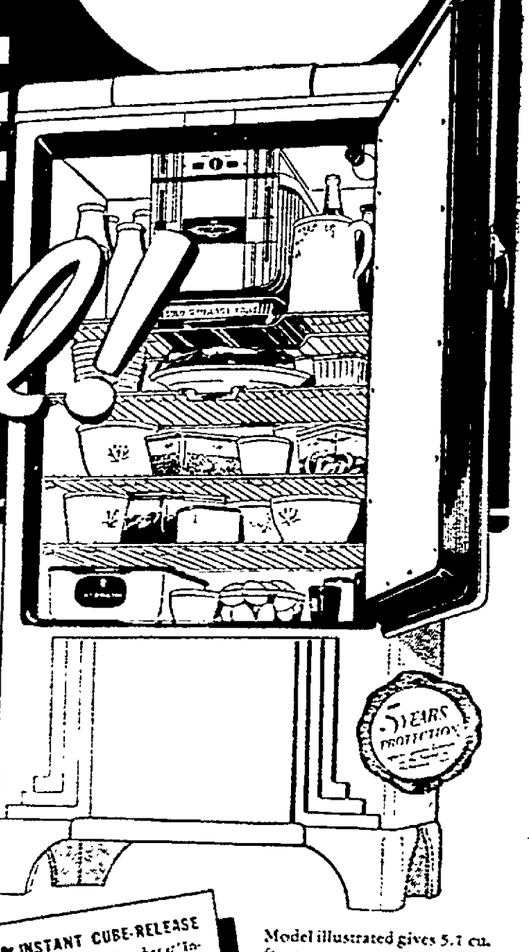

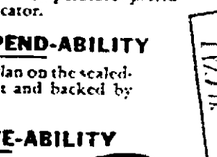

Miss Dorothea Damerow of Chokio, Minn., came yesterday to spend a month at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Capen.

ACTING FOR BOTH SIDES OF THE FENCE

The dispute may continue as to the precise reason why the Administration is conducting an examination into prevailing income tax sins. The odds are about even in the selection of things from which the Administration is willing to distract the people's attention. They range all the way from our Alberta system of finance at Washington to the coming marriage alliance of the Roosevelts with the dukes of DuPont.

Nevertheless, the inquiry presents matters of merit although they could easily be handled by appropriate legislation in the ordinary way.

One of the distressing features of government was told in some detail by Mr. Morgenthau. It is rather a natural condition but it has enough sinister aspects that it should be handled vigorously. It has been the subject of criticism in these columns heretofore and suggestions have been made which would adequately and efficiently handle the trouble had they been followed.

The complaint relates to the constant tendency upon the part of public officials and employes after a term in office has expired to undertake private employment against the government specializing in the technical departments taught them at government expense.

In the income tax field these men have become a pest, as well to business interests as the government.

Such a man first secures a position at a salary of about $4,000 to $10,000 a year in the income tax department. His duties over a period of years make him a specialist in the labyrinth called our income tax law. It is best to know, too, that while a certain number of constructions and rulings have naturally grown up concerning this law there is no body of scholars or intellectuals that can really understand it. Parts of it might just as well have been written in Siamese or Sanskrit. Such a situation, of course, makes prolific disagreement and litigation.

Income tax employes are also thrown in constant touch with firms of lawyers who specialize in the same field. At least 90 per cent of these firms are honest and represent equally honest clients whose only purpose is to get something approaching a clear understanding of the law and to learn if possible what their rights are. In due time many of these income tax employes become associated with firms acting for taxpayers and because they have learned the government side of every proposition they become a thorn in the side of their former employer.

Other such employes believing they see an actual chance to make big money, and principally because they realize the existence of a great many holes in the income tax law that are not generally known to the tax-paying public, set up independent offices for the purpose of specializing in this sort of work. Some of them probably take from the government offices lists of taxpayers with whose problems they have become familiar because they have had entree to private papers, and then they often solicit the business of these taxpayers promising to save them certain amounts on their taxes for a percentage of the amount saved.

Unfortunately this is lawful though hardly legitimate work. Part of it, the solicitation of the business and the use of private information so gathered, is highly unprofessional to say the least.

The same practice obtains to some extent in all the departments of our state governments. Members of tax commissions become tax experts for large taxpayers. Members of public service commissions become experts in one field or another for public service companies. Members of industrial commissions take up the cudgel for those most interested in industrial affairs.

Some years ago the Post-Crescent put its finger upon this practice and in a series of editorials called the attention of the public to it. This was not done as a mere matter of entering a complaint but with the expectation that suitable laws could be enacted to terminate most of this practice.

It was suggested at that time that statutes require the making of contracts between such employes and the various governments, state or national, that put them to work, and that such contracts prohibit the persons so hired from entering the private side of the same field of law for a period of 2 or 3 years after the termination of their service to the government.

Probably 90 per cent of such employes would live up to that contract as a matter of course. The important firms looking for specialists, because their standards do not permit them to violate laws purposely, would avoid engaging such former public servants. The few who might seek to break the contract could be made the subject of hurtful legal action. The very fact that such action might become necessary and be publicized would ruin the efforts of any such breachers of contract to obtain desirable employment.

Instead of attempting to cure this sore condition in the body politic that has been raising an odor for some years our lawmakers have permitted it to fester until finally it is serving the purpose of distracting attention from the failings and shortcomings of those who are now tossing it about.

It might easily have been cured in the past. And there are other ways to cure it than that suggested above.

THE VALUE OF A CLOWN

It is not ordinarily known that Joe Grimaldi was a clown of such successful favor that his name may be found in the encyclopedia and that his Memoirs were edited by no less a literary genius than Charles Dickens himself.

Grimaldi, an Englishman, has been dead a hundred years, but the profession of which he was a member has not forgotten its brilliant star and celebrated the anniversary of his death by resurrecting and displaying his major accomplishments.

A clown to be successful must be loved by the populace and Grimaldi was so well appreciated that we are told his portrait is still to be found well scattered over England.

But his life reminds us how difficult and heartbreaking is the career of a successful clown. First, he must be a grotesque sort of character, something like the Hunchback of Notre Dame with a face like Limburger cheese and either a short squat body or a long and gangling one. Next he must be a simple and trusting soul, generous with his earnings to the point that beggars himself. For a clown is a topsy-turvy individual and lives in a topsy-turvy world.

Disher thus describes some of Grimaldi's accomplishments:

"He caricatured Ballerina and jugglers, especially the Indian sword swallowers whom he imitated with a blade of immense size. His fun with oysters was proverbial. Besides a suet with an enormous specimen supposed to have been 'crossed in love,' he held a minor Colechester feast. The first he opened made a complaining noise. 'Ah, poor thing,' he said, 'I'll put you out of your misery,' and swallowed it. When the second made a similar appeal to his humanity he gulped it and remarked, 'Well, I can't make fish of one and flesh of t'other.'"

It was proper that Grimaldi be given the distinction he received. We need more clowns in the encyclopedia. An appreciation of their part in the life of a people will come nearer to measuring that life and its worth.

Of course, we all know it is just silly, mountebank stuff but its importance is not to be determined by any such test.

The true test for the value of a clown is to watch the faces of a thousand youngsters who are following in rapt amazement every bit of his clownish pantomine.

We haven't come to a proper appraisal of this very necessary and happy occurrence in human life but the very fact that no one would abolish it and everyone would eagerly seek it out for his own children should set it apart as worthy.

KEEPING THE LEGAL PRACTICE STRAIGHT

The legal profession of Wisconsin has made a valiant fight for nearly 15 years to create a condition where it may compel its members to live up to their beautiful and elevating oath.

The creation of the State Bar of Wisconsin, a measure that was engrossed by the assembly last Friday by a narrow margin, is the vehicle employed for the purpose.

It is being bitterly contested by a few who deserve a rating as reactionary in that they cannot observe the necessity of action, and by others who fear its consequences in that their consciences may appear a bit opaque under the strong light it may impose.

Men who are dishonest, selfish, or indifferent to the principle that their client's rights and welfare take precedence over their own financial advantage, can only now be stopped in emulating the hawk by a procedure so slow, heavy, cumbersome, and susceptible of collateral, and principally political, attack, that it is only employed after a practitioner has literally looted his community and become so open and notorious in his dishonesty that the evidence is as easy to find as the sunshine, and as general.

We presume the State Bar of Wisconsin will have a hard time getting through the legislature. The forces of evil, of quackery, of shysterish practices, are just as adroit in misleading legislators as they are in shearing their clients.

We do not presume that if this measure is passed it will be a cure-all. Under the direction of the supreme court it appears a logical step and safe indeed. But the prevailing system is well-nigh useless and worthless. And when a situation is properly so characterized the time has arrived to do something even if that something be highly experimental.

FATHER'S DAY LETTER

Dear Dad:

There are some people who might classify me as tetched in the hoid to write you a letter, because it has been all of six and a half years since you left for the Promised Land.

What I started out to tell you about, however, was your Democratic party. You were always a pretty good Democrat, you remember, and your faith in the party was unshaken through the Theodore Roosevelt, the Taft, the Harding and the Coolidge administrations. You were somewhat upset when Al Smith came along, because Al was a Tammany man and you were an up-state New Yorker, and I don't remember what you did about Al.

I chuckle to think how I could rib you now if you were still around and if you were still trying to be a Democrat. Once when you were a Democrat, the government set out to save the world from itself and for democracy. Now it can't even save the postal service from a labor union.

Of course, you could rib me back and say "Look who has the votes," and all I could say is "look what they've done with 'em."

There is the possibility that if you were still around, you might have different ideas than you had then. You were always broad enough and respected enough so that the Republican mayors used to appoint you to the board of health.

Maybe we couldn't rib each other at all. Maybe we'd just sit down occasionally and cuss.

WHILE WE ARE ON THE SUBJECT

(Or What About Woodrow Wilson and the War Debts Piled Up Under the Democrats?)

Jonah:

Some time ago you wondered what was a Democrat. Now take it all round like a knot hole in a hemlock board, I figure a Democrat is a feller what got his eyes opened.

In the gay 20's there was 9 billion dollars in foreign bonds sold in this country, now practically all defaulted. Nine billion dollars, one quarter of our present national debt, and there ain't one cent of this money now in this country. It went from building a subway in Buenos Aires to rearming Germany.

If our WPA guys had got it it would still be in the good old U.S.A. The Republicans didn't have even a policeman in Washington to blow a whistle while this money was stolen. I figure the buyers of those bonds is potential Democrats.

And when some one mentions the International Bankers they know who you're talking about.

And in 1928 I had a friend who was running a canning factory. He wore diamonds and I ain't never said yet he ought to have wore hand cuffs. One day he told me he put in a machine that would do the work of 20 men. It took the husks off sweet corn cobs, cut the kernels off washed the corn and put it in tin cans, registered the number of cobs that it handled so he knew if the operator shut it down 5 minutes.

I asked him what about the 19 men that was out of jobs. He said he didn't owe them anything. I thought the system would work if he bought another machine to chew up the cans of canned corn.

One man with diamonds and his family can't eat only one can of sweet corn for dinner. Thirteen million unemployed couldn't eat any cause they didn't have the price. So the bust came in 1929.

And the 19 men he laid off was potential Democrats.

—Ezekiel Sodbuster

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

THE LITTLE BOY

That little boy, when he would go
To church would always say:
"I'll sing in the big choir, I know,
Some day!"

He loved the joyous hymns that rang
Upon the morning air,
And made the music, when he sang,
More fair.

He said that he could hardly wait,
It was so far to climb;
But he would grow to man's estate
Some time!

It will be in a world apart
From every evil thing
That this small darling of my heart
Will sing!

For God has called him to a choir
That in His skies is massed.
So he will have his heart's desire
At last!

And though we cannot help the tear
That falls, we must rejoice
When Heaven means that we will hear
His voice!

Personal Health Talks

TREATMENT OF CHRONIC ANOXIA

Asphyxia means literally not to throb, that is, absence of heart beat. More specifically it means lack of oxygen in the blood and tissues and cells. Suffocation, drowning, gassing, choking and strangulation are familiar forms of asphyxia. Asphyxia refers to extreme lack of oxygen.

Anoxia is a new fangled term which refers to an oxygen deficiency of milder degree. Anoxemia refers to such oxygen deficiency in the blood; anoxia more particularly to the oxygen deficiency in the tissues and cells of the body.

Anoxia of the heart muscles is now generally believed to be the immediate cause of the attack of angina pectoris.

Carbon monoxide gas, having three hundred times greater affinity for the hemoglobin in the blood than oxygen has, simply crowds oxygen out of the blood, and this anoxemia is the cause of death or any symptoms resulting from any degree of carbon monoxide gassing. Carbon monoxide itself is in no way injurious or poisonous to the tissues or cells of the body. Yet the presence of as little as one part of carbon monoxide in 2000 parts of air will cause symptoms if breathed several hours daily. Remember, carbon monoxide is colorless, odorless, tasteless, non-irrating—gives no warning of its presence. Stealthy death—altho it is not itself poisonous or injurious to the body.

For acute monoxide gassing, if the victim is rescued in time, of course artificial respiration by the prone-pressure method (not the faulty Red Cross method)—if you think you know more than I do about this, send ten cents and a stamped envelope bearing your address, for booklet on "Resuscitation" which gives the facts according to Schaefer, the discoverer of the method, and points out the fatal fault in the funny method taught by the Red Cross and various yesman organizations. If, along with immediate and uninterrupted prone-pressure manipulation the victim may have the advantage of carboxygen (5 to 10 per cent carbon dioxide and oxygen mixture) to inhale from an inhalator, the chance of a successful outcome is considerably increased.

For chronic monoxide anoxia or anoxia from any other cause, probably neither oxygen nor carbon dioxide nor mixtures of the two will give any more relief or help than the patient can get from the daily practice of belly breathing for half a dozen inhalations or inflations say every hour. Needless to say this exercise should be done outdoors or at least where the air is pure and not polluted with carbon monoxide.

Sea level is better for anoxic individuals than elevated places. Temperate climate is better than very warm climate. Winter is better for them than summer—provided they are not confined during cold weather where they are exposed to monoxide in the air.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Kettles

We are in the market for kettles. Please inform us whether steam pressure cookers preserve or destroy vitamins in foods. (H. H.)

Answer—Vitamins are destroyed by cooking, perhaps less by steam pressure cooking them by ordinary cooking in open vessels.

Be Kind to Dogs

As soon as the weather gets warm I begin to suffer with aching feet. (M. F.)

Answer—Send stamped envelope bearing your address, inclose 10 cent coin, ask for booklet "Care of Feet."

Ambulant Treatment

A year ago I received nine injections for hernia, and paid the full fee. The doctor told me to remove the truss only after I was in bed and not to leave it off when I was on my feet until six months. Then I felt a slight sensation peculiar to hernia, and returned, for another injection. Ought I continue with him or go to another doctor? (A. F. P.)

Answer—From what you say, it is my opinion that you should stick with the doctor. Injection treatment fails in some cases, just as radical operation does. If at first you don't succeed try again—fortunately, this is the simplest course where ambulant treatment is used.

Your Birthday

"GEMINI"

If June 20 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:45 to 11:45 a. m., from 2:45 to 4:45 p. m. and from 8:45 to 10:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:45 to 9:45 a. m., from 6:45 to 8:45 p. m. and from 10:45 p. m. until midnight.

Informality, bordering on a lack of respect, may bring about many regrettable incidents this day. The wise will discourage any conduct that may seem dangerously near to undue familiarity. The stomach is apt to have a decided bearing on dispositions. An empty one might produce a state of decided irritability, while a well-filled one will have a most favorable reaction on the average person's disposition. Keep up appearance this day, for slovenly dress may create an unfavorable impression on someone whose good opinion will be worth having. Curiosity might lead to embarrassing situations, so do not give in to it. Married and engaged couples, and those whose hearts are aflame with love, will make a great mistake in quibbling this day when debating any question.

If a woman and June 20 is your birthday, mentally and physically you ought to be exceptionally well-equipped to face life. Your one handicap may be a restless disposition, that might make you discontented with whatever work you undertake, no matter how bright a future it may have to offer you. This is the day of specialists, and to succeed you must make up your mind as to the type of work you wish to do, learn it thoroughly and concentrate on it. Do this and Lady Luck will lend you a helping hand. You may be very sentimental, but common sense will rule your actions, and good judgment will prevent your making any serious mistakes. As a business woman, artist, educator, journalist, demonstrator, actress, musician or singer highly profitable recognition of your ability most likely will give you ample reason for a sense of gratification.

The child born on June 20, may be rather precocious before it reaches its teens. When it merges from childhood into youth, a great change for the better apparently will take place. A future filled with many honors may be awaiting this youngster.

If a man and June 20 is your natal day, your most ambitious hopes will have good chances of being realized, if you do not permit yourself to get discouraged. Through the legal, theatrical or medical professions, salesmanship, journalism or scientific research work you may win a fortune and many honors.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY GEORGE TUCKER

New York—Reunion in Harlem: Two men are idling at a bar in East Harlem. . . It is 2 a. m. and the barkeep is lazily polishing glasses behind the bar. One of the men at the bar asks for a double take of rye.

"You made your bet yet, Bub?" he asks his companion. . . The other fellow moves over to the boss, who is glancing at many figures which are scrawled over a large sheet of paper.

"Two-bits on 717," he says. "You still run that book, don't you?"

"Yeah," says the boss, who gets most of his coin from the numbers racket.

"I think this is my lucky night," the customer says.

"Maybe it is, but what makes you think so?"

"This makes me think so," screams the fellow dragging out a gun. "Shell out what dough you got." He jabs the gun viciously into the boss's middle.

"You won't get more'n a fin," the boss snarls.

The gangster slaps him hard across the face. "How much?"

"I got about $300 and some change. Take it." The boss' face has drained suddenly white, and he holds his side where the gun has ungently prodded him.

Gangster No. 2 is issuing crisp, excitable orders to the barkeep, who is standing with his hands high. He is animated by artificial stimulation and his trigger-finger is burning to put on the squeeze.

"I ought to let you have it," he snarls.

"I didn't do nuthing."

"The hell you didn't—you give me rye that would kill a dog!"

Gangster No. 1 takes a handful of bills and jams them into his pocket. He sweeps a pile of currency into his hat and thrusts it into his coat. . . "Come on, Joe." . . They back out behind level guns.

As they fade the barkeep, with an oath, vaults the bar and makes for the telephone booth. . . But the boss waves him back.

"This ain't no matter for the police," he says faintly.

"What!"

"Remember I told you about that trouble I had in East St. Louis? That's him. I recognized him the moment he pulled that gun."

The barkeep whistles. "And he didn't recognize you. Gee, you're lucky."

He collapses suddenly into a chair, and the perspiration pours afresh over his fat, oily countenance.

"Yeah," he says. "Yeah, I guess I am."

The autogiro is being used in some sections as a weapon in fighting insect pests which ravage trees as well as truck crops. It is used for spraying the infected areas.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington — Some of President Roosevelt's keenest advisors assert that the new wage-hour bill would be acceptable to the Supreme Court with its present membership, even including Justice Van Devanter. They concede it would be a 5-4 decision with that lineup.

That is sharply in contrast with the press conference inference of President Roosevelt.

At the same time some of these same counsellors agree that the wage-hour board in the bill has some very decisive powers. They expect that even if cautiously applied, some of the regulations the board could set up would destroy certain "marginal" producers unable to meet the higher cost requirements.

Variations

The board, for instance, could impose different wage scales for South Carolina spinning mills than for those for New England and thus hold over them the power of life or death.

The plan of the designers of the bill is to impose no wage-hour terms on South Carolina that would throttle its steadily expanding spinning industry. At the same time it is intended to push up the wage-hour levels so that $2 a day southern rates will not compel wage cuts in New England to meet the lower cost competition.

In addition: they would expect the government to get administrators with skill and judgment—and then supply them with the information they need in adapting the wage-hour relations.

Safeguard?

But actually wouldn't this power to fix wages give the board power to plan industry—to decide what industries should develop in one place, and not in another?

The reply we received was that the bill's designers intended to put into it safeguards against such an outcome. One informant, however, put it this way: Suppose a certain industry should start up in some part of the country, and suppose the board decided it should not continue. The board could (but would it?) fix a wage-hour level intended to choke it off. To stop the board in such action, the industry then could appeal to the courts for an injunction. That adds issues to the court question.

Sauthoff Would Clamp Down on Dairy Imports

Madison Representative Wants Them Only From TB Tested Herds

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)

Washington — All dairy products imported into the United States must be produced free from bovine tuberculosis or under test for bovine tuberculosis, if Congress acts favorably on a bill just introduced by Rep. Harry Sauthoff of Madison.

"At the present time," said Sauthoff, "there are only approximately 90 counties in the whole United States which are not either free from tuberculosis or completely under test for this disease. On the other hand, as far as any available information discloses, no other country in the world has taken any substantial steps to eliminate this disease from dairy cattle.

"It is a rank injustice to our dairy farmers," he continued, "to compel them to compete with dairy products which can be produced much cheaper than ours can, and in addition to that handicap, not even to require that dairy products imported into the United States be produced by foreign dairy farmers under the same conditions which are required by all of our American producers."

Statistics show, Sauthoff said, that this country imported $50,000,000 worth of dairy products and cattle in 1935-36, and in the same year exported only $10,000,000 worth.

Reports for the first quarter of 1937, he said, show that we are going to run well ahead of 1936 in value of imports in dairy products and cattle.

"Wisconsin farmers will be interested to know that in 1936 this country imported 60,000,000 pounds of cheese which was about 11,000,000 pounds more than in 1935. During the same year we exported only $1,136,268 pounds of cheese," he said.

Sauthoff predicted a gloomy future for dairy farmers if steps are not taken to curb imports.

"If the present rate of increase is maintained, then the dairy farmers of Wisconsin will be in a very difficult financial position two or three years from now because the price of feed has gone up 100 per cent within the last few years, while the price of farm machinery is steadily rising," he declared.

"Some protection must be provided, and I hope this bill will help to save the dairy farmer of Wisconsin from future unfair competition from abroad," he concluded.

Baby Rabbits Graduate From Campus Homes

Clarion, Pa.—(AP)—Six baby rabbits picked Commencement Day to leave their adopted home on the State Teachers college campus.

The mother rabbit brought her babies to the campus several weeks ago and made a nest for them near the girls' dormitory.

A gardener discovered the visitors and put up a sign reading:

"Baby rabbits—do not disturb."

An automobile ran over the mother rabbit and the orphaned family was adopted by students.

The sextuplets thrived on a diet received from medicine droppers, but Commencement Day they left college to shift for themselves.

All-Around Cast Features Movie

"Call It a Day" Will Show Galaxy of Star Actors, Actresses

With one of the finest all-round casts to be seen in Appleton in many a day, the Cosmopolitan, "Call It a Day" opens next Tuesday at the Appleton Theater, for a three day showing. Heading this delightful comedy drama, of a day in spring, when Cupid turns a staid suburban family upside down in romantic whirls, are Olivia de Havilland, whose excellent work, and striking beauty, you will remember, in "Anthony Adverse", "Charge of the Light Brigade" and other films, and whose fan mail now is said to be largest on the Warner Bros. lot; plus Anita Louise, whose blonde and striking beauty has graced "Green Light" and other notable films, besides Ian Hunter, Roland Young, Frieda Inescort and Alice Brady. The dialogue is brilliant and witty, and some moments of tender sentiment is promised.

Bright with action and romance and sacrifice, colorful with its picturesque setting in a tubulent gold camp of the fifties on the slopes of the California Sierras, "The Outcast of Poker Flat" offers a wealth of interest to film-goers. Preston Foster is starred and Jean Muir heads the notable supporting cast of this picture version of Bert Harte's famous story, which will be the second feature of this program.

In its dramatic crises the offering is said to attain unusual heights. The story covers a ten-year period in the Mother Lode country during the early boisterous years when adventurers from every corner of the globe flocked to the new Golconda, and every man carried his own law in the form of a cap-and-ball revolver stuffed in his belt or of a derringer up his sleeve. Gun battles, fortunes won or lost by the turn of a card or the spin of wheel, the coming of law and order, religion and education, the jealousies and romances that stemmed from its progress—these are all woven into the vivid pattern of the film.

FEATURES IN "MAYTIME"

Jeanette MacDonald, who with Nelson Eddy were co-starred as the singing sweethearts of "Naughty Marietta" and "Rose Marie," return to the Elite Theater for 3 days starting next Wednesday in Sigmund Romberg's spectacular musical love story, "MAYTIME." Others in the cast are John Barrymore, Herman Bing and Tom Brown.

Nesting of Birds Will Reach Peak This Month

BY CLARA HUSSONG

By the middle of June every bird which we can hope to see either as a summer resident or as a spring migrant has made its appearance and the bird lover's study of the spring migration comes to an end. During the last weeks in June more species of birds are engaged in home-making activities than at any other time and it is during this time that the bird student who wishes to take a census of the nesting birds in his neighborhood will find either eggs or young birds in the greatest numbers.

Some of the earliest arrivals, like the robins, have started to raise their second brood. For more than a month young robins attempting to fly have been a common sight. Now they are learning another lesson, to come when their mother calls for a meal of juicy worms on the ground. The clucking calls of the mother and the harsh squeaks and squawks of the young are annoying but these unpleasant sounds are forgotten when an adult male pauses in his work of helping the mother bird feed the young and favors us with his springtime carol.

Hunt in Rocking-Chair

Long before the young birds are fully grown the parents start to repair the old nest or build a new one. Nearly every home, either in the country or in town, has one or more of these bulky nests of mud, twigs and leaves on its grounds. Usually these nests are built in trees but sometimes you will find one on any suitable projection from house, shed or barn.

The robin takes less pains to hide its nest than most birds do and frequently suffers for it. He is a sociable fellow and wherever man is, you will find cats, killers of young robins either in the nest or on the ground when the young birds begin their own hunt for food.

The best way to discover what birds nest near you is to listen to the songs of the adults. At this time of the year adult birds stay close to the nest and when you hear a certain bird sing, day after day, from the same spot you can be quite sure the nest is near. So, your nest hunting can begin in a leisurely manner, from a rocking-chair on your porch.

For a few days listen to the birds and make a list of those which you hear most frequently. Then, by consulting a bird book, you will know where to look for each bird's nest. Don't expect to find the nest in the tree or bush which the bird uses for its singing perch. Birds are too wise to advertise the whereabouts of their precious nestful of eggs or young. Usually you will find the nest just a short distance from the male's singing perch.

Variety to be Heard

One of the sings you are sure to hear is the rapid trill of the chipping sparrow, a song which reminds me of the sound made by tiny beads being shaken in a glass or bottle. Look for the horse-hair nest of this sociable little bird in a bridal wreath bush, flowering currant, or in a cedar hedge or small tree. Most sparrows build on the ground but Chippy builds his home several feet from the ground.

From my own front porch I have heard the following birds during the last few days: robin, chipping and song sparrows, oriole, tree and barn swallows purple marten, pewee, cowbird, wren, starling, goldfinch, brown thrasher, catbird, chimney swift, meadowlark, warbling vireo, redwinged blockbird, killdeer, savanna sparrow, spotted sandpiper and bobolink.

The last six on the list are not strictly town birds and their presence must be explained. About a block away is a flat meadow sloping toward a railroad track, and birds frequenting this place can be heard from my home. Of the six which I have heard and seen there, none but the sandpiper surprised me by its presence

Bluebirds Took House

Each year more and more birds occupy man-made homes. A few weeks ago I saw a pair of eave swallows in possession of a bird house evidently meant for martens. Instead of the forked tail of others of the tribe the eave or cliff swallow has a short, straight tail. A dull white forehead and a rufous-colored rump are two other marks by which he may be known.

Everyone loves bluebirds and to have one nesting in your bird house is a distinct favor. About a month ago a pair of bluebirds were observed by one of my acquaintances in his back yard. Anxious to have them reside there he hastily built a bird house and set it up near a clump of shrubbery. Twenty minutes later the birds inspected it and in a short time began carrying straw for the nest.

Now they feel that not only do they own that particular bird house but several others as well, for perching sites. Soft-voiced and beautiful as they are, they are decidedly plucky and sometimes aggressive. The man in whose back yard they are nesting says that sparrows steer clear of them and even the starlings are put to flight when trespassing on the bluebirds' domain

Marx Brothers Coming to Rio

"A Day at the Races" Is Latest Laugh Extravaganza

The uproarious antics of the absurd Marx Brothers — Groucho, Harpo and Chico — together with the admirable supporting work of Maureen O'Sullivan, Allan Jones, Margaret Dumont, Esther Muir and others, combine to make "A Day at the Races," latest Marx laugh extravaganza, which opens at the Rio theater Friday one of the deliciously amusing photoplays of this year or any other year.

It would be difficult to imagine any picture being funnier than the last Marxian epic, "A Night at the Opera," but their current vehicle with its hilarious plot shifting between a sanatarium and a race track, with Groucho in the role of a horse doctor, Chico as a jockey and Harpo as a race track tout, undoubtedly tops even the former picture for side-splitting situations, rib-tickling dialogue and howling characterizations.

When you add to this the excellent singing of Allan Jones in such captivating song numbers as "On Blue Venetian Waters," "Tomorrow Is Another Day" and "A Message from the Man in the Moon," and a spectacularly beautiful water carnival sequence — you have a picture which blends hearty humor with romance and music to make entertainment plus.

Comedy predominates, however, as it cannot help but do with the Marxes in the stellar roles, and such scenes as the trio literally pasting Esther Muir to the wall behind wall paper, or giving what must be the most preposterous medical examination ever conceived of to Margaret Dumont, will have the audience roaring. "A Day at the Races" may aptly be termed a laugh-masterpiece.

Hollywood News And Gossip

BY ROBBIN (WHERE-AM-I) COONS

Smoewhere-in-California— Seems to me the solution ought to lie in a nutshell. This Culver City-Hollywood name-changing feud, I mean. The question is, can one nutshell hold all the nuts?

It's a long story, but a good deal can be left on the cutting-room floor. Hollywood is only a dateline, not a city. Culver City is a city, but not so often a dateline. Putting those two and two together, Culver City ups and mentions it would like to take over the name of a place that doesn't exist. Oddly, from such a place, the protesting Nays rose in chorus to put DeMille's fabled affirmative corps to shame.

The proposition has both places in a dither, if you can call a dateline a place.

If you know your Hollywood, you know there isn't any. It hasn't any mayor, and city hall, any police department, any railroad station, any city limits. It has a chamber of commerce, a postoffice and a postmark, and a name.

One Had Meaning

Once upon a time Hollywood was a place. The earliest settler called it "Hollywood"—the story goes—after certain natural beauties.

Hollywood gave up its identity to Los Angeles in return for—of all things—water. The mother city, I am informed, turned the faucet on abstractedly, with a condescending gesture, and kept a speculative eye on the boundaries of San Francisco. The mother city didn't know, then, that the joke was on her.

Plunging right into the pool, or whirlpool, you'll find you get a wee bit giddy. You might, first off, take the attitude that Culver City should call itself anything it pleases, including all cars.

The Real Sufferers

But there are complications, as if the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce hadn't thought of plenty already. I'm thinking of us dateline-users. We'd be the ones to suffer. That's justice, because we probably caused all the confusion. But justice isn't always fun

If we'd been specific in dateline, maybe this wouldn't have happened. Like this: "Southeast Corner Stage 12-A, Burbank, Calif.—Jack Warner today," etc. Or this: "Garbo's Bungalow, M-G-M, Culver City, Calif.—Grabo smiled, loved, laughed, danced, hop-skip-and-jumped today," etc. That would have satisfied everybody.

But this does worry me. If Culver City becomes Hollywood, North Hollywood will have to be Northnortheast Hollywood, West Hollywood will be East Hollywood, and South Hollywood will have to revert to its original name, Los Angeles

It would play nob with our pat language too. We say an actor "Goes Hollywood" and that covers it. But then—has he gone "Culver City-Hollywood" or just "Hollywood-Hollywood?"

It's a headache-fraught situation. Until this thing blows over, address me at Little Rock, Ark. The folks down there have made up their minds.

COLBERT IN GREATEST SUCCESS

Claudette Colbert scores her greatest success in "I Met Him in Paris," playing at the Rio theater through Tuesday. Robert Young and Melvyn Douglas are her ardent suitors in this picture that sweeps from New York to the night clubs of Paris, and to the Swiss Alps where the thrilling winter sports are depicted. The second feature on the program is the famous "League of Frightened Men," in which Walter Connolly portrays Nero Wolfe, ace of detectives, matching wits with a sinister slayer.

Legislators, Tired After Hectic Week, Now at Home

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—Senators and assemblymen now are enjoying a weekend of rest after one of the most hectic weeks of work in recent years.

As peace reigned once more in legislative chambers, old timers discussed the stirring battles of the week, principally the historic passage of the LaFollette administration's Wisconsin Development authority bill after a spectacular, nerve-wracking all day session Wednesday, a session which for clamorous debate, abusiveness, desperate parliamentary strategy, and above all, excitement and popular interest, has not been equalled in recent legislative history.

Before an audience which left limited standing room only, senators Wednesday figuratively tore at each other's throats as a determined conservative minority racked its collective brains and exhausted the parliamentary dictionary for devices to halt the crucial power bill, one of those measures which the chief executive has informed his legislative lieutenants must pass this session.

"Good Show" On

Before galleries packed with rapt spectators, senators clashed through a long morning, straight through the lunch hour, and grew steadily more irritable. Gradually the word spread through the capitol that a great show was in progress. Departmental employes from all parts of the building filled every entrance to the senate chamber, dashed away at noon for a hasty luncheon, returned to find the senators, hungry, tired, some of them furious, but determined, the Progressives to pass the bill, the Republicans and Democrats to block it.

The afternoon wore on slowly, with no respite or prospects for a respite. Finally Senator Maurice Coakley, (R), Beloit, the parliamentary strategist of the conservative block who had kept the presiding officer, Lt. Gov. Henry Gunderson, at his wits end all day, signalled to his allies in a last desperate attempt to foil the administration. They "ducked" despite attempts of the sergeant's force to stop them. Coakley and a dozen others ran hurriedly from the chamber, so that the Progressives were left with less than three-fifths of the house present, necessary for passage of appropriation of bills.

Progressives promptly placed a call on the house, under which the sergeant's force is directed to bring in absent members, by force if necessary. Dutifully veteran Emil Hartmann and a coterie of assistants went to work. Corridors were combed, and hurried telephone calls made. Fifteen minutes passed. Hungry senators grew restless, asked for a report from Hartmann. He reported that the truants could not be found. This brought a suggestion, in acid tones, from Senator John E. Cashman of Denmark, that Hartmann try again, and the added significant reminder from the senate manual that "the sergeant of arms holds his office at the pleasure of the senate."

A few minutes later Hartmann reported an unsuccessful search. Up jumped Herman J. Severson of Iola, the senate's senior member, already impatient at the frequent indulgence in horseplay in the house during the week, who rapped out a suggestion that Hartmann enlist the aid of the city police.

That, replied the sergeant, would be impossible without subpenas for the absent members. Ready for anything by this time, the remaining senators quickly voted to order Chief Clerk Larson to draw up subpenas, while Senator Severson, thoroughly exasperated, made dark hints of the possibilities of contempt proceedings. In 1921, he recalled, a senator absent without leave who refused to return when a call was placed on the house was arraigned in a contempt trial which resulted in a "substantial fine" and a public apology.

Thus the afternoon wore on. Finally the escaped senators were brought back, led by Senator Harry W. Bolens, 73 year old leader of the opposition, who shouted defiantly that no power under the sun can keep him from getting his noonday refreshment, and now that he had it, he was ready for anything

With their return, passage of the bill was quickly written into the house journal at 4:45 in the afternoon. Wearily the lawmakers tramped out of the capitol, some jubilant with victory, others bitter at the final defeat after the all-day fight. At the same time the galleries were emptying and spectators leaving with vague marvelings at "the great game of politics."

CO-STAR IN "THE GO-GETTERS"

Charles Winninger is cast as Captain Ricks and George Brent and Anita Louise are the young lovers of "The Go-Getter," based upon one of the famous Captain Ricks stories, and which is now enjoying a sensational run in Chicago. It comes to the Appleton Theater soon.

Hopalong Rides Again at Elite

William Boyd to Take Part of Noted Fiction Cowboy

Packing punch and action in one hard riding, fast shooting scene after another, "The Eagle's Brood," showing at the Elite theater today and Sunday, another in the series of famous "Hopalong Cassidy" stories to come to the screen, distinguishes itself from the usual outdoor drama with ace high performances from a stellar cast, unusually finely photographed scenic backgrounds, and a swift moving, original plot.

Again we see Clarence E. Mulford's noted fiction cowboy prototype in William Boyd again cast in the colorful role of "Hopalong," fearless cow puncher in the days of the old west. Beside him rides his impulsive, youthful pal, "Johnny Nelson," again created by the personable film find, Jimmy Ellison.

In "Eagle's Brood," "Hopalong" finds new and exciting adventures in a lawless border town Cassidy has become a man of the law, a peace officer who can use his head as well as his hands. Together they ferret out a band of badmen who have held the town of Hell Center in a reign of terror, and succeed in wiping them out and restoring law and order to the community, and solve the mysterious disappearance of the young grandson of a notorious bandit. "Hopalong" and his pal succeed in tracking down the murderers of the boy's parents in true Western style.

Bartholomew Plays In Story by Kipling

One of the great sea stories of modern literature, Rudyard Kipling's thrilling saga of the Gloucester fishermen, comes to the Rio theater soon with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's picturization of "Captains Courageous," with Freddie Bartholomew, Spencer Tracy, Lionel Barrymore and Melvyn Douglas in the leading roles.

For the first time in his screen career Freddie Bartholomew plays a wholly American boy, a wide departure from any previous role. As Harvey Cheyne he is the pampered son of a millionaire who has never known the meaning of work and worthwhile effort. Bound for Europe on a superliner he falls overboard off the Newfoundland banks and is picked up by a fishing dory manned by Spencer Tracy, the latter playing the part of Manuel, a Portuguese fisherman.

"Men are Not Gods" Is Gay Triangle Tale

The romantic complications that ensue when a dramatic critic's impulsive secretary alters one of her boss's reviews and sends an actor she has never seen soaring to overnight fame are described in amusing fashion in "Men Are Not Gods," Miriam Hopkins' latest starring vehicle which comes to the Elite theater on Monday and Tuesday, Bargain Days.

Gertrude Lawrence, Sebastian Shaw, Rex Harrison and A. E. Matthews are prominent in the supporting cast of the film which Walter Reisch directed from his own original story.

A bright, modern comedy with a powerful dramatic climax, "Men Are Not Gods" tells the story of pretty Ann Williams, secretary to Mr. Skeates, London's leading dramatic critic. When Ann lets herself be persuaded by an actor's wife to turn a vitriolic review of the actor's "Othello" into a "rave," she automatically lets herself out of her job and into one of the most dramatic triangles the screen has ever shown.

Hopkins, McCrea are Co-Starred Fifth Time

Miriam Hopkins and Joel McCrea are co-starred in their fifth production, "Woman Chases Man" at the Appleton Theater starting next Friday, on the double feature week end program. Charles Winninger also has a prominent role in this screwiest comedy, with a wild, wild woman heading a hilarious love chase, to have you ga-ga with gags. Ella Logan who recently appeared in "Top of the Town" again appears in this production, as well as Erick Rhodes, well remembered for his comedy characterizations. This is a Samuel Goldwyn production, as were other features in which the two stars appeared together, including "Barbary Coast" and "These Three"

The second feature on this program, "Love From a Stranger," brings lovely Ann Harding back again in a hair raising, spine tingling story, starting out innocently enough, and building slowly to a terrific climax.

Local Women To Attend State Meet

A LARGE number of Appleton women will attend the state convention of the Grand Army of the Republic and its federated societies Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at Sheboygan. The local Women's Relief corps will send an especially large delegation as it hopes to elect one of its members, Mrs. Clara Miller, department president.

Mrs. Miller, who is now department patriotic instructor, will go to Sheboygan Sunday to dedicate a memorial bench at 3:30 in the afternoon at Voirath Park and Bowl, Sheboygan. The bench is a memorial from the Women's Relief Corps to the Grand Army, and will be dedicated by Mrs. Miller by virtue of her state office. Memorial vases and benches will also be dedicated by the other federated societies of the Grand Army. At 8 o'clock Tuesday night, in the Sheboygan High school auditorium, Mrs. Miller will be in charge of the Women's Relief corps patriotic institute, a program which will be open to the public.

Another member of the local corps, Mrs. Lydia Bauer, will serve on the state credentials committee at the convention.

Memorial Service

J. T. Reeve circle, Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic, of Appleton will conduct a memorial service at 1:30 Tuesday afternoon. Those who will take part in the service are Mrs. Evangeline Farwell, Mrs. Frank Leininger, Mrs. Mell Buxton, Mrs. John Van Caster, Mrs. Carl Conrad, Mrs. Con Riggles, Mrs. Hugh Pomeroy, Mrs. Earl DeLong, Mrs. Blanche Kubitz, Mrs. Dudley Pierce, Mrs. Charles Thompson, Mrs. George Jackson, Mrs. Walter Hoppe and Mrs. William Hoh. Others will probably attend from Appleton as visitors.

Mrs. Hoppe, department counselor, and Mrs. Pomeroy will leave Monday for the convention as the former will attend a meeting of the council of administration in the morning. A business session will take place in the afternoon, and Tuesday morning there will be a department Betsy Ross breakfast. Mrs. Hoppe is acting as department secretary for the club. The convention banquet will be Tuesday night at Foeste hotel. The Appleton delegation will march in the parade on Wednesday, and a campfire that evening will bring the convention to a close.

FORMER APPLETON GIRLS VISIT RELATIVES IN CITY

Three former Appleton girls came this month from New York and California to visit with relatives here, and each brought with her a baby just a little over a year old. To 16-month old Barbara Heustis, shown at the left with her mother, life has been just one amazing thing after another these last weeks. First she and her mother, Mrs. Robert L. Heustis, the former Jane Thomas, sped eastward from their home in Hollywood, Calif., on one of the new streamlined trains, and then, when she had hardly become used to her new surroundings here, a photographer came and flashed a bright light in her eyes. Mrs. Heustis and Barbara are staying with the former's mother, Mrs. J. E. Thomas, 35 Bellaire court.

On the same train that brought them from Hollywood came Mrs. Walter Alderton, the former Helen Trever, and her 15-months old son, Gregg, who are shown at the lower right. It is the first time that the baby's grandparents, Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Trever, 417 N. Durkee street, saw the child, and he is king of the Trever household these days. At the lower left is Mrs. D. W. Davis, Buffalo, N. Y., and her son, Bruce MacLaren Davis, who was one year old on June 12. Mrs. Davis, the former Catherine MacLaren, is shown with her baby in the garden at the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. B. MacLaren, 739 E. College avenue. (Post-Crescent photos)

Reports of State Meet Are Heard

DELEGATES and other council members who attended the annual grand convention of the United Commercial Travelers of America at Superior the early part of the month, Jack Cornell, Tabor Davis, Charles Rumpf, W. E. Rollinson, H. E. Helbing, George Limpert, Jr., A. W. Hoffman, L. E. Pease and C. J. Hanlon, gave reports of both the business and social side of the convention at a meeting of the Appleton council of the organization Friday night at Odd Fellows hall. The reports were given uniquely, as H. E. Helbing, senior counselor, likened each of the nine men to each of the nine players on a baseball team.

The auxiliary held initiation of candidates at its meeting last night, and Mrs. H. E. Helbing, Mrs. Jack Cornell and Mrs. W. E. Rollinson, delegates to the convention, gave their reports. Plans were also made for the annual auxiliary picnic to be held Monday at Alicia park. Cards will be played at 3 o'clock, and supper will be served at 6 o'clock. Husbands of the auxiliary members will attend the supper. Mrs. C. W. Lathrop and Mrs. L. J. Micheln are co-chairmen of the committee in charge, and their assistants are Mrs. L. F. Zeh, Mrs. A. C. Borschell, Mrs. Max Bauer, Mrs. A. J. Loveland and Mrs. Nora Krueger.

Mrs. E. P. Grignon, chairman of the auxiliary's executive board, was presented with a basket of flowers in honor of the twenty-fifth anniversary of her marriage.

Eighty-four council and auxiliary members remained to play cards after their respective meetings. Prizes at bridge were awarded to L. J. Micheln, E. Turton and Mrs. George Dame, and schafskopf winners were A. A. Krueger, Mrs. George Kuehnel and L. L. Dietz. The committee in charge of the social hour consisted of Mrs. Harry Dietz, chairman, Mrs. E. V. Schueler, Mrs. H. K. Pratt, Mrs. William Lemke, Mrs. Nellie Carey and Mrs. Anne Meidam.

Beg Pardon

An item in Wednesday's issue of the Post-Crescent erroneously stated that the West End Tavern had been sold to Mike and Bertha Winter by Henry Kleibl. The story should have read that the tavern had been leased to the Winters.

Oil Parking Grounds At Vocational School

Summer repair at the Appleton Vocational school has been started and workmen now are busy oiling the parking grounds near the school. The board of vocational education recently authorized the building and grounds committee to spend up to $1,000 on repair work this summer.

Appleton Sisters Become Brides in Double Ceremony At Sacred Heart Church

IN a double wedding ceremony at 8 o'clock this morning at Sacred Heart church, two sisters, the Misses Marcella and Lucille Schueler, became brides of Ervin Rasmussen of Kaukauna and George Gokey of Kimberly, respectively. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. F. L. Ruessmann, pastor of the church. The brides are daughters of Mrs. Frank Schueler, 585 E. Calumet street, Mrs. Rasmussen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Nils Rasmussen, 414 Sixth street, Kaukauna, and Mr. Gokey's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gokey, 44 Sidney street, Kimberly.

Mrs. Harry Horn, Kaukauna, and Mrs. Olive Wisnesky, Kimberly, were matrons of honor, and Miss Frances Leisch, cousin of the bride, acted as maid of honor. James Laux played the organ and Mrs. Anna Moder and Miss Alma Linden sang "Ave Maria," "On This Day O Beautiful Mother" and "O Lord, I Am Not Worthy." A wedding breakfast and dinner were served at the home of the bride's mother, and after a brief reception the two couples left for a honeymoon at a resort on Lac de Flambeau. Mr. and Mrs. Rasmussen and Mr. and Mrs. Gokey will reside in Appleton on their return.

Van Den Wymelenberg-Cleary

At 10 o'clock this morning in St. Paul's church, Combined Locks, Miss Martha Van Den Wymelenberg of Wrightstown was given in marriage by her father, John Van Den Wymelenberg, to George Cleary of Chicago. Miss Anna Van Den Wymelenberg, Combined Locks, was maid of honor, and the Misses Mary Jane Niven, Chicago, and Marcella Van Den Wymelenberg, Green Bay, were bridesmaids. John Mittler, Chicago, was best man, and Clem Van Den Wymelenberg, Milwaukee, and Norbert Van Vreede, Chicago, were ushers.

A niece of the bride, Ruth Marie Van Den Wymelenberg, played the organ, and a nephew, Cyril Van Vreede, played violin selections. Two younger nephews, Marlin Van Den Wymelenberg and John Van Vreede, Jr., served at the mass. The marriage service and nuptial high mass were sung by a cousin of the bride, the Rev. J. D. De Wild.

Following the ceremony breakfast was served in the priest's home for members of the wedding party. A reception was held at the home of the bride's father in Wrightstown in the afternoon, and a dinner for the guests, numbering about 75, will be served in the hall of St Paul's church at Wrightstown.

The couple will leave on a 10-day wedding trip to a resort in the heart of the Rockies at Evergreen, Colo., and upon their return will live at 2744 N. Parkside avenue, Chicago. The bride attended Northwestern university.

Anniversary Of Priest to Be Observed

SUNDAY will mark the twenty-fifth anniversary of the ordination of the Rev. Gilbert Heuel, O. M. Cap., former director of Monte Alverno Retreat House, to the Catholic priesthood. In observance of the jubilee, Father Gilbert will celebrate a solemn mass of thanksgiving at 10:15 Sunday morning at St. Joseph's church at which the Rev. J. Shanahan of Milwaukee who was deacon at Father Gilbert's first mass 25 years ago, will act as deacon. The Rev. Gerard Hesse, O. M. Cap., will be sub deacon and the Very Rev. Cyprian Abler, O. M. Cap., will preach the sermon.

Dinner will be served at 1 o'clock to visiting clergy at Monte Alverno Retreat House, and there will be a public reception all afternoon and evening to give friends of Father Gilbert the opportunity of congratulating him on his anniversary. Benediction will take place in the chapel of the retreat house at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon, at which time Mrs. Raymond Peeters will be soloist and there will be organ, violin and 'cello accompaniment to the hymns.

The reception is under the direction of members of Monte Alverno Retreat House Guild. Father Gilbert was instrumental in the building of retreat house here and acted as the first director after its completion before he was transferred to St. John's church in New York City. He has been at the retreat house for the last few months.

BOOK REVIEW

New Reggie Fortune Detective Tale Makes Excellent Reading

By Jean Wiley Thickens

BLACK LAND, WHITE LAND. By H. C. Bailey

With the advent of warm weather one's impulse is to confine his reading to the lightest type of literature. For those indolent ones, which probably include a large slice of the reading public, "Black Land, White Land" by H. C. Bailey should fill the bill most satisfactorily. It is one of the Reggie Fortune novels and has been chosen as the Crime Club's selection for 1937.

Reggie Fortune is the modern counterpart of the immortal Sherlock Holmes. He is a well known London physician. His vocation is medical research but his avocation is criminal research. He works independently but his investigations into baffling criminal cases, especially murders, are always welcomed by Scotland Yard, and their most brilliant operators are constantly at his command when-ever he requires outside assistance to supplement his own efforts. Reggie Fortune is a bit hard-boiled, terse of speech, and his humor is of that mordaunt type that one would expect of such a man. He is a student of the classics, and his judgment of human nature-its follies and foibles-verges on the psychic.

The significance of the title of Mr. Bailey's novel is found in an ancient village proverb to the effect that "black land, white land, are always at strife." The black land is that rich alluvial soil which belonged originaly to the first settlers, a small dark tribe, until a large, blond and more energetic breed of men crowed the original settlers off of their valuable acres and onto the poor chalk soil of the "white land". From time immemorial there has been a bitter hatred of these successful interlopers, in the hearts of the dispossessed. This seething hatred is the foundation for a series of mysterious murders, the solution of which Reggie Fortune eventually brings about, tho almost at the cost of his own life.

Reggie Fortune's good friend old General Duddon, a prominent villager in an amateur archiologist who is forever poking into mounds, caves and the sides of the cliffs which border the sea on the white chalk land. When a section of the cliff breaks away disclosing human bones, he sends post-haste for his friend Reggie to come down from London to help him solve the mystery of the prehistoric human remains. Reggie Fortune's trained eye sees at once that the bones are quite recent and he suspects they are those of the son of one of the prominent village families, whose disappearance baffled the local constabulary about ten years ago. The unearthing of these bones precipitates a series of unexplained murders. There is a plethora of clues, and the trails cross and recross like a rabit warren until the reader's mind is dazed by the number of leads which seem to get no where.

The only daughter of the Tracy family, a lovely young girl of twenty, is deeply in love with the only surviving child of the Aston family, a fine young man of twenty-five. Both families have or generations been rivals for the rich black land. Because of this family feud a marriage between the lovers is forbidden by the parents of both. They elope and thereby throw more fuel on the fires of hatred which blaze in the parental hearts. Another murder follows, that of old Tracy, and suspician seems to point to young Aston as the murderer of his father-in-law. Then the young wife disappears and it looks like a hopeless tangle until Reggie Fortune's scientific brain unravels the snarls. The apparently unrelated clues all fall into their appointed places and the ancient proverb about the Black land and white land is no longer applicable, for the feud is dead.

Order Speed on Paving Plans for Two Streets

The board of public works yesterday afternoon instructed the city engineer to engage one or two additional men to help in drawing plans for paving W. College avenue and S. Lawe street so that they may be presented to the common council for consideration by next Wednesday night. The action was taken so that the streets can be included in the summer's paving program.

Frank Huss, Kaukauna, low bidder for the rent of a power shovel and trucks for grading work on the streets, was engaged for the work. The city clerk was instructed to solicit bids for sewer stubs on various streets to be paved.

The board also approved paving of reinforced concrete, hot sheet asphalt and cold sheet type for resurfacing of College avenue and Washington streets.

Preemptive Bids May Spur Opponents Into Overbid

BY ELY CULBERTSON

Preemptive bids have much greater potential value than merely shutting out the opponents. They may do just the opposite, namely, spur the opponents into a perfectly natural overbid. Consider West's dilemma after the preemptive bid in the hand shown below. This hand occurred in a match point duplicate game, and the varying results were a significant commentary on the opening bid chosen by each South player.

South, dealer.

NORTH
♥ 10
♦ K 10 9 6 3 2
♣ K 8 7

WEST
♠ Q 10 9 8 3 2
♦ A Q 5
♣ A 9

EAST
♠ J 4
♥ 8 4
♦ 8 7 4

SOUTH
♠ K 7
♥ A K Q J 7 3 2
♦ J
♣ Q 10 4

Those North-South teams that were not using the two-way three-bid had to start with one heart, since South's hand was too strong for an old-fashioned preempt. After a one heart opening West never even approached trouble. He overcalled with one spade and the bidding then proceeded: two diamonds by North; pass by East, and South either jumped in hearts or made the better duplicate bid of two no trump, eventually arriving at four hearts or three no trump.

At the tables where North-South were using the two-way three-bid, a three heart opening put West in a highly embarrassing position. With a six card higher ranking major suit and two and one-half tricks in the minors, West could not be severely criticized for stretching to three spades. But the balance of power in North's hand wreaked havoc on this more or less forced overcall. North naturally doubled and normal defense defeated the three spade contract three tricks, 600 points.

Since the best that North-South could do offensively was five no trump (660 points) the teams that started with one bids found themselves out of the running on this particular board.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Question: Partner opened the bidding with one spade. Next player passed. What is the correct bid by third hand with:

♠ A 9 5 ♥ K Q 8 6 ♦ Q 10 7 ♣ A Q 5?

Answer: Three no trump.

Old Gardener Says:

BY E. I. FARRINGTON

No better plant to give continuous bloom throughout the summer can be found than the tuberous-rooted begonia. There are single and double forms in many colors, and the blooms often resemble carnations, camellias, daffodils and roses. They are excellent for use as summer bedding plants or for ribbon border, especially in partial shade. They are also useful for window boxes and porch boxes and make attractive pot plants. Started plants, which can be set out at any time up to the middle of the summer, can be obtained from greenhouse growers in most localities. These begonias require a rich soil. They grow best if mulched with old manure after they are

Crepes Suzettes

4 eggs
2 tablespoons granulated sugar
1-3 teaspoon salt
2 cups pastry flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1½ cups milk
1 teaspoon grated orange rind

Beat the eggs 2 minutes. Add the rest of the ingredients and beat until very smooth and creamy.

Pour one-fourth of the batter into a frying pan in which a tablespoon of butter has been used to grease the sides and bottom. When the pan becomes smoking hot the suzettes should be added. Carefully turn when the under side is brown. (It will require about 4 minutes for this dessert to cook. It is done when it is well browned.) Spread with the filling and roll up. Then bake the rest of the batter in 3 different bakings. Top with orange sauce.

Filling

3 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons confectioner's sugar
¼ teaspoon grated orange rind
¼ teaspoon lemon extract

Orange Sauce

¼ cup orange juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1-3 cup granulated sugar
2 tablespoons flour
¾ cup boiling water
2 tablespoons butter
¼ teaspoon grated orange rind
¼ teaspoon grated lemon rind

Blend the fruit juices with sugar and flour. Add the rest of the ingredients and cook until thick and creamy. Stir constantly.

My Neighbor Says—

Remove the side shoots of tomato plants in order to make strong plants. When these shoots are removed the plants bear more fruit.

When making jams be careful that only dry fruit is used. If it is wet there will be difficulty in keeping the jam and it will become moldy very quickly. Boil the fruit as soon as posible after gathering.

Never roll pie crust immediately after removing it from the refrigerator. Take it out of the refrigerator about an hour before using and you will have a better crust.

Powdered or confectioner's sugar that has become lumpy should be pressed through a fine-meshed sieve or rolled with a rolling pin.

Cut back snapdragons, if they appear to be going to seed, to about three inches above the root and you will have another crop of blossoms this season.

Never use a damp or wet cloth or holder in removing a hot dish from the oven or stove. A dry one prevents the heat from penetrating and scorching the fingers.

Uncle Ray's Corner

A Little Saturday Talk

While I was writing about old-time circuses, my mind traveled back to my boyhood when some other boys and I got up a circus of our own. We formed a "menagerie" composed of animals which were close at hand—a dog, a cat, a hen, a rooster, and maybe one or two others. We put them in crates, so that the audience would be able to see the "jungle life."

We also practiced the acts. My chief work was to take part in a duel with a neighbor boy, acting out a passage in Scott's "Lady of the Lake" which I had been studying in school.

We sold tickets and people came from far and wide — from distances as great as two miles. There were about 30 persons in the audience, and they paid five or 10 cents apiece.

A boy named Paul Porter was the ringmaster, and he certainly did well, especially when telling about the "death - defying" and "magnificent" acts which were to take place. As I look back, it seems to me that his talks to the audience were worth far more than the price of admission. (Paul now has a daughter about 11 years of age, and she is a reader of our stories.)

The circus went along very well. The only sad part came during the act of one of my older brothers. It was announced that he would perform "a bareback ride while standing in his stocking feet." In practice, he had met fine success, but on that day our family steed (good old Dick) must have felt "skittish." At any rate he balked, and my brother did not travel more than five feet in his "standing bareback ride" before he was tossed off. He landed in sand, however, and was not hurt. All in all, we were well content with our circus. I don't remember what we did with all the money we collected.

My father used to take us children to a "real" circus each year. Sometimes it was Barnum and Bailey, sometimes Ringling Brothers. Once it was Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show.

I was interested in the rough-riding Indians and cowboys in Buffalo Bill's show, but the thing that pleased me most was a close view of Buffalo Bill himself. I happened to be standing close by when he was riding into one of the entrances of the big tent, perhaps an hour or two before the performance started. I have a fairly clear picture in my memory of him as he sat there, very straight in the saddle. He was then about 62 years of age, and his hair, mustache and short, pointed beard had turned gray, almost white.

Elder's Actions Often Criticized by Youth

BY ANGELO PATRI

Young people, those in full adolescence, are inclined to be harshly critical of their elders. Youth and inexperience combine to give the young people a feeling of knowledge and wisdom that is not in proportion with the facts. They are certain where informed people are in doubt. They are positive in denunciation where experienced and better-informed people are silent and sympathetic. Youth does not know that it does not know and consequently makes some serious mistakes.

One of these mistakes, very common indeed, is the readiness to express an opinion about people or things that they can have little knowledge of. "Old man Rogers is a regular skinflint. He walks to his office just to save a nickel and he eats crackers and milk for his lunch. The old miser."

The other young people nod their heads in acquiescence and add their bit: "Some Scrooge. And he has barrels of money." "Yeah, wouldn't you think he'd want to do something with it instead of just piling it up and piling it up?" Some even go as far as to make their remarks loud enough for the Old Scrooge to hear as he passes them on the street.

One day Old Scrooge passes on, very suddenly, and the townsfolk, most of whom were aware of it long ago, but hadn't felt called upon to spread the word to the children, knew that Mr. Rogers walked to the office for his health's sake, ate his light meals for the same reason. And he had left most of his money to build a school, an endowed school, for the youth of his home town. Children do not always know even when they have the evidence of their eyes. Eyes are limited when it comes to judging human values.

The young people are often critical of mother and dad. "Why doesn't dad extend his business? What's he afraid of? Why doesn't mother try to spruce up a bit? The idea of buying that old place in Bilberry! What's the idea? Just to use money, or what? The folks are so old-style they don't know what's going on. They're back in the nineties. I'd tell them a lot, but they don't listen to me. They're going to get stung, and how. But what do you expect?"

Older people do not claim to be all-wise, or in the least degree, perfect, but they have some stored experiences that help them to get along in a complex world and enable them at the same time, to carry along a couple of critical, if not too helpful children. They would welcome the children's co-operation, but they know better than to abdicate in their favor.

What Age asks of Youth is a little cooperation, a degree of understanding, and, above all, an affectionate attitude that shows itself in kindly actions and courteous words. Father is not likely to open his heart and his books to the critical superior youth. Mother is not likely to explain her plans for the future to the young person who brushes her off the stage with a cool, "I'll tell you now to do this. You listen to me. Your dated but I'm up-to-the-minute and a second ahead." Not likely.

It is fine to be young, but it is better to be understanding.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Superfluous Hair Shows More in Sun

BY ELSIE PIERCE
On Superfluous Hair

M. E. I.: It is true that superfluous hair is more obvious in the sun; and it is also true that exposure to the sun may tend to stimulate the hair growth. If the hair is not very dark, coarse or noticeable my advice would be to try bleaching first before you do anything about removing the hair. You were wise not to experiment with a depilatory cream. This is permissible for use on arms or legs where it doesn't matter so much if the hair comes in darker and heavier as well as coarser. But the only permanent method of removing hair satisfactorily to the best of my knowledge, is electrolysis at the hands of an expert. I would like to send you my complete bulletin on the subject of superfluous hair, if you would enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope and request the bulletin by name.

Oily Blonde Hair

Blondy: Of course, it's the excess oil that makes your blonde hair look drab. You admit that it looks golden and lovely after the shampoo. Then shampoo frequently. No, shampooing is not harmful — that's an old-fashioned notion. The only things that make shampooing harmful are caustic soaps, improper rinsing and artificial drying. The last, if you are accustomed to having your hair set in a beauty shop, can be counteracted by an occasional oil treatment. Soap generously (you may use a special blonde hair shampoo if you wish; but be sure you use shampoo in liquid or jelly form, not the cake). Rinse very thoroughly. To the next to the last rinsing water add the juice of two lemons, leave on the hair for about five minutes, then rinse this out thoroughly. It will cut the curd as well as any remaining excess oil. Occasionally you may add two teaspoonfuls of bicarbonate of soda to the last rinse to cut the oil. My bulletins "Home Care of the Hair" will give you a great deal of valuable information if you wish to write for them enclosing a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope.

Don't Bleach Baby's Hair

Grandmother: Some mothers have a queer standard of beauty—queer in that their opinion is so "set." Your daughter thinks blonde hair is the highest beauty ideal. It is lovely. But I agree with you that strong bleaches do not belong on a baby's hair. If the hair is to darken in spite of gentle, hygenic care I would let Nature take its turn, at least until the young one is old enough to decide for herself. For myself I would rather see my daughter's hair a healthy, shiny, gleaming brown or brunette than a harsh straw-like, lifeless, bleached blonde. Continued bleaching will rob the hairshaft of its very life. It's a pity.

My complete new booklet "Reduce by Exercise" (Booklet 202) is yours for ten cents. It covers the subject thoroughly. Send for it, giving your name and full address to the Bell Library, care this newspaper, 247 W. 43rd street, New York, N. Y.

GOOD TASTE TODAY

YOUR OWN FOOD?"

Dear Mrs. Post: Do you think that it is "cheap" for a hostess to give a party for intimate friends and ask each one to bring something toward the refreshments? Every one likes to come to our house because we have a rumpus room, which has a good space for dancing and a pool table and other attractive games which one couldn't ordinarily keep set up in the living rooms of the house. Always our friends say, "Oh, don't have anything to eat; if you'll just let us come." Which is all right except that my family gets hungry and can't leave the others to go foraging in our ice-box. I can't possibly suggest that we go to a restaurant to eat because this would be ten times as expensive as supplying our ice-box. So far no one has ever suggested bringing anything and I hesitate to offer to contribute just part of supper because they are coming to our house where I ought to supply it all—only I can't!

Answer: This would not be an easy problem for most of us. It is true that certain spontaneous people can be confidingly frank under even such circumstances without hurting the feelings of any one and without seeming "cheap" at all. They would with laughing casualness say "Will you bring this?" and "Will you bring that?" and "I'll provide the other." The only thing that most hostesses could do, however, would be to confide in a really intimate friend who would at some time suggest to the others that they each in turn take something in the way of food.

* * *

Dear Mrs. Post: If an American goes to visit in a foreign country, should he try to follow the customs of that particular country or follow those of his own country? I tried to fit myself into the foreign patern lately and a friend with me accused me of going "high hat" and un-American. I assure you that I had no such intention, but always thought one should try very hard to do this.

Answer: You are entirely right. Perfect manners are those which do not attract attention. The perfect cosmopolite is one who through long practice has learned so well to match the background of whichever country he is in as to be inconspicuous.

Good Clothes May Help Reform Many Children

BY DOROTHY DIX

Authorities in charge of a state orphanage announce that they are curing their problem children with pretty clothes, silk stockings, natty ties and shirts.

DOROTHY DIX

When a girl is slouchy and slovenly and won't comb her hair, they don't punish her by locking her up in solitary confinement. They buy her a silk frock and give her a permanent wave. Forthwith she throws back her shoulders and struts around and spends hours on her coiffure. When a boy plays hooky from school, they don't tan his hide. Instead, they substitute Klassy Klothes for his overalls and he feels it no more than his duty to give his teacher a treat by looking at him.

Certainly this method of reforming obstreperous children by dolling them up belongs to the sugar-coated-pill school of social remedies, and will doubtless be one that youngsters cry for, as the advertisements say. But carping critics may doubt its efficacy, as so many of our neighbors' kids, who make our lives a torment to us, have been clothed in purple and fine linen from their layettes up. Nor has our observation shown us that there is any restraining power in glad raiment that makes those who patronize the specialty shops and swanky tailors conduct themselves with more decorum than those who buy their frocks and suits off of bargain counters.

Indeed, a cynic might go even farther and say that the love of clothes is the beginning of evil, especially so far as the feminine sex is concerned. There is no denying that the grand passion with women is a passion for clothes and that more girls are led astray by hats than ever are by men.

The basis of nine-tenths of the husband-and-wife quarrels are over the wife's dress bills. Innumerable homes have been broken up and divorces granted because husbands always exclaimed when their wives asked for a new frock: "What, another? Where's the one you bought last year?" Or because husbands failed to notice when their wives had on a new creation. Or, if they did notice, burst into loud guffaws of ribald laughter, and said: "My lord, but that rig certainly does make you look like a figure of fun!"

But while it is true that putting on a pair of silk stockings does not invariably lead the wearer to yearn to walk the strait and narrow path, it is folly to deny the influence that our clothes have upon us, and that in the great majority of cases we do more or less unconsciously try to be what we look like. Nor is it to be denied that to be well dressed does bolster up our morale and stiffen our backbones. It gives us a self-confidence that we lack when we are shabby and know that we look like down-and-outers. Somebody has said that there is more moral support in a coat that fits in the back than there is in the strongest religious convictions, and it is true.

It is because we all instinctively dress our part that makes it a pretty safe bet to judge people by their clothes. Of course, there are exceptions to the rule, but taking it by and large, the great majority of people express themselves in their attire.

If a man, for instance, is slovenly; if he is unshaven and unshorn; if there are spots on his waistcoat and his linen is soiled, he is almost invariably lazy, unwilling to work or take trouble about anything and generally no-account. If a man always picks out the wrong cut and color of clothes; if he will wear the coat of one suit and the trousers of another and a necktie that swears at his shirt, he is unobservant, pays no attention to detail, has poor judgment, and no matter how hard he works he will never succeed.

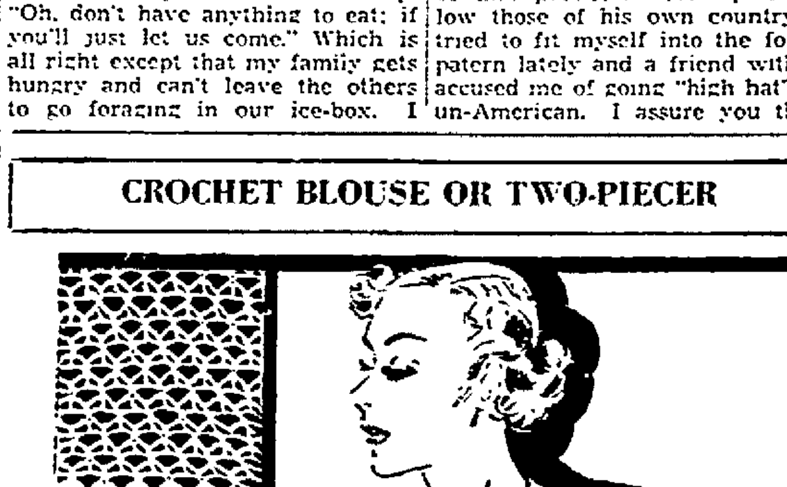

But if a man is always immaculately dressed; if his clothes are well chosen though cheap; if his shoes are polished and his clothes pressed; if he has made the very best he can of his circumstances, then he is a good man to hire, go in business with or to marry. He will succeed.

Same way with a woman. The woman who dresses beyond her means will keep her husband's nose to the grindstone as long as he lives. The woman who wears a spangled dress and a flowerd hat to market has no judgment, and she will misraise her children. The woman who never looks spick-and-span and never has the right clothes for the right place will be a poor housekeeper and a poor manager every time.

So perhaps the orphanage is right in dressing children in the way it wants them to go.

Rohan Plans to Continue Fight on Milk Price Bill

Kaukauna Legislator Threatens Denunciation Of Party Members

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—Assemblyman William Rohan (D), Kaukauna, Democratic firebrand of the legislature's lower house, threatened yesterday to rise on a point of personal privilege for a joint denunciation of his Democratic party colleagues and the department of agriculture and markets.

Rohan's threat was the result of his resentment of the assembly's treatment during the week of his desire for immediate consideration of the fluid milk price control law, passed by the senate and supported by the department of agriculture and markets.

Rohan, avowed enemy of the department and almost any legislation backed by it, is especially angered at the prospect of a reenactment of a milk price control law, which expires at the end of this month. Prepared to fight the measure, and to unburden his mind of his many differences with the state department of agriculture, the assembly Thursday whisked the measure away to the finance committee over his objections.

Disgruntled because only six of his Democratic mates supported his objection for immediate action on the bill, Rohan yesterday promised "dynamite" when the bill is returned from the finance committee.

If the Kaukauna assemblyman fails in his efforts to defeat the measure, he has prepared for introduction an amendment to strike out fourth class cities and villages from its provisions, and is confident that he can obtain its adoption.

In the meantime other members explained that reference of the controversial bill to the finance committee is equivalent to killing, for many feel that the bill will not be reported by that committee before adjournment, which is generally expected to be July 2.

Flashes of Life

By the Associated Press

Indianapolis—James Overton, 52, was leaving the courtroom after his acquittal on a charge of robbing a street car operator, when the judge asked if he had ever been arrested before.

"This is the first time, judge," responded Overton, "but we didn't have any food in the house and we needed the money."

Judge Frank P. Baker let the acquittal stand.

Panic

Pittsburgh — The reason why 15 women patrons and a half dozen operators poured in panic from that beauty salon was a lone rat.

The rat strolled across the floor, related Manager Anne Winterhalter, and sat down in front of a customer "just as bold as you please and gave her a dirty look."

The customer fled, accompanied by all the other customers and the salon staff.

17 Cases of Measles Reported in County

Measles, with 17 cases in Appleton and one in Kaukauna, headed the list of communicable diseases reported in Outagamie county during the week ended June 12, according to a state board of health report received by Miss Marie Klein, county nurse, from the state board of health. There were 23 cases of whooping cough in Shiocton, but that report covered a 2-week period.

The state listed, in addition, 4 cases of chicken pox, 1 of scarlet fever and 1 of tuberculosis in Appleton, 1 of chicken pox in Kaukauna, 2 of chicken pox in the town of Maple Creek, 1 of influenza in the town of Oneida and 1 of pneumonia in the village of Shiocton.

Daughter of Co-Founder Of Ripon College Dies

Los Angeles—(AP)—Mrs. Julia M. Ely, whose father was one of the co-founders in 1850 of Ripon college at Ripon, Wis., died here yesterday at the age of 100.

She was the mother and grandmother of eight United States army officers and enlisted men. Mrs. Ely came to southern California 13 years ago from Wisconsin where her husband, a Civil war veteran, helped organize the Republican party. Her father was the Rev. Dana C. Lamb.

Approve Increase in Award for Right-of-Way

An increase of $1,105 in the award for 3.8 acres of his farm land taken for Superhighway 41 right-of-way has been approved for John P. Diedrich, town of Vandenbroek, by County Judge F. V. Heinemann.

Diedrich originally was awarded $880 but claimed the amount was insufficient. Following an action in county court, Judge Heinemann ordered payment of the additional $1,105 including $105 for a new cattle crossing, $500 for inconvenience and $500 for addition depreciation.

national neutrality fleet, created a new international situation in the Spanish strife.

A communique said Ambassador Joachim von Ribbentrop, in London, had been instructed to make urgent representations to the neutrality committee.

Germany and Italy were induced to renew cooperation with the "hands off Spain" committee after previous attacks on their ships by assurances that all four nations comprising the international fleet—Germany, Italy, France and Great Britain—would regard new attacks by Spanish government guns against neutral warships in Spanish waters as the "common concern" of all.

The communique declared the four powers now were obliged "to take appropriate measures." After Spanish government planes bombed the German pocket battle ship Deutschland last month, German warships bombed Almeria, Spain, in retaliation.

Insurgent artillery shelled Madrid, possibly indicating a new attack on the long quiet front.

General Alfio Russo, head of the Italian fascist militia, proclaimed to party members throughout all Italy that the Italians killed in the defeat of the Spanish insurgents on the Guadalajara front last March must be "avenged now for eternity."

British and French government officials attempted to work out a new system for protection of refugee ships evacuating civilians from Bilbao in response to a Basque government plea for larger convoys.

Marine officials at Oran, Algeria, investigated mysterious wreckage washed ashore at Saida. Coast inhabitants said the debris was cast up after they heard and saw what they believed was a naval cannonade a few miles at sea.

The flight, preliminary to establishment of a contemplated Moscow-San Francisco air service via the North pole, would surpass any previous non-stop flight. The greatest distance ever flown was 5,637 miles between New York and Syria. The Frenchmen Paul Codas and Maurice Rossi made that record in 1935.

The trio, Pilot Valeri Pavlovitch Chkalov, 33; Co-Pilot Georgi Philipovitch Baidukov, 30, and Navigator Alexander Vassilievitch Belikov, 40, reported Moscow the big, single-motored plane was working well, but weather conditions forced "blind flying."

"It's getting colder," their radio flashed late last night. "We are heading directly toward Rudolph island radio station."

The hazardous flight, which turned back the first trail blazers in 1935, began from Chelkoff airdrome, near Moscow, at 4:05 a. m., Friday (7:05 p. m., Thursday central standard time).

Behind a veil of nearly airtight censorship, the fliers were many hours on their way before news of the venture leaked out. Even then, progress reports were guarded.

The plane has a gasoline capacity of 2,000 gallons, enough to supply the 12-cylinder, 950 horsepower motor for 100 hours of speeding the 24,750-pound craft through the air.

Log of Flight

By the Associated Press
(Time is central standard time)

Thursday

7:05 p. m.—Single-motored monoplane hopped off from Moscow on 6,000-mile non-stop flight to Oakland, Calif., on San Francisco bay.

Friday

4 p. m.—The three airmen reported "all well" and flight proceeding normally.

7 p. m.—General William E. Gillmore, National Aeronautics association representative, estimated fliers 550 miles south of North pole. Sometime during the night Russian pilots began flying blind and as they flew into sub-zero weather ice began forming on the plane's wings.

Saturday

2:20 a. m.—Army signal corps picked up message reporting "everything all right" giving position 320 miles on American side of pole.

4:30 a. m.—The trio was reported 500 miles south of the pole.

Explains Opposition to Health Insurance Measure

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—Explaining his opposition to the Biemiller compulsory health insurance bill, which he helped to send to its death this week, Assemblyman Mark Catlin (R), Appleton, Friday declared that the measure was poorly drawn because it provided for finances at least 20 per cent short of the required amount, and that it proposed to set up a new state bureau which would be "the most dictatorial ever suggested in Wisconsin."

Authorized by Assemblyman Andrew J. Biemiller (P), Milwaukee, who has achieved prominence through the introduction of half a dozen socialized medicine measures, the health insurance bill would have covered 1,000,000 industrial workers and dependents in Wisconsin through a 4 per cent pay roll tax divided equally between the employer and the employe.

No Appeal

Catlin's chief criticism, leveled at proponents of the bill during debate on the floor this week, was the provision for administration by a central state agency which left no opportunity for appeals, something unparalleled in any previous proposal, he said.

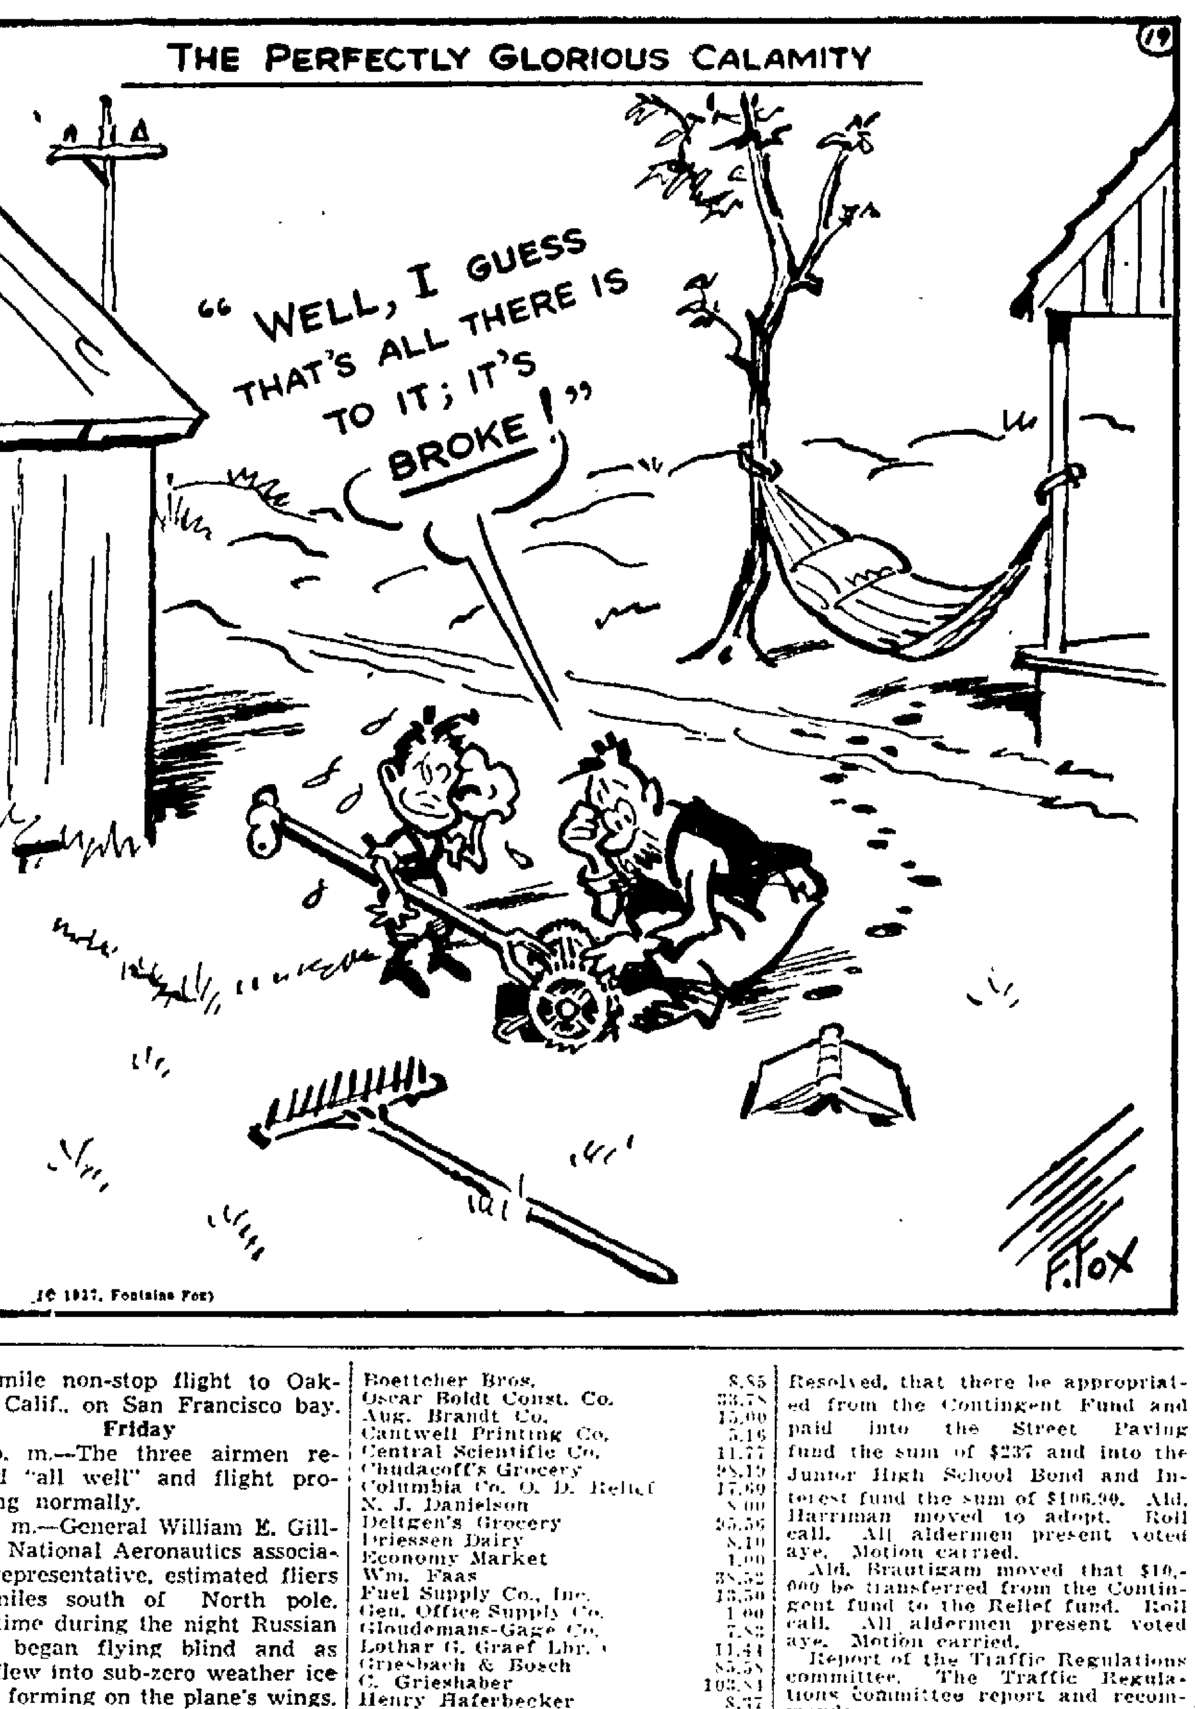

Appeals could be taken from decisions of the administrative bureau, and the fact finding procedure of that buraeu, only when fraud could be proven, a totally unwarranted invasion of the people's rights, he said.

Plan is Different

Replying to arguments of supporters of the health insurance plan that the bill would place on the books a fourth point in a social security program which already counts unemployment compensation, accident benefits, and old age pensions, Catlin asserted that the health insurance plan differs and cannot be ranked with the first three because there would be no cash benefits under health insurance.

Finally, he concluded, the health insurance proposal violates fundamental concepts of the medical profession. It would bring a third party, government, between the traditional private relations of the doctor and his patient, and it would by standardizing fees standardize and lower the quality of medical service rendered, he said.

Hamiltons and Bordens Win in Softball League

INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE

	W.	L.
Hamiltons	3	0
High Lifes	2	1
Gehrkes	2	1
Bordens	1	2
Edisons	1	2
Plywoods	0	3

New London—The Bordens softball team blanketed the Plywoods, 2 to 0, and Hamiltons won out in a loose game with the Edisons, 8 to 5, in a double-header under the lights at the city ball park last night. Both games were decided on errors, especially the Hamilton game where the Krauters gained eight runs on four hits and six errors. Wild pitching in the second game accounted for a total of 18 walks between the two pitchers.

The Borden-Plywood opener was a snappy game with good pitching by Wells and excellent support from his Borden team. The Plywood managed only one hit, a single by Servis in the sixth inning. They never reached bases except in the fourth inning on two errors, and a walk and fielders choice in the seventh. Elroy Stern and Vernon Burton got to third and second successively on errors but the next two batters fanned and the other popped a fly to center field to chop the scoring threat short.

Score in Fifth

Red Barlow and Leonard Hoffman scored for Bordens in the fifth inning when the former singled first up and Hoffman, Sawall, and Demming followed on errors. They came close to scoring in the first inning, and in the sixth when Glandt pulled a 2-bagger with Fellenz on as the result of a single.

Servis worked the mound for the wood workers and besides the six hits collected, he struck out four without walking any. Wells duplicated the strike outs but walked one man.

Charlie Nader was throwing wild for Hamiltons last night but Gottschalk was even worse for the Edisons with a total of 11 walks. Charlie walked seven. Both struck out six.

Carl Eberts was about the only Hamilton hitter to come through unscathed with a home run and two singles accounting for three of the teams four hits. His accomplishments at bat brought in one runner each in the first and third innings and another besides himself in the sixth when he hit the homer.

Score But Don't Hit

Except for Ebert the Krauters gained bases only on a walk or an error, and an occasional fielders choice. Two runs in the fifth were counted entirely on four walks and a fielders choice.

The Edisons tied up the game with three runs in the third inning when Edminster walked and Sweedy followed with a single. Soffa brought them in with a 2-base hit and with two men down worked himself across the plate before the last batter went out at first. Edminster started a scoring circuit by opening the fifth inning with a double and Watkins did the same with a single in the sixth. Both batters made the rounds of the bags.

Several Arguments

The game was held up several times because of arguments on the rules, regulations and fine points of the game. Edison players consistently objected to Nader's stance in the box but there was no rubber in the box to bring the objections to a head. Umpire Justinger's decision of out on a runner's leading off first base precipitated arguments which held up the game for a long while in the sixth inning. Christian was the offender on the Edison team and was still ruled out when the game was resumed.

Marshall Ladwig, Hamilton's first baseman, was forced to leave the game in the first half of the sixth when runner Watkins spiked him in his rush to first. Ladwig left the game to care for a wound to his leg.

Monday evening Gehrkes will make a bid for first place in an encounter with the leading Hamilton club.

New London Women Take Part in State Meet of Relief Corps

New London — New London women taking a prominent part in the fifty-fourth state convention of the Women's Relief Corps at Sheboygan Sunday through Wednesday are Mrs. L. J. Manske, state president; Mrs. Ed Jagoditch, state secretary; and a group of New London delegates including specially appointed officers.

Mrs. C. J. Berg of Iola accompanied the group to Sheboygan this morning as personal page to Mrs. Manske. Among the delegates are Mrs. John Yost, department color bearer; Mrs. Ed Kleinbrook, president of the New London camp; Mrs. L. S. McGregor and Mrs. Nellie Wells who have appointed department postmistresses; and Mrs. William Anson. Miss Jean Dawson will act as stenographer for the convention.

A junior meeting was held at Sheboygan today. It is expected other representative groups from New London will attend the convention for brief periods.

Service Officers Leave for School

Waupaca, Outagamie and Winnebago Counties Are Represented

New London — F. J. Meinhardt, Waupaca county veterans' service officer, left this morning with Edward E. Lutz and William Miller, officers of Outagamie and Winnebago counties, respectively, to take part in a 2-day school for service officers at Camp Douglas, Wis.

Officers from all over the state are gathering at Camp Douglas where cavalry units of the Wisconsin National Guard are in training. The officers will be guests of the state adjutant-general's staff. Governor LaFollette will take part in a Governor's Day program there Sunday. The men will return Sunday evening.

At least four New London boys have received official notice to appear at C. M. T. C. camps on July 6, Meinhardt reported. Those who have met all the entrance requirements and will enroll in the basic infantry course at Ft. Schnelling, Minn., next month are Robert Wilkinson, Harold Markman, and F. J. Meinhardt, Jr. Evan Stern will go to Sparta, Wis., with the artillery units.

Compensation Case Heard at New London

New London — A hearing under the Workmen's Compensation act to determine the extent of disability claimed to have been suffered by Richard Gehrke, an employe of Gehrke Brothers Hardware, on Dec 28, 1936, was held at the city hall yesterday morning before an examiner of the Wisconsin Industrial commission. Gehrke claims disability as the result of an injury to his spine while loading heavy machinery for the hardware company.

REMOVE TRAPPED PICKEREL MINNOWS

New London—About 25,000 pickerel minnows have been rescued by members of the New London Fish and Game club during the past few weeks from the shallow marsh of Colies' slough on the Wolf river near the cut-off. About half the number were saved by trapping and transferring to the river in pails. Shown above at a ditch dug across a barricading road in the marsh are M. J. Heinz, left, and Art Lasch emptying the net, and Rudolph Ploetz and Fred LaMarche. The boy is Robert Kalwitz, a nephew of Mr. Heinz, who tags along and invariably out-fishes the "big shots." This group and others have attended the traps daily for several weeks. Catches at first amounted to nearly a thousand but very low water has reduced the number to several hundred. Minnows range from four to eight inches long. The club is watching conditions in other marshes and waiting now for a shipment of 500 pheasant chicks to raise and turn loose on game lands after six or eight weeks. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Shiocton and Dale to Play Night Game At New London

New London— Though the Brews are resting next week, New London fans will have an opportunity to watch other New London boys play when Shiocton and Dale take over the park here for a postponed Outagamie County league game under the lights at 8:30 Thursday night.

Smokey Lathrop, New London's own product, will hurl for Shiocton with his brother, Harold, also appearing in the lineup. Opposite them are more New London boys, Melvin Glock, Dale first baseman; Dan Meshnick, second baseman; and Dave Freiburger, fielder. All three boys starred when Dale defeated the Greenville Merchants 12 to 2 last Sunday.

Dale is second in the county league with a 3-3 record and Shiocton is third with four wins and two losses.

Tuesday evening will see a girls' softball game under the lights at the park when the 1936 state champions, the Oshkosh Winnebagolands, will try New London's team, Bumps Bowlby's Candy Girls. Some new and outstanding players are promised in the New London lineup.

The girls will meet a Little Chute girls team here tomorrow afternoon.

New London Society

New London—A party for several honored guests will be given by the New London Order of Eastern Star at the regular meeting at the Masonic temple Monday evening. Mrs. Gorgon Popke, Oshkosh, and Mrs. Harold Spindler, Fremont, two members of the local group, will be guests at the meeting.

The committee in charge is Mrs. John Bottensek, Mrs. W. H. Towne, Miss Esther Hertel, Mrs. W. Dorschner, and Mrs. Herman Price. Plans also will be completed for the annual lodge picnic next week Thursday.

The Neighborhood club entertained three guests at its last meeting of the season Thursday evening. Mrs. Earl Curry was hostess and guests were Mrs. Elmer Wittlinger, Mrs. Ray Matke, and Mrs. Jack Miles. Guest prize went to Mrs. Wittlinger and the regular prizes to Mrs. Paul Schulz and Mrs. Lizzie Roloff.

Mrs. Leo Herres entertained the Tudafour club yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Leonard Rice and the hostess won the prizes at cards. The club will meet every two weeks during the summer and Mrs. Leonard Rice will be hostess next on July 1.

Mrs. William McKee entertained the Friendly Neighbor club at her home Thursday evening. Prizes were won by Mrs. John Rickaby and Mrs. Nellie Wells. Next week Mrs. Willard McKay will be hostess.

Reelect Officers Of Missionary at Meet in New London

New London — All officers of the Women's Home Missionary society of the Methodist church were reelected at a meeting at the home of Mrs. William Dent yesterday afternoon. Mrs. W. J. McKee continued into her seventh year as president, having held that office since the organization of the society in New London.

Mrs. L. S. McGregor, treasurer, has filled her post for nearly as long. Mrs. C. J. Dean, vice president, and Mrs. F. C. Andrews, corresponding and recording secretary, have been in office the past several years.

Reports also were heard at the meeting. Project chairmen for the year will be appointed later.

Miss Helen and Herbert Geiger returned Wednesday from a 10-day motor trip through the southern states.

A Drowning Man

As a drowning man grasps at a straw, so does the average man afflicted with any form of disease seek relief in the most cleverly advertised medium. He believes misleading statements and unbusinesslike propositions offered in the promises of quick cures, buys experience at the expense of his nerve force and vitality and awakens to the realization of the fact that relief and cure are obtained only through the services of a reputable physician.

When contemplating treatment one should consider the factors of skill, experience and reliability which can best be obtained by consulting the physicians whose reputation among the people of the vicinity for skillful conscientious treatment, entitles him to the respect and confidence of all in need of medical treatment.

Dr. Charles A. Hoag of Chicago, who has visited our city once every month for years, is qualified in every way to fill these requirements by reason of the success which has attended his wide experience. The assertion that there is no doubt of his ability to restore to health those afflicted is based on the fact that he has so successfully treated and cured so many of our friends.

Dr. Hoag may be consulted free of charge and will again visit Appleton, Thursday, June 24, 1937. He will be at the Conway hotel. Office hours 9 a. m. to 7 p. m. Adv.

Kimberly to Play Afternoon Game, Kaws Night Contest

Oshkosh Opposes Villagers, Manty Nine Meets Brews

Little Chute Dutchmen Will Invade Green Bay Sox Park

NORTHERN STATE LEAGUE

	W.	L.	Pct.
Kaukauna	4	2	.667
Manitowoc	4	2	.667
Two Rivers	4	2	.667
Little Chute	4	2	.667
Oshkosh	2	4	.333
Kimberly	2	4	.333
Green Bay	1	5	.167

SUNDAY'S GAMES
Little Chute at Green Bay.
Manitowoc at Kaukauna (8:15 p. M.).
Oshkosh at Kimberly (2:30 p. m.).

KIMBERLY in the afternoon and Kaukauna in the evening will be the baseball setup for followers of the Northern State league Sunday. And if they want an automobile ride with their baseball they can go to Green Bay where Little Chute is booked for an afternoon contest.

The Kimberly game at 2:30 Sunday afternoon will show Oshkosh battling the Papermakers. The Indians took a terrible shellacking from Little Chute last week but Manager Ken Kriesel has promised league officials he'll make it tough Sunday. The Indians have a pretty fair team on paper but they just haven't been getting the breaks. However, their record is the same as Kimberly's—two wins and four defeats.

Lefty Kuenzel is expected to rejoin the Indians Sunday. He injured his arm in the first game of the season and has been resting since. If he isn't available, Kosloske probably will try again. Sonnleitner will do the catching while the league's best slugger, Fritz Wegner, formerly of the University of Wisconsin, will show at first base.

Kimberly Ready

Kimberly is priming itself to do as well as Little Chute did against the Indians. Both Behr and LaDuke will be available for mound duty after a 2-week rest and between them should be able to stop the invaders.

Swen Bowman, who has been hitting at a terrific clip in recent games, will cavort at first and LeMay at second. Horn at short and Strick at third base. The outfield will show Cashman, Zinth and Urby Wildenberg.

The night contest at 8:15 at Kaukauna will bring together the Electric City Brewers and the Manitowoc Shipbuilders and when the firing dies down and the lights are snuffed out one of the teams will be out of the first place tie. Both have won four games and lost two.

The infield will show the usual quartet of Eggert, Vondrashek, Powell and Zelinski, four players who have been working together nicely. In the outfield there will be Vils, Kappell, Bowers, Kelly or Radder. The latter made his debut with the Kaws last Thursday and while he didn't get a hit he is expected to do better Sunday now that he has been initiated to night ball.

Krauss With Ships

Manitowoc started the season rather poorly but has been coming along fast since. The Shipbuilders have a veteran aggregation and also boast one of the hardest hitters in the circuit, Buck Krauss. Last year on one appearance at Kaukauna, Krauss smacked three homers.

Lefty Shoepke will toil for the Manitowoc team with Gray behind the log. Zigmund works at first base. McCambridge, out of high school only a year, at second. Krauss at short, and Rosinsky, a hard-hitting youngster, at third. In the outfield there is the veteran Joe Vnuk in left, Barths in center and Wilda in right.

Little Chute invades Green Bay to battle the cellar champions but with no idea that the contest will be a setup. The Bays have one of the best balanced clubs in the circuit but just haven't started winning games.

The Chuters hoisted their batting averages considerably last week and hope that the tendency to swat the ball continues. They appreciate that in several games they haven't given Dick Weisgerber much of a margin on which to work.

Baker Verstegen is leading the Chuter hitters with a .379 average. He connected five times in six tries last week. Howie Ellis, second baseman, is hitting around .360 following four safeties chalked up last week. Jack Lamers, who got four for five last week, also is expected to continue his slugging. Last week Ellis, Verstegen and Lamers got two hits each in the inning during which the Chuters scored 14 runs.

The Chuter lineup Sunday will have Weisgerber on the mound, Peotter at first, Ellis at second, Bongers short, Verstegen third, J. Lamers catch, B. Lamers or Wildenberg left, Gullickson center, H. Van Dyke right and Strick Jansen and Eddie Schuler for relief roles.

Al Simmons Suffers Broken Bone in Hand

Washington —(AP)— X-ray pictures disclosed today that a bone in Al Simmons's left hand was broken when he was hit yesterday by a high throw from Pitcher Oral Hildebrand of St. Louis. Physicians said the Washington outfielder would be out of the line-up for about two weeks.

"We're Just Here for the Ride," Wisconsin Crew Coach Explains

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.— (AP)— The crew of seven college navies have been furrowing the Hudson for more than a week in final preparation for their big test of the year, the Intercollegiate Regatta here Tuesday.

The favorites: Washington still rules the river as far as records and training go. The husky varsity fought off the challenge of the Jayvees in a test duel yesterday morning and is firmly established as the No. 1 boat.

Forsters Humble Commercial Inns

Appleton Team Plays at Medina Tuesday, at Home Thursday

Forster Tavern softball team defeated the Commercial Inns of Neenah last night at the Forster diamond, 12 to 2. Two Forster hurlers allowed the Inns a single hit. The Forsters collected 11 safeties off three Inn hurlers. Tuesday night the Forsters will show at Medina and Thursday night will entertain the Waupaca club at the Forster diamond on E. John street.

Eddie Mitchell and Joe Hiebel worked for the winners and fanned 11 batters and issued 10 walks. B. Kwiatkowski, Gartzke and T. Kwiatkowski toiled for the losers in the order named.

Forsters scored two runs in the first frame on two hits. They added three markers in the second, one in the third, two in the fourth and four in the sixth. The Inns counted in the fourth and fifth frames.

Brewers Defeated By Toledo, 10-3

Association Race Now Has Three Teams Practically Tied

Chicago—(AP)—The American association race, which only a few weeks ago looked like another romp for the Milwaukee Brewers had three teams practically tied for the leadership today.

Toledo's surprising Mud Hens, cellar occupants in 1936, held a technical edge of three percentage points over Minneapolis, with Indianapolis third, only five points back of the Millers. Milwaukee was in fourth place.

The Mud Hens went into the lead by winning their Friday night tilt with Milwaukee, 10 to 3, getting 14 hits off George Blacholder as Johnson was holding the Brewers to seven safeties. A three-run splurge in the first inning and similar runbursts in both the seventh and eighth frames did the trick for the pace-setters.

Lee Stine weathered a pitching duel with Morton Cooper and Nels Potter as Kansas City nipped Columbus 3 to 2.

Harry Eisenstat, making his debut in a Louisville uniform, shut out St. Paul, 4 to 0, the defeat dropping the Saints into the cellar beneath Kansas City. Eisenstat hurled three-hit ball.

A ninth inning rally fell one run short as Minneapolis bowed to Indianapolis, 5 to 4, to drop out of first place.

Tigers Score Win Over Skunks in Slugfest

Packard Street Tigers defeated the Shantytown Skunks 17 to 16 in a slugfest yesterday afternoon. Milton Dryer and Jerry Zapp formed the winning battery. The game was close throughout with the Tigers finally nosing out the Skunks in the final innings.

KOBAL TAVERN softballers are reposing alone on the top of the American City league today, apparently first round winners, as result of a 2 to 0 victory over the Appleton Merchants in a ding-dong battle last evening at Pierce park diamond.

The only runs of the game came in the fifth inning when Ken Buesing smacked a homer for the Taverns with Stegert on base. The latter had gotten on via a fielder's choice that erased Calmes.

The Merchants threatened in the fifth and later when Cy Burton connected for a healthy wallop into left centerfield which R. Choudoir captured after a great run.

Sonny Filz toiled for the Kobals and allowed two hits, fanned twelve and walked none. Schuerer worked for the Merchants and allowed three hits, fanned three and walked one.

SUNDAY'S GAMES
Menasha at Neenah (2).
Oshkosh at Appleton.
Grand Chute at Green Bay.

Oshkosh will defend its position at the top of the league when it clashes with the Appleton Giesen Taverns Sunday afternoon in a Northern Valley league game at the Third Ward Athletic field. The Cabs have lost only one game in league play and that was to the Appleton team earlier in the season at Oshkosh.

Siegworth, Appleton rookie, who hurled the Taverns to a win over the Sawdust City nine several weeks ago, will be on the mound for Giesens. Alwin of the Cabs will oppose Siegworth, and from the record he has set in his last few games, the Appleton team will do a lot of empty swinging.

Also included in the local lineup will be Mortell, Wonser, Bedford, McClone and Cotton in the infield with De Young catching. Crane, Ripple and Carpenter or Blair will perform in the outfield.

Helen Hicks Enters Western Open Finals

Chicago—(AP)—Miss Helen (Billy) Hicks, the Long Island girl who as an amateur once captured the national and now is the nation's No. 1 business-woman golfer, aimed today at highest honors in the only women's tournament which invites pay-for-play shotmakers—the Western open.

Miss Hicks, by a 5 and 4 decision yesterday over Betty Botterill of Salt Lake City, Utah, reached the finals. Miss Hicks' opponent today will be Miss Beatrice Barrett of Minneapolis, who won yesterday by a 7 to 6 margin over Miss Dorothy Foster, the Springfield, Ill., music teacher.

June 18—Moose 13, Y. M. C. A. 3.

MOOSE softballers walloped in a Fraternal league game the Y. M. C. A. squad 13 to 3 last night at the Wilson field and shoved the squad out of a tie for first place in league standings. The game was a complete rout after the third inning during which the Moose tallied seven runs. Slattery pitched three innings and allowed nine runs to score before he left the mound.

Hebler followed Slattery on the mound and allowed four more runs. Slattery was touched for eight hits and walked two, while Hebler gave up six hits and walked three. The Moose victory avenged an earlier season defeat by the Y. M. C. A. De Decker clouted three hits in four trips to the plate and scored a run to share Moose batting honors with Weber, who socked three hits in five trips and scored twice.

The Moose opened the scoring in the first inning with a pair of runs and routed Slattery with a 7-run barrage in the third. Hebler was touched for two runs in the fifth and one each in the sixth and ninth. The Y's first run came in the fifth inning and another run was scored in each of the seventh and eighth frames.

Motorcycle Riders to Again Try Shawano Hill

Shawano—On Saturday and Sunday Shawano will be host to motorcycle riders who will attend the second consecutive Wisconsin motorcycle rally to be held at Shawano.

In the events last year Lime Kiln hill remained unconquered and it is expected that more than 2,000 riders will journey here with the determination to climb to the peak of the hill.

The program for Saturday will include registration in the morning with the hill climb scheduled for 2:30 p. m. and a polo game scheduled for 7:30 p. m. After the polo game the members will go to Shawano Lake Park for refreshments.

Legion Juniors Trip New London

Appleton Squad Surprises With 5-2 Win; Play Again Friday

The Appleton Legion Junior baseball squad, which has been working out under the direction of Charles Pond for the last couple weeks, rose to new heights yesterday afternoon when it defeated the New London squad, 5 to 2, at the Commercial street diamond. The teams will clash again at the Third ward field next Friday. A practice session for the Appleton squad is planned Monday afternoon at the Third ward.

The Appleton aggregation collected six hits yesterday with almost everyone on the squad taking part in the contest. The group started the practice season looking poorly but with regular workouts has started to show improvement. One of the features of the game was Tom Reider's appearance on the mound. He tossed ten balls and fanned three batters in the final inning.

Among the boys who saw action were Felts, Horn, Berry, Reider, Kitzmiller, Felts, Koehnke, Yankee, Swamp, Gregorius, Shebilske, Lutz, Rollins, Brautigar, Christian, Deegs, Hussey, Choudoir, and Klitske.

Plan of Attack Kept Secret by Champ's Handlers

Just How Jim Braddock Proposes to Fight Joe Louis Is Mystery

GRAND BEACH, MICH.—(AP)—Just how James J. Braddock proposes to fight Joe Louis in their heavyweight title contest in Comiskey Park, Chicago, next Tuesday night, remained the big mystery of the champion's camp today.

Usually Braddock relies upon a long, straight left to keep his man on the defensive while he wades in and punches away with his favorite weapon—A right hand belt—but the Irishman's tactics in recent drills indicate he may have other plans in the back of his curly head.

Last Tuesday and again on Thursday, Jim virtually discarded his left hand safety valve to charge in and wage an aggressive two-fisted war against his five sparring partners. Instead of staying mostly on the defensive while seeking openings for his right, the champion has taken the initiative and has carried the fighting to his shock absorbers.

Jimmy has insisted all along he detected weaknesses in the Bomber's attack and defense and this new style of battling may be in line what he feels is the best plan of strategy for the first defense of his title.

BOMBER PREDICTS KO.

Kenosha—(AP)—Joe Louis observed the first anniversary of his knockout defeat by Max Schmeling today with the very unwilling prediction that he was confident he would knock James J. Braddock kicking within one round.

"I think I can get Braddock in one round," drawled the dark angel. "I feel a hundred per cent better than I did a year ago. I've learned a lot and punch as hard or harder than ever."

A few minutes later, Joe, so I'm told, said he didn't want to be quoted on this round stuff because he thinks it's unlucky. But he said it. Braddock and his noisy manager, Joe Gould, who have been waiting for the annual prediction, can rest easier now.

Most experts seem convinced Louis will have to polish off Braddock within one to four rounds or not at all. In the few fights Louis has been forced to work overtime, he has appeared listless and slow.

Up here, where Louis is reaching his peak with perfect timing, the belief is that Braddock, always a shaky starter and a grand finisher, will try to stall and spar over the first four rounds and then open up if he lasts that long. So, trainer Jack Blackburn expects to send the Bomber out swinging.

Riggs, Hendrix Win At Clay Courts Meet

Chicago—(AP)—California held a three to one edge over Florida in the singles competition today as the 27th annual national clay courts tennis championship went into the semifinals at the River Forest Tennis club.

Walter Senior of San Francisco, Joe Hunt of Los Angeles, and the defending champion and favorite, Bobby Riggs, a son of Los Angeles, were the west coast entries within two matches of the title. The fourth semi-finalist was Arthur Hendrix of Lakeland, Fla.

4 Games Won by Pierce Park Softball Players

It was a big week for the Pierce park softball team as it rang up four victories in as many games, team players reported yesterday as they turned in the results. The club started with a 11 to 2 win Tuesday over an unnamed team. McClone and Vandenberg made up the Pierce park battery in most of the games. Eastman and Brinkman was the losing battery in Tuesday's game. Wednesday the park team nosed out the Slip Slop Sliders, 7 to 6. Tenes and Vandenberg formed the winning battery and Filz and Cooper formed the Sliders' battery.

Hawks were victims of the park squad 8 to 3 on Tuesday. McClone and Vandenberg did the heavy duty for the Pierce team and Tom Reider and Bud Johnson made up the Hawks battery. The game yesterday was a runaway, with the park midgets coming out on the long end of a 27 to 7 score over Junior Eagles. D. Kamps and J. Kamps were the losing battery and McClone and Bushman formed the Pierce battery.

June 16—Congo 19, Methodist 4.
June 18 — Mt. Olive 2, Presbyterian 1.

Mt. Olive defeated Presbyterians 2 to 1 in a Church league game that went two extra innings. Ehlke counted the winning run in the ninth inning when he got a scratch hit, stole second and scored when Schinke hit a long double to center field.

Schinke and Harmansen hooked up in a pitchers' battle with Harmansen giving up four hits to Schinke's five. The Mt. Olive team, however, bunched two of its hits in the extra inning to cop the victory. Schinke also got two hits in four trips. The game marked the end of the first half of the schedule, which saw the First English Lutheran squad as champion.

League officers met last night at the Y. M. C. A. and decided to play two more rounds and to extend the games to nine innings.

Don Budge Crushes Austin in Net Play

London—(AP)—Don Budge, America's top ranking tennis star, crushed Henry Wilfred (Bunny) Austin, British Davis cup ace, 6-1, 6-2, in the final round of the Queens' club tournament today.

Budge's one-sided triumph not only enabled him to retain the title he won a year ago but also established him more firmly than ever as favorite for the all-England championship, starting at Wimbledon on Monday.

The red-headed Californian, in top form, completely outclassed Austin who won only five points in the last six games of the opening set. After the opening game, Budge won the next six in a row for the set and continued his streak through the first two games of the second set before the Briton could win another game.

Nello Pacetti Gets Manitowoc Grid Post

Manitowoc— (AP)— Nello Pacetti, former University of Wisconsin athletic star, was appointed head football coach at Lincoln High school here by the board of education late Friday. In addition to his coaching duties Pacetti will teach classes in physical education. He is at present employed by the Four Wheel Drive Corporation of Clintonville as expert representative.

Following his graduation from Kenosha High school Pacetti entered the state university where for three years he played on varsity football, basketball and baseball teams. In his senior years he won the Rogers scholarship for excellence in academic work and athletics. He coached at West Bend High school for two years after his graduation.

Hurlers Recover So Red Sox, Cards Join Flag Races

Galan's Triple in Ninth Gives Chicago Cubs Win Over Phillies

BY SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

THIS baseball business gets funnier and funnier.

For weeks, a club will stagger along with a pitching staff that's a "cousin" to every other outfit in the league. Then from the same set of elbowers, the same club will come up with a group of starters who are murder to the opposition.

Take the recent cases of the St. Louis Cardinals and Boston Red Sox. Only two weeks ago, the Gas House Gang, with Dizzy Dean doing most of the heavy duty, had dropped to fourth place. The Red Sox, with Lefty Grove slowing up and Wes Ferrell faltering, were under .500 per cent and deep in the second division.

Suddenly, both clubs have become the hottest in their respective leagues, all because of the mysterious coming to life of a pitching "big three" on each outfit.

Lon Warneke hit a winning stride and Rookie Bob Weiland uncovered a lot of southpaw ability to help Dean. As a result, the Cards have won 11 of their last 13 starts and are now in third place, only a game and a half back of the faltering second-place Giants.

Red Sox Win 6 of 7

At the same time, the Red Sox have taken six of their last seven games. They shot into fourth place yesterday with a 5-4 win over the slipping Cleveland Indians.

In the Cards' 13-game streak, only two pitchers have failed to go the route. Dean finished three of four starts, winning three; Warneke went nine innings twice out of three times out, winning two; Weiland went to the post four times and finished on each occasion, dropping one and winning three.

He maintained his record yesterday with an eight-strikeout performance as the Gas House Gang clubbed the Boston Bees 5-2.

The Cincinnati Reds drove Carl Hubble from the hill in less than three innings for a 5-3 win behind Lee Grissom. This setback sank the Giants to a full game back of the National league leading Cubs, whose ninth inning rally beat the Phillies 8-7. Augie Galan, of the Cubs hit a triple in the ninth with the bases loaded.

The Pirates whipped Van Mungo and the Dodgers 6-4. Oral Hildebrand posted a two-hit shutout, pitching the St. Louis Browns to a 6-0 win over Washington. The White Sox-Yankee game was rained out and the Tigers and Athletics were not scheduled.

Larry Greb Is Stopped in 5th

Claims Left Hook to Stomach Is Foul but Commission Says "No"

Sammy Angott, 128½, Washington, Pa., won a 10-round decision over Roger Bernard, 133, Flint, Mich., in the semi-windup.

Lepplas Juniors Win 32-4 Game From Cubs

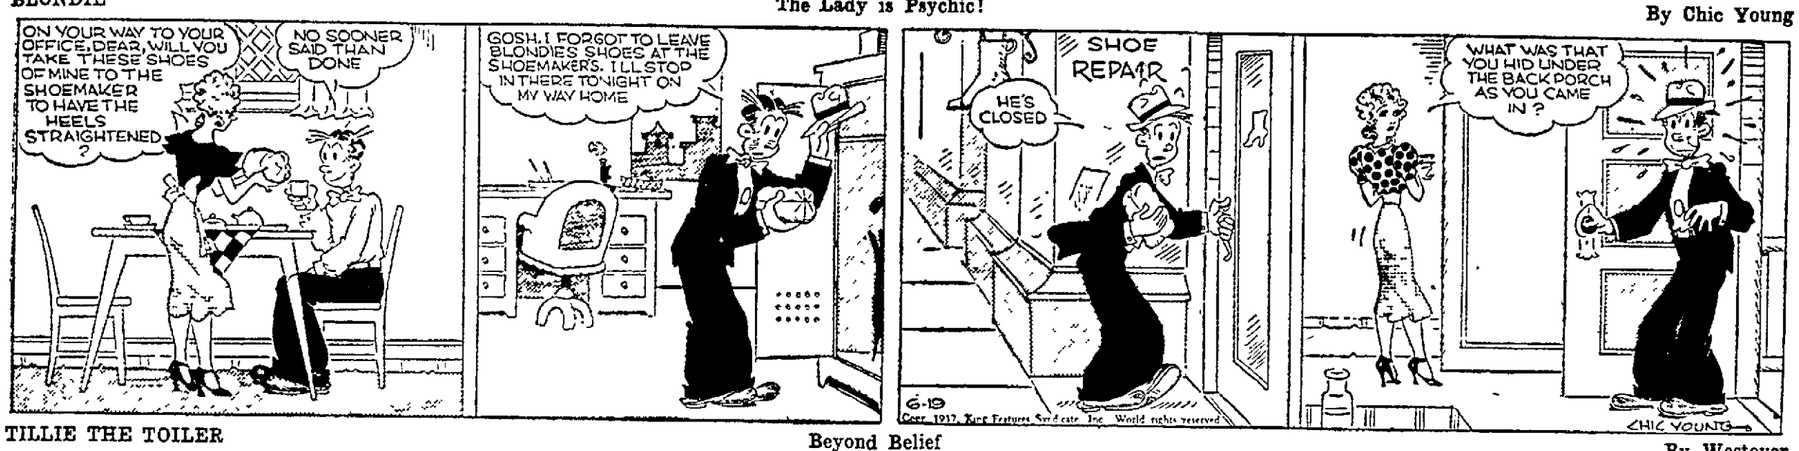

The Lepplas juniors handed the junior Cubs a 32-4 trimming in a softball game at Erb park Wednesday morning. Zimmer and Zuleger cracked homers to lead the winners attack while Turner, Reffke and Wolfe were getting triples. Zimmer and Lueck were on the mound for Lepplas' team with Ronnie Ertl catching. Weinberg pitched and Komp caught for the losers.

MURDER ON THE BLUFF — By ESTHER TYLER

SYNOPSIS: A mysterious shot kills attractive Jude Blinshop on a wild, stormy night at Farrington Bluff, home of Michael's aunts. Everyone marooned on this island is suspect: Mike, who saw Jude alone that night; the Skipper, his tall and tweedy younger aunt; Aunt Martha, stout and prudish; Gay Palmer, Mike's red-headed sweetheart; Higgins, the elderly butler; William, the chauffeur. Cook; Anne, the maid—even I. Mike's closest friend. We believe an outsider, perhaps a maniac, is loose in the house. The dull dawn of the second day finds us nerve-taut and exhausted from futile searching.

Chapter 23

HORROR IN JUDE'S ROOM

IN the game room Michael stood at a window, his back stiff. On a bench in front of the fireplace with her back toward him, Gay was persistently bouncing a table tennis ball. The atmosphere was arctic.

"How cozy," from the window. No response from the bench.

'Or a neck," Mike strode into the hall, slamming the door after him.

I walked over and removed the racquet from Gay's hand. 'You're a good egg, Gay. I've always liked you. But you're digging yourself into a hole that you won't be able to climb out of. Mike is all right. Go take a shower and forget about it."

She got to her feet at that. "Mike," she said furiously, "is a lying skunk. I've just told him so, and now I'm telling you.' And she was out of the room.

'Gay'" I shouted, rushing after her. But she flew up the stairs without looking back.

"Good morning, Mr. Jimmie."

"How's everying below decks?" I said, a bit weakly.

"Fair to middling, sir. Cook But she means well, sir.'

"I'm sure she does. Can you manage breakfast in half an hour?"

"Yes, sir."

I left him there. I had no desire to talk to anybody. Mike's door was closed, and I didn't open it. Did Gay seriously think— The whole idea was ridiculous. I shaved, bathed and dressed in a stupor. Just as I was climbing into a shirt there came a low, insistent knocking on my door.

It was the Skipper's voice. "Jimmie, can you come out here a second?"

I moved to the door. 'Hullo, Skipper. What is it?' I—"

"Don't make so much noise." She was beckoning me down the hall in the direction of her own room. 'Come—quickly!"

I went on the run. The Skipper paused before Jude Blinshop's door, pointing, and my eyes followed the direction of her finger. Jude's door had been forced open. The lock was still on it, but the woodwork had been torn by terrific pressure. We must have all of us come down the hall without noticing. I pushed open the door.

'Don't Go In There!'

In the dismal half-light of the winter morning, the small bed lamp still burned, lending a ghostly unreality to the whole scene. A sheet lay on the floor just at my feet. The bed was empty. I took one half-hearted look under it. One glance into that closet, and I was back in the hall. I must have been jabbering like a monkey.

The Skipper started for the door, and I flung myself in her way.

'Don't go in there'" I was roaring. "Don't—"

She shoved me aside and disappeared through the door. I should have followed her, but I didn't. I leaned against the wall with my head in my hands. 'She was dead.' I was saying it to the empty hall. 'I saw her. I felt her heart. She was dead!"

"Jimmie, quick!"

I couldn't seem to make my legs move. It seemed a century before I reached the Skipper, who was standing in front of Jude's closet, her face reflecting the terror that held me paralyzed.

She was pointing to something long, lumpy and shapeless that lay upon the shelf of the closet. Something that vaguely resembled a stack of blankets. I seized the uppermost blanket and pulled.

A cold, limp hand was at my throat and something soft and heavy was rolling over me. My head struck the floor with a sickening thud. Even then I didn't appreciate the full horror of it. I was on the floor, struggling furiously with something that was draped around me like a vise. I was twisting, pounding, roaring. The world was tumbling in a thundering, blinding wreck about my head.

And then I was on my feet, the Skipper in my arms, and both of us were staring down at a huddled mass on the floor—a blotch of eery blue in that ghostly light. The dead, white face of Jude Blinshop was staring up at us.

I don't know what I did exactly. After a while I tried to quiet the Skipper.

What had been on that bed when I stood alone beside it earlier in the evening? What if I had reached down and moved that sheet! What—I finally managed to move—to lift the body to the bed, cover it with the discarded sheet, and turn out the useless light. When I finished, the Skipper was standing by the door.

'I might have known," she was saying over and over. "I might have known."

I took her arm. "Known what?"

She started, like a person suddenly waking up.

'Quickly, Jim," she said. "We must hurry."

"Wait, Skipper,' I pleaded. "You can't stand any more of this. I'll call Mike and William."

"No" in horror. "Good Lord, no!"

I followed her with no idea of where she was going. So the killer had evaded us by cramming Jude's body onto that shelf, taking its place on the bed, and forcing his way out of the room at his leisure. We could have had him twice. Twice! The Skipper was going down the front stairs and straight to the front door where she paused, pointing jerkily. The heavy bolt had been drawn aside and the key was on the floor. Our man had escaped.

The Skipper flung open the door and dashed out of the steps. Wind whooped around us in fiendish welcome, but the rain had stopped. The Skipper was away—running for dear life toward the end of the house in the direction of the tennis courts. In an instant I was after her, shouting, 'Skipper! Skipper! Wait!"

She never turned. At the corner of the house, she disappeared. At top speed I followed. Once I thought I would catch her as she paused for half a second at the path leading from the game room to the boathouse, but she was off again before I had gained a dozen paces, running straight for the bluff.

That bluff was a sheer drop of 50 feet onto sand or rocks—My eye caught the boiling, roaring surf beyond, and I remembered Michael's experience by the boathouse. It seemed as if my legs would drop under me.

She was nearly there. Desperately I mustered an impulse to close my eyes and avoid seeing it happen. And just at the moment she stopped short, on the very edge of the bluff. Another gasping leap and I was beside her. I had my hands on her, and I meant to keep them there.

Then I too, was staring into the abyss before us—staring at the body of a man lying face downward on a spit of sand in the middle of the Award Contract For Collecting Neenah Garbage

Only Bidder Is Peter Smongesky; $21,000 for Period of 4 Years

Neenah—The contract for garbage collection in Neenah was let to Peter Smongesky on a 4-year basis for $21,000 by the common council at a meeting in the city hall last evening. The police, fire and health committee sought alternative bids including collection of ashes but decided to wait until it could be determined how many citizens would avail themselves of the added service. Smongesky was the only bidder.

Art Sawyer was awarded the contract for repairing and constructing new sidewalks in the city this summer and an inspector will be hired to supervise pouring of concrete. A petition was received for installation of a curb and gutter on S. Park avenue.

Alderman Robert Martens, chairman of the committee on public parks and buildings, said a child waded out into 2½ feet of water at the municipal bathing beach yesterday afternoon after being warned not to go out so far, fell backward and its mother was forced to dash into the water with her clothing on and rescue the child.

Take Down Pier

Alderman Martens said he has promised parents protection to their children at the beach and suggested the pier be taken down so the life guard would have to stay on shore. He said the life guard was sitting at the end of the pier when the accident accured. Alderman William Schmidt reminded Martens that a motion was at a previous meeting giving the committee power to act on such matters.

Martin Potratz was authorized to continue as supervisor of the parking lot on Canal street. Previously, he had announced his intention to move his auto laundry establishment from that location but said his plans had been changed. An offer was received from Ralph O. Thomas to use the area surrounding his service station on E. Wisconsin avenue as an auxiliary parking space. It was suggested the site could be used for parking busses and eliminate turning against traffic on N. Commercial street into the present lot. The committee was instructed to confer with Mr. Thomas and bus line officials.

Report Unfavorably

Alderman Walter Buschey said the committee on traffic and safety did not think it advisable to permit turning right on red traffic light signals as recently suggested because other cities did not allow it and it is dangerous to the pedestrain. He suggested an ordinance be drawn prohibiting U turns on E. Wisconsin avenue from Walnut to Main street and outlawing double parking on Wisconsin avenue.

The present parking ordinance provides that cars must be parked between guide lines at a 45-degree angle. He said something should be done about congestion in the first block of W. North Water street. The city clerk was asked to notify railroad companies of crossing in bad repair.

Fireworks Ordered

The committee on public improvements reported the city was not obligated to move a pole near the Heuer and Co. Funeral home alleged to be interfering with free use of a driveway recently constructed. A motion was adopted permitting the pole to be moved with no expense to the city. Alderman Richard O'Brien said fireworks had been ordered for the Fourth of July celebration at Riverside park and promised "35 minutes of bang."

An old barn located on Fifth street between Nicolet Boulevard and Hewitt street was ordered to be torn down within 30 days. The council decided to widen the intersection of Grove and Washington streets without acquiring additional private property. A resolution acknowledging the services of Harry Holverson, member of the police force for 27 years, was adopted. Holverson retired on pension June 15. The council allowed 94 accounts totaling $4,954.46.

Haufe Will Compete in Meet at Lakeview Park

Neenah — Carl Haufe, Neenah, chairman of the gun committee of the Twin City Rod and Gun club, will compete in the registered shoot sponsored by the Twin City group beginning at 10 o'clock Sunday morning at Lakeview park. Haufe won second place in a 2-day event at LaCrosse last week by breaking 94 pigeons out of 100 at 16 yards and 96 out of 100 at 20 yards.

Many families are planning to spend the entire day during the running of the local club's first registered trap shoot and witness displays of skill by outstanding marksmen from the entire state and inspect unusual guns. Amateur Trapshooting rules will govern the event and scores will be included in official records.

The Twin Cities office of the Appleton Post-Crescent for its editorial, circulation and advertising departments is located at 510 N. Commercial street and the telephone number is 4100. News items, copy or orders for advertising and orders for subscriptions may be left at the office or may be telephoned. This number also may be called before 7 o'clock in the evening for delivery of papers missed by carriers in Neenah or Menasha.

Display Books on Summer Sports at Menasha Library

Menasha— Books on summer sports form the feature display at the Elisha D. Smith library this week. Among the books is one entitled, "Elements of Lawn Tennis," by Doeg and Danzig. There are several on fishing including "The Angler's Weekend Book," by Taverner and Moore; and "Compleat Angler," by Walton. Kitcraft and Kite Tournaments," by Miller is also displayed. Any of the books may be withdrawn.

Another interesting display at the library is a snapshot display on the state of Wisconsin. There are pictures of the Dells, river scenes, lake scenes, sunset scenes, pictures showing resorts, roads and forests. A travel magazine and another on the state parks of Wisconsin is included in the display.

Doubleheader to Feature Battle For Second Place

Menasha and Neenah to Clash in Northern Valley Tilts

Menasha—Baseball fans in the Twin Cities will get their fill of excitement when the athletic rivalry of the two towns flames anew in a doubleheader in the Northern Valley league between the Menasha Eagles and the Neenah Merchants Sunday aftrnoon at Washington park, Neenah.

Booster tickets are on sale at news stands and drug stores and the battle of the cities has been talked up here until officials believe that a record crowd will storm the gates Sunday. The first game will be called at 1 o'clock.

Because Neenah is a rung up on Menasha on the loop ladder, the Red fans are hoping for a win which will put their club firmly in second place. On the other hand, Menasha fans believe that the Eagles have the best team in the loop and are out to capture both games Sunday for the same reason.

Brown On Mound

Buster Brown will get the Eagle call for the mound position in the first game with Smarzinski behind the plate. Brown has turned in some fine performances this season and is expected to win his game. Opposing him will be Orv Schultz in the box and Handler behind the plate. Ted Beach will get the Eagle assignment in the second tilt and will probably work against Bob Jerome of the Neenah squad.

County Boys and Girls At State 4-H Club Camp

(Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau)

Oshkosh — Sixteen Winnebago county boys and girls left for Madison June 16 and will stay until Monday noon, June 21, at the state 4-H Club camp. R. C. Heffernan, county agent, said today. Mr. Heffernan was in Madison with the group Thursday. Miss Helen Briggs, county home demonstration leader, will stay in Madison until the close of the camp.

The county 4-H members now in Madison at the camp are Lorraine Weidenmann, Irene Schultz, Katherine Plummer, Carol Foote, Fern Laiten, Nathan Bowes, Russell Sutherland, Betty Stutzman, Nancy Teela, June Teela, Marjorie Johnson, Hazel Scovell, Lucile Jacobson, Marjorie Cross, Dorothy Weltz, and Donna Grundy.

The Allenville Girls' 4-H club entered the drama tournament at Madison, Mr. Heffernan said, the semi-finals being held Friday morning and the finals to be held Saturday night.

Oshkosh Authorized To Start Harbor Work

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—With the signature of Governor LaFollette on a bill by Assemblyman Leo T. Niemuth of Winnebago county, the city of Oshkosh Friday was authorized to proceed with the development of a harbor on Lake Winnebago at Miller's Bay.

Niemuth's bill deeded to the city submerged lands beneath Miller's Bay for the construction of a breakwater and authorized the city to build a new harbor for light sailing craft.

Woodenwares Win Over Papers, 8-1

Postpone Game Between Bantas and Mill Supplys

Menasha— The Woodenwares marked up their fourth win in the Industrial Softball league by defeating the Edgewater Papers, 8 to 1, last night at the Seventh street diamond.

Hyland, the Paper's hurler, pitched a fine game but received little support from his mates in the pinches. Paveletzke, Woodenware pegger, allowed only two hits and burned the ball in steadily for seven innings.

The other scheduled game between the Banta Publishers and the Mill Supplys was postponed when the Supplys failed to appear with enough men to make a contest.

The Strange Papers and the Marathons will tangle on the Seventh street Diamond Monday evening and the Edgewaters and the Central papers will cross bats on the Greens.

Neenah Woman Fined For Reckless Driving

Menasha—After driving onto the sidewalk in an effort to make the turn at the Brin corner yesterday, Lois Gottfried, Neenah, was arrested and charged with reckless driving. She was fined $5 and costs in justice court this morning by Judge Arthur Ales.

Reuben Johnson, Menasha, paid a fine of $5 and costs this morning on a speeding charge. He was arrested by Menasha police after he had been traveling 45 miles an hour on Racine street and was arraigned before Judges Ales.

Two were fined in justice court today by Judge R. J. Fink on charges of drunken and disorderly conduct. Herman Fish, route 2, Appleton, was fined $5 and costs and Mike Berndt, Neenah, was fined $2 and costs.

Vacation Trip Ends When Car Goes Into Ditch

Blowout Causes Smashup Of Car Carrying Chicagoans

Neenah—A vacation trip for six Chicago persons came to an abrupt end when a blowout forced their car off Highway 45 about 8:30 this morning. None of the persons were seriously injured as the car careened across a ditch and rolled over about four times into a field, two miles north of the intersection with Highway 150.

Mrs. Mary Genge, mother of the driver and Mrs Martha Siwinski, 43, both riding in the rear seat, suffered injuries to their necks and minor bruises and abrasions. John Genge, Jr., 9, suffered a deep cut on his left hand and Miss Adeline Siwinski, recently engaged to the driver, suffered a cut lip, bruised forehead and minor bumps while Jack Siwinski, 10, received minor bruises and the driver was uninjured.

William Genge, 26, the driver had just completed his first year of medical school and the party was bound for a week's vacation at Eagle River. Three barbed wire fences were leveled as the car rolled about 200 feet into the field and was badly damaged. The city ambulance was called and the injured were taken to Theda Clark Memorial hospital for treatment.

BY VICTOR EUBANK

New York—(P)—Stocks drifted in varying directions in today's market and only a few were able to show worthwhile progress.

Strike news, which had displayed some improvement with the appointment of a federal mediation board in the steel controversy, chilled trading sentiment again when Governor Earle of Pennsylvania declared martial law at Johnstown.

Attendance in the boardrooms was the smallest in weeks. The list edged forward at the opening but light profit selling soon impeded extension of the advance.

Transfers were around 300,000 shares.

Shares able to register moderate gains at one time included Bethlehem Steel, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, Chrysler, Goodyear, Sears Roebuck, Woolworth, Consolidated Edison, Electric Power and Light, Public Service of N. J., Standard Oil of N. J., Continental Oil, American Can, Du Pont, Pullman, United Gas Improvement, American Tobacco "B" and Certain-Teed.

Livestock Trade Is Only Nominal

Practically No Activity in Any Department at Stockyards

The fresh run of hogs, 2,500 head, 2,000 direct to packing houses and the buyers did not go into the hog alleys. The market was called nominally steady and generally steady to strong compared with last week's close, except on packing sows which were lower.

Cattle and sheep, as is usual on Saturday, both ruled nominal.

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK

Chicago—(P)—(USDA)— Hogs, 2,500 including 2,000 direct; practically no hogs on sale; nominally steady; shippers took none; estimated holdover 500; compared week ago packing sows mostly 20-40 lower, spots off more on heavy and big weight, others and pigs steady to strong, spots a shade higher.

Cattle, 500; calves, 100; compared Friday last week: medium weight and heavy steers 50c higher; general undertone measurably improved; shipper demand broader; dressed markets actively higher locally, with weekend clearance exciting trade comment; yearlings and light steers 25-50c higher; common and medium grades all weights at new high on crop, average cost all steers standing at 12.00, highest in seven years; cows weak to 25c lower; bulls 10-15c higher; choice shipping vealers steady, others 25-50c lower; largely light and medium weight steer run; extreme top 15.60 paid for 1442 lb. specialties; practical top 14.75; light steers 14.70; heifer yearlings 13.50; largely 11.00-13.50. Bulk cows grassy kinds at 6.00-7.50; choice fed cows to 10.00; stocker and feeder trade strong to 25c higher.

Sheep, 3,000; including 500 directs. For week ending Friday 25,000 directs. Compared Friday last week: native spring lambs 75c to 1.00 lower, spots off more on lower grades; strictly good and choice dryfed yearlings with weight strong to 25c higher; sheep steady; week's extreme top native spring lambs 13.25 paid early, closing top 12.25, week's bulk 11.50-13.00; all bucks at usual 1.00 discount under ewe and wether sorts; most Idaho springers 11.00-11.25; double fed California springers (wooled) 11.50; top dryfed yearlings 10.25, others 8.00-10.00 according to kind; slaughter ewes 2.50-4.50.

Utility Shares Gain in Transactions on Curb

New York—(P)—The laggard utility shares, along with a few oils and specialties, moved into higher ground in the curb market today, but most of the advances were fractional.

Announcement yesterday that the U. S. district court in Tennessee would hear the suit against the TVA in October was credited with a part in the improvement.

Corporate Loans Up In Bond Market Trade

New York—(P)—The majority of the corporate division pushed a little higher in the bond market today, but U. S. government issues were in small demand and tended to sag.

Only nominal interest was manifest and the short session was indecisive in determining trend. Low and medium yield loans fared best among industrials. A few of the carriers faltered.

Downward Drift Rules Chicago Wheat Trading

Domestic Harvest Tops Expectations in Some Southwestern Regions

BY JOHN P. BOUGHAN
Associated Press Market Editor

Rallies failed to hold and bottommost quotations of the day were current in the wheat pit as dealings neared an end. Late advices said domestic harvest yields at numerous places in the southwest were turning out 5 to 7 bushels better than expected.

At the close, wheat was 1⅛-2⅞ under yesterday's finish, July 1.07-07¼, Sept. 1.06⅞-½, corn 1¼-1⅞ down, July 1 12⅞-⅞, Sept. 1.00½-⅞, and oats ⅛-⅞ off.

332 Killed in Crossing Crashes

2-Month Total This Year Is Above Figure for 1936

There were 332 persons killed in railway grade-crossing accidents in the first two months of this year, an increase of thirty-eight compared with the same period last year, according to the Association of American Railroads.

In the first two months this year 1,017 persons were injured in crossing accidents, compared with 936 in the corresponding period in 1936. Reports showed 874 accidents at crossings in the two-month period this year, an increase of forty-one compared with 1936.

In February 162 fatalities resulted from crossing accidents, an increase of thirty-two above those in February, 1936, while 490 persons were injured, compared with 453 a year before. Crossing accidents in February numbered 416, compared with 389 in February, 1936.

Saturday is the day of greatest frequency for accidents at crossings, according to an analysis covering 1935 and 1936 made public by the Interstate Commerce Commission. In about 73 per cent of the accidents last year, the train speed was less than forty miles an hour it was found.

APARTMENT HOUSE

Great Bend, Kas.—(P)—A dog kennel with all the comforts of an apartment hotel is being constructed at Mrs. John Thies' home.

The two-story structure will have 48 "apartments," electric lights, water and sewer system and private runways for the guests—the Thies' greyhounds.

Martial Law Is Proclaimed at Johnstown, Pa.

and the highway patrol, about 500 men, will be in charge.

The home guard and the citizens guard would be disarmed and the steel plant ordered closed.

The governor, in bathrobe and bedroom slippers, declared martial law in his study at the executive mansion in the presence of Major Adams who was summoned from Johnstown early this morning, and Captain Henry, acting superintendent of the highway patrol.

He added that he intended to remain at Harrisburg for the present to direct the situation at Johnstown.

Grace's Statement

At Bethlehem, Pa., Grace placed on Governor Earle today the responsibility of whether the Johnstown plant of the company is to be closed to avert disorder at the demonstration of miners on Sunday.

"For us to close the plant would involve the admission on our part that the forces of law of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania are powerless to protect our men in the exercise of their rights to work," Grace telegraphed Governor Earle.

"We cannot assume the grave responsibility of making such an admission. Therefore with our knowledge of the state and its resources to prevent possible disorder you must make the decision if the plant is to be closed.

"In the light of these circumstances we sincerely hope you will find ways and means for dealing with the situation."

"The plant has continued in operation notwithstanding the lawless attacks on the workmen, their families and the properties," Grace said in the telegram.

"The consequences of closing the plant and the depriving of 14,000 employes and their families of their livelihood and the effect on the community could be more serious than the demonstration to which you refer."

Appeals to Roosevelt

The rapidly darkening situation in the bitter "battle of steel" was emphasized in a new telegraphic appeal to President Roosevelt by Mayor Shields.

The mayor warned President Roosevelt the crisis has reached to a point where continuance of the C. I. O. in Johnstown "can only mean blodshed in our streets."

Mayor's Warning

He said that "rule or ruin, control or murder, is the policy of the C. I. O." and he besought the nation's chief executive:

"Are you going to fail me by allowing this reign of terror to continue?"

"Ninety per cent of my citizens are opposed to the C. I. O. . . . Personally I am firmly convinced that it is a Russian red organization gaining prestige by use of your name.

"Confidential information in my hand warns me of certain dynamite explosions now planned. Certain bridges, I am warned, are to be blown up. Warnings have been received by me that I and my family are to be destroyed."

Mediation Board Meets

The three drastic moves—martial law, the threat of 40,000 miners marching on Johnstown, and Mayor Shields' dramatic appeal to the president—developed as the newly-appointed federal steel mediation board, headed by Charles P. Taft, II, assembled in Cleveland to open a facts-finding investigation into the steel strikes now raging in seven states.

Taft said the board has no plans "just now" to subpena witnesses, although it was indicated that once the probe gets under way, Taft will seek to bring the principals together in an attempt to settle the chief point at issue—the question of signed labor contracts between steel and C. I. O.

MURDER ON THE BLUFF

By Esther Tyler

bluff, just out of reach of the howling fury of the sea.

We climbed down only part of the way. He was dead. I realized that before we reached him. From the way his head was bent to one side, it seemed as if his neck must be broken. A deep blot of red stained his heavy white hair and was gradually spreading into the sand. Higgins hair was gray and very thin. Whoever this poor devil was, he was not the butler.

I shouted above the noise of the wind, "We'll have to get help. Can't reach him without a rope!"

She nodded dully. Without word, she allowed me to draw her back and in the direction of the house. I think she would have fallen had it not been for my arm. The side door was still bolted. We were obliged to make a circuit of the house and enter as we had left it.

From the dining room, a low babble of voices indicated that breakfast was already under way. I steered the Skipper into the living room, administered a dose of brandy, and ordered her to stay where she was. Once again the bearer of bad news, I entered the dining room.

They were all there, being served by Higgins. M. Farrington paused in the midst of an announcement concerning the weather to eye me worriedly.

"Well," growled Michael, "now what?"

"We have found something on the beach," I said. "Higgins, I want you and William and a rope. Hurry!" Higgins gave me one horrified look and rushed toward the kitchen.

Gay was on her feet—"What—have you—found?"

It seemed to me to be the kindest thing to end the suspense of the last three or four hours.

"We've found the body of a man lying halfway down the bluff," I told them. "Our prowler is—through. We'll have to get him before the tide turns or we'll be too late. The surf's pretty heavy."

Sow Turnips in June, July for Good Fall Crop

American Table Now Demands This Vegetable Fresh and Young

Turnips are a cool season crop but for the fall and winter supply they must be sown in June and July. They will get a start and make a slow growth until the cool weather sets in and then they will rapidly develop fine solid roots. The American table now demands its turnips fresh and young. The old mature roots are not in much demand except in localities where the green grocer does not flourish. A supply all summer is easily maintained in the home garden.

For the early fall crop plant now. The turnip like a mellow rich soil and its success and mildness of flavor depend upon keeping it growing without check. The later planted turnips should have frequent cultivation to keep a dust mulch established and preserve the moisture in the soil in hot weather. Old-fashioned gardens usually allowed the turnips to grow up to weeds in summer and with this careless treatment always got a good crop of turnips.

A Real Reason

Although the practice usually was due to a dislike of hoeing turnips in hot weather, there was a real reason for the success of the turnips. With the heavy growth of weeds above them the soil was shaded and the plants protected from the hot sun and thus growing conditions were improved for them. However, the weed practice is not to be recommended. The weeds take enough nourishment from the soil, and distribute a crop of seeds for future generations that do no real good to the garden. The same quality of turnips will be developed by good hoeing or cultivating with a wheel hoe.

The turnips are seldom thinned in the old-fashioned garden but left to struggle along. Also they are usually sown broadcast. They should be sown in rows and thinned and then a uniform crop of finely shaped roots will be harvested, a delight to the eye, and of the best table quality. They will also furnish fine roots to exhibit at the fall shows where turnips are always of the staples exhibited.

U. W. Regents Recommend Million Dollar Program

Madison—(P)—University of Wisconsin regents recommended today a $1,000,000 building program in Madison and Milwaukee if federal funds can be obtained.

The board asked Governor La Follette to make application for PWA grants for the following projects:

New dormitories on the campus, $500,000; new building at the Milwaukee extension center, $300,000; additional camps library facilities, $200,000.

Chinese farmers, who compose almost 80 per cent of the 400,000,000 people in that country, own an average of half an acre of land each.

Canterbury Bells And Foxglove are Popular Biennials

Some Gardeners Ignore These Plants as They Must be Sowed Yearly

Some gardeners are inclined to ignore biennials, the plants which must be started fresh from seed every year to keep them in stock, as they bloom their second year and then die.

Foxgloves and Canterbury bells are the commonest biennials and two of the most beautiful subjects. While frequently grown together, they like soils of entirely different character to be at their best.

The Canterbury bell favors a lime soil while the foxglove luxuriates in acid quarters, being naturally a woodland plant. It is best to start these two biennials now to have big plants to store in cold frames for the winter, the only really safe way of being certain of having them as they winterkill badly in many sections, being unable to stand winter wet although perfectly hardy so far as cold is concerned.

Another Favorite

Another biennial which is slowly growing into favor because of its stately grace, long a favorite in English gardens, is the mullein or verbascum. The stately spikes of light yellow and pure white bloom are beautiful as associates for the stately delphiniums. The mulleins bloom for the greater part of the summer. Once you have them you always have them as they are free seeders and their chief drawback is the necessity of hoeing up myriads of young mulleins each spring. However, they are an easily disposed of plant as one swipe of the hoe finishes them.

A mullein for the rock garden is a perennial. This is the Phoenician mullein which has dark green corrugated leaves lying flat on the ground and airy spikes of bloom no more than 18 inches high at most, in pinks, flesh and rosy purple tones. It is a plant for a shaded portion of the rock garden where its rosettes and graceful spikes are very ornamental.

The Sweet William is another biennial although it is not so truly biennial in character as the foregoing plants as often it will live for several seasons. It is best, however, to treat it as a biennial and raise fresh plants each year.

Train Runs Over Skunk: Passengers Evacuate

Menominee, Mich.—(P)—Residents of this city, who were in considerable trouble to repel an invasion of skunks some months ago, had a secret laugh at the discomfiture of passengers on a northbound train which ran over what was believed to be the last of the tribe.

The skunk was killed but his scent lingered on. It is said that even though the train was air-conditioned, many passengers found it convenient to get off at the next station to send a post card to Aunt Lucy.

The dead skunk is thought to be the last of the clan which descended on Menominee last fall and burrowed in to stay. The situation became so uncomfortable for residents that authorities appointed Victor Le Brun deputy skunk killer No. 1. While Le Brun was able to eradicate most of the striped visitors, one entrenched himself in a downtown hardware store and defied all efforts at ousting him.

Worm culturists who founded an industry to supply fishermen with bait, feed growing worms on a diet of cornmeal, castor oil and fish oil.

Glories of Ireland Related When Assembly Okays 'Chair of Gaelic'

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—Amid tumultuous cheering, fervent speech making and a general atmosphere of "whoopee", the state assembly yesterday approved a bill to establish a chair of Gaelic and Irish language and literature at the University of Wisconsin and sent it to the governor for signature.

In a rising spirit of enthusiasm Irish members and some of them of other nationalities declaimed freely and eloquently on the glories of the Irish race and the merits of the bill to make the teaching of the language and literature of the Irish people a part of the university curriculum.

Levity reigned supreme as members vied with each other in good natured and extravagant speeches. To Assemblyman Frank N. Graass the bill was desirable because it would bring more good Irishmen to the state university. Thus, he maintained stoutly, the Communists supposed to abound on the campus would be routed.

Only Irishmen

In the midst of the high spirited confusion, Assemblyman Joseph Theisen of Sheboygan, attempted to make a speech but found that the chair was recognizing only Irishmen. "For what purpose does the gentleman from Sheboygan rise"? demanded Acting Speaker Charles Perry.

"On account of I want to say something," returned Theisen.

Perry then instructed Assemblyman William Rohan of Kaukauna to escort Theisen, who has earned a reputation as a fun-maker in the legislature, to the rostrum so that his remarks could be heard at the rear of the chamber.

"I'm from the city of chairs, cheese and children," he announced, "and that great Irish community will be pleased to learn that you have passed this bill."

"You know, Irishmen have always married German girls because they are good cooks," he continued. Ensuing remarks were lost as patriotic Irishmen on the floor demanded attention.

Only 5 Opposed

The vote for passage showed only six dissenters. According to rumours they included two Polish members, three Germans and a Norwegian.

Coincident with the passage of the bill Senator John E. Cashman of Denmark, one of its sponsors, received word from that John O'Brien, instructor at the River Forest college in Chicago has completed a translation of Cashman's senate speech in favor of the bill into Gaelic.

"In every field of endeavor, including industry, commerce, agriculture, labor and the professions they, the Irish, have helped to make this republic and make it the splendor of nations, the home and heritage of the free", Cashman said in that speech. "They were here when the nation was born, in the days that tried men's souls. Nine of the 56 signers of the Declaration of Independence were Irishmen, one fourth of the commanders who led the patriot armies were Irishmen, and nearly one half of the armies, and the Irish language was almost as generally spoken in the patriot ranks as the English."

Increase Comfort Of Feet by Use of Johnson Repairs

Shoe Rebuilders Renovate Summer Footwear of Nearly Every Type

Foot comfort is one of the most important requirements of good health and good temperament, this being especially true during the miseries of warm weather days. To have comfortable, well-kept shoes occasional attention is necessary. Johnson's Shoe Rebuilders, 123 E College avenue, are leaders in this department, having served Appleton and vicinity for over 15 years.

Johnson's Shoe Rebuilding service features special factory machinery for every kind of shoes with only skilled workmen with years of experience accomplishing the work. Best quality materials are used at all times, assuring perfect jobs.

Especially popular during the summer months is Johnson's specialized service in the dyeing and tinting of shoes to any color desired, the rebuilding of golf shoes, consisting of reshaping and recaulking of your present golf shoes or the taking of a pair of your oxfords and making them into golf oxfords for you. Fishermen depend on Johnson's for the repairing of waders and fishing shoes. Its new modern factory machinery for cleaning and reblocking of straw or felt hats is proving especially serviceable and popular.

If you have not already satisfied yourself with Johnson's rebuilding service, you are urged to give them a try. Its many satisfied customers are considered proof of the superiority of this firm. Johnson's prices are exceptionally low and a free delivery service is maintained which is exceedingly convenient for its patrons.

A call to 4310 will take care of your needs.

Neenah Firm Has Complete Service For Stone Markers

Twin City Monument Works Offers Wide Variety of Assistance

Memorials, both public and private, are recognized as being one of the oldest forms of historical record. Through them we have acquired our knowledge of ancient civilization and the arts, customs, and politics of other ages.

The tombs of the ancients in Greece, the great pyramids, Obelisks, of Egypt, the hidden vaults of Asia, the monuments of old Rome —all these imperishable structures have preserved historical knowledge for the people of today.

Just as the story of the past has been kept through all the centuries by memorials so, too, are our modern methods made secure through the means of cemetery monuments. The family tribute, erected today, will not be destroyed but will stand through the ages as a page in the history of individual families. From generation to generation it will go on, telling its story of splendid life to people of the future. The memorial is the one form of record which cannot pass away. It will not decay, ruin, or change but will carry its message clearly through the years.

Many Services

The work of the Twin City Monument Works, manufacturers and designers of high grade memorials and mausoleums, located at 301-307 Main street, Neenah, offers a variety of services in addition to its feature service, that of designing and producing memorials. Its work in the memorial field includes a number of specialized services which many people have found helpful, this firm believes. For example, if your family already has a memorial in the cemetery, the Twin City Monument Works will carve additional inscriptions into it as they are needed. This work may be done without removal of the memorial and can be carried out to match the engraving already on the monument.

Another important part of the firm's business is that of duplicating headstones, already on a plat. Exact duplicate as to material and design can be executed, thereby keeping the new memorial in harmony with the old and in that way carrying out the idea originally intended for the plat.

Another service affecting old monuments is that of thorough cleaning. The Twin City firm can restore the full beauty of any tribute by removing all the dirt and grime that may have accumulated through the years. It states that excellent results are obtained by its special process equipment for accomplishing this work. Inquiries regarding any of the services of this firm are invited and attended to without obligation.

Sees Recreation Business Setting New High Record

Financial Expert Terms Vacation a Sound Investment

BY ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Park, Mass.—The coming three months will set a new high-water mark in the recreation business. More people will spend more money on their vacations this year than ever before. The conditions which control tourist activity are ideal. The recreation business—which fifty years ago was one of our smallest—will finish up the 1937 season as one of the nation's leading industries.

General busines stoday is only ten per cent below the 1929 peak. We have experienced two years of feverish activity. Now the pressure is off. Business is heading into a summer slack-spot. Workers who have staid on the job and made hay while the sun was shining are eager to take advantage of this let-down. National income has jumped 75 per cent since the depression low. Stock prices are up 500 per cent and dividend payments are five to ten times larger than in the dark days of 1932 and 1933. Pay envelopes are back to 1929 figures and employments totals are close to all-time highs. People have the money to spend this year. Equally important is the fact that people have the will to spend.

The trend of the day is 'easy come, easy go.' I believe that one of the biggest mistakes the government has made is to enact legislation which penalizes saving and encourages spending. The desire to accumulate for the "rainy day" has been blasted by depression ravages and New Deal policies. People today are pleasure-bound. This desire for amusement is a bigger and bigger factor each year in the recreation business. BUT, remember this: Although you, as an individual, are primarily dependent upon how you use your working time, the good of the community mainly depends upon how you use your leisure.

Using Florida, California, and the winter cruises as a barometer of this summer's travel, I can safely predict a record season. Roughly, 50,000,000 people will take some form of vacation. My forecast is that 1937 recreation expenses should run above $5,500,000,000. This total includes all items from swim-suit sales to hot-dog receipts. Hotels and tourist cabins will receive about $1,000,000,000. The same amount will go for transportation, automobiles, and gasoline. Merchants will pick up over $1,000,000,000, and another billion will be left at eating-places. Amusement enterprises will collect half a billion, while over $600,000,000 will jingle through registers at pop-corn stands, soda-fountains, and other miscellaneous ventures.

Millions Have Stake

These huge outlays put the recreation industry among the leading national businesses—ranking above even our giant steel and fuel industries. Moreover, I estimate that more people probably secure their entire or partial livelihood from this business than any other national industry with the exception of farming and retail trade. Including all employees—from the huge personnel of swanky, summer hotels to individual peanut vendors—millions of people have a stake in the industry. A good summer season means prosperity in thousands of towns and villages from the green woods of Northern Canada to the white beaches of Southern California. But we must not forget that the 1937 vacation mecca is at the partial expense of the merchants at home in Kalamazoo.

This growing custom of an annual vacation is one of the soundest trends in North America today. Vacation bills usually represent money wisely-spent. A complete rest and change—not only from the daily routine, but also from the distressing news of labor strife at home and saber-rattling overseas —is not a luxury; it is a necessity. The world is changing rapidly. Canada and the United States are in the midst of this social and economic revolution. We are living in a New Era. Success in any profession or business means keeping abreast of the shifting tides. New policies must be adopted. Clear heads, keen minds, and healthy bodies are needed more now than ever.

Get A Fresh Viewpoint

Most our problems, however, are not basically new. They have always been with us. They are simply the current instalment of an age-old serial. History's experience says that these issues cannot be solved by means of bills and acts alone. Only through proper teaching do people's hearts and minds change and the real reforms come true. On many occasions in these articles I have spoken of the need of a spiritual awakening to save the world from itself. By that I mean the development of unselfishness, a new desire to be useful, a new pride in a job well-done, and a new allegiance to the Golden Rule. Just as democracy is the hope of tomorrow's world, so spirituality is the hope of tomorrow's democracy.

A vacation can be one big step toward this spiritual goal. A complete change of atmosphere brings a fresh viewpoint. A thorough rest from routine brings a new realization of individual opportunities and capabilities. No continent in the world has more beauty-spots or a finer climate than our own North America. The important point is to close your desk and toss your cares away for a week or two. Both as an employer and a worker, I have observed the vacation situation from all angles for thirty years. My conclusion is that a thorough change for a few weeks each summer is good investment for every man and woman!

Buick to Broadcast Heavyweight Title Bout Next Tuesday Evening

Clem McCarthy, ace sports announcer, will handle the blow by blow radio description of the Braddock-Louis fight, June 22, it was announced by Thos. H. Corpe, director of advertising of the Buick Division of General Motors, sponsors of the broadcast.

This is McCarthy's third assignment for the motor manufacturers who also sponsored the Baer-Louis and Louis-Schmelling broadcasts. Another microphone personage will be picked for between the rounds comment.

"I recently received word from W. F. Hufstader, our general sales manager, that Buick again will sponsor the major fight broadcast of the year as it sponsored the Baer-Louis and Schmelling-Louis scraps last year and year before," commented O. R. Kloehn, local Buick dealer. "This is 1937's 'battle of the century' and while everybody can't go to the ringside, the ringside will be brough by Buick to millions of radio listeners all over the country.

"There is a lot of interest in the fight here and it looks as though everyone who has a radio will be sitting in front of it when the bell rings for the first round of the big event. Whether the fight lasts one or fifteen rounds, Buick will broadcast every detail of it, arrangements having been made for radio time to cover every eventuality."

Mr. Kloehn said that the largest radio hookup ever to broadcast a major fight will be employed by Buick. This will consist of 125 stations of the NBC's red and blue networks.

130 Families are High in Praise of Eagle Insulation

Save Money in Winter; See Cool Summer, Reports Sprinkman

No longer despairing because of summer's stifling heat, over 130 families in Appleton and vicinity, in addition to thousands of people throughout the country who have had their homes insulated with Eagle insulation, now sing the praises of this marvelous material, as is evidenced by the dozens of letters expressing their satisfaction which are on file at the Sprinkman Sons Corporation offices at 421 W. College avenue. And no wonder! Soft, fluffy Eagle insulation, installed in walls and roofs, has brought them a new almost miraculous comfort. Living rooms, bedrooms, in fact the entire interior stays cool—as much as 15 degrees cooler than outside temperature.

There is real living in living rooms now because these rooms are delightfully cool instead of stifling hot. Bedrooms, once the scene of a miserable effort to obtain rest, are now as comfortable as downstairs, inviting long hours of deep, refreshing sleep.

Controls Heat

When winter comes, the wonders brought about by Eagle insulation do not cease. Again this superior mineral wool insulation keeps heat where it belongs—this time inside. Rooms are kept cheerfully, cozily warm and drafts are eliminated. When the first autumn furnace fire is lighted, Eagle insulation immediately begins to pay dividends in fuel savings, often cutting fuel bills as much as 40 per cent. Eagle insulation is a lightweight mineral wool, made by one of the country's oldest manufacturers. Its primary purpose is to stop the passage of heat through the walls and roof of the house. It does this job more effectively than 12 feet of concrete. These features are permanent, keeping buildings comfortable as long as they stand, continually keeping down fuel bills year after year. It is low in original cost and pays for itself. Easy installation, affecting no muss or fuss and no altering of the lines of the house or building, is one of its special features.

Decide now to obtain the comforts and many other features of Eagle insulation for your own home or business establishment. A 'phone call to 130-W, Mr. E. B. Ingebretsen, manager of the Appleton office of Sprinkman Sons, Corporation, will bring complete information. These headquarters, under Mr. Ingebretsen's leadership, are completely established locally, having its own equipment, office, and warehouse facilities.

Ted Weems Brings Novelty Ideas to Eweco Park Tues.

Famed Orchestra Appears At Oshkosh on June Twenty-Third

An orchestra leader must always be on the alert for something new to present to a public which demands new novelties for its entertainment. Accordingly, Ted Weems, realizing this, is one of the few baton wavers who will take a chance on introducing new songs or ideas to his followers.

One of the first introductions which met with instant favor was the "Weems-a-phone," a unique instrument which produced a tone distinct from that produced by any other instrument his orchestra possessed.

With the introduction of radio as a medium of entertainment, Ted followed somewhat the ideas heretofore presented only by motion picture producers in Hollywood. Where they had been producing serials which were shown in the local theatres in weekly installments, Ted conceived the idea of arranging his programs, both musical and dialogue, so that his unseen audiences would want to tune in again to hear the outcome of the previous broadcast.

Now, Ted, who brings his famous orchestra to Eweco Park, Oshkosh on Wednesday, June 23 through arrangements with the Music Corporation of America, has again felt the pulse of the public and presented it with a novelty that it will not soon forget. He wrote the music and lyrics to the "Martins and the Coys," a tune depicting the typical feud between two familes residing in the Kentucky hills. Not only that but when Ted recently was signed for a theatre tour, he produced a silent picture which he screens for the audience and at the same time has the orchestra furnish the musical and sound background.

When Ted comes here he will display many of the unusual novelties which he has introduced to exacting audiences elsewhere.

Both Houses in Favor Of Wassermann Measure

Madison— P—Both houses of the legislature were on record today in favor of requiring both men and women to submit to the Wassermann test for syphilis before receiving marriage licenses.

The senate passed unanimously Friday bill of Assemblyman Vernon Thomson, (R), Richland Center, establishing this requirement, but the measure must go back to the assembly for concurrence in a senate amendment making the bill effective 30 days after passage rather than immediately.
